New Acid, Fine Vitamin
Chance for a Good Writer
How Puzzling Is Science
Not the Same Brick, Twice

—By Arthur Brisbane—

A NEW ACID has been identified, existing in every living thing, from men down to bacteria and mould, a strange substance that stimulates growth, "composed of long chains of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen."

It is so powerful that "one part in a BILLION," a very small drop in 250 gallons of water, is enough to affect the entire living body. It is called "panthothenic," meaning that it comes from everywhere.

If you knew how to remove all traces of it from food, you might breed dwarfs a few inches high, and produce the fabulous "Homunculus."

You are also told, and may safely believe, that carrots, fresh butter and other substances contain the most precious of vitamins, one that prevents colds, or cures them when you have them. But don't try to live on raw carrots. Eat them well cooked. And don't force your children to eat them if they don't like them. What children don't LIKE they can't digest, and other foods possess that vitamin. Only things we like cause the gastric juice to flow. No gastric juice, no digestion. Read Pavlov.

Any man young enough to be powerful, old enough to know American history, and able to write well, exposing the wrong, bolstering the right, might get a job with the new weekly that Professor Moley will edit with the co-operation of Vincent Astor, William Averell Harrimac, Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey and Mr. McNitt.

Vincent Astor, publisher of the weekly, who will help the others to pay expenses until profits begin pouring in, thinks a really powerful writer the most important of assets, and said yesterday to this writer and his assembled associates:

"I wish we could find somebody to write articles like the one my friend Hearst wrote when Lady Cathcart was kept out of the United States on a 'holier than thou' basis."

It was suggested that he might persuade Hearst to do the job himself in return for "a share of the profits."

You spend years figuring the amount of interstellar space involved in "100 million light years" distance, reading with awe Einstein's statement that time is not infinite, that it had a definite beginning and will end some day, also that space is not infinite but folded over on itself.

And then a genuine scientist announces that "the universe itself may be just an idea, with no actual reality." You know that a solid block of marble, or the frame of a steel building is made up of microscopic particles of electricity, electrons and protons, each in proportion to size as far from the other, inside the atom, as the earth is from the sun.

The more you read and the more you study, the more you feel like Kipling's young elephant, that remarked when the alligator seized him by the tip of the trunk:

"It is too buch for be."

The late President Ripley, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, said:

"The three important words in the language of success are ORGANIZE, DEPUTIZE, SUPERVISE."

That is wisdom. Another wise thing was said yesterday by another railroad man, A. J. County, one of Gen. Atterbury's important associates on the Pennsylvania railroad:

"This is a time to remember that you cannot get experience without paying for it. Paying for it is all right, if you don't pay too much, and if you don't buy the same gold brick twice."

Buying one gold brick, says Mr. County, quoting an old friend, is no sign that your mind is feeble. But buying the same gold brick over again proves that you are hopeless.

Stock prices went up again yesterday, while brokers still talked about moving the exchange to New Jersey, rather than pay four cents a share tax to the city for every share of stock sold.

This seems like too much excitement.

The customers will pay the tax, and when a man gambles in stocks he isn't thinking about four cents a share. He expects to make $40 a share or $400

Detroit, Sept. 15 (INS)—A plot to kidnap Edsel Ford was broken up here in July, 1930, it was revealed for the first time today, with the arrest in Los Angeles of Red O'Riordan, notorious Detroit thug and kidnaper.

No details of the plot could be learned. But a source close to Edsel Ford told International News Service that such a plot had occurred.

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 (INS)—A three-year, nation-wide manhunt for Joseph "Red" O'Riordan, Detroit mobster, wanted for a kidnaping attempt directed against a member of Henry Ford's family, ended here today.

WILD 'L' CAR IN 2 RUNAWAYS

A street car ran wild in East Boston loop today.

The car, in charge of Inspector Robert H. McDonald of 28 Princeton st., East Boston, had apparently been stopped in the yard at Gladstone st., when it suddenly started on its runaway trip without operator or passengers.

Joseph Degrenier, an operator of 400 Chelsea st., East Boston, saw it start. He leaped to the running board of a passing auto and gave chase.

He overtook the runaway and managed to board it at Byron st., East Boston. From there he took it back to the yards, where it stood quite docile.

Boys of the neighborhood are suspected of having started the car.

5 in Bank Steal Get Dummy 'Cash'; Victim Saves $2100

Five men staged a spectacular holdup in the City sq., Charlestown, branch of the First National Bank today and made a clean getaway with only a dummy package which their victim carried for just such an emergency.

While they were fleeing in a high-powered car with a bundle of old newspapers, the victim, William H. Bloomberg, 26, of 134 Bellingham st., Chelsea, was safe but slightly groggy with $1,000 in cash and $1,100 in checks.

The holdup took place across the square from police station 15. Scores saw the bandits fleeing.

LAST LAUGHS FOR $2100

For three years Bloomberg, office manager at the National Creamery Co., 66 Washington st., Somerville, has gone to the bank with the money in an inside pocket and the dummy bundle in his hand.

Fellow-employes joshed him. Even his employers thought it funny. Bloomberg kept it up. He had the last laugh.

As he stepped into the bank a man confronted him, punched his jaw, knocking him against the wall. The man cried:

"Give me that money."

Another man stepped from behind and seized the dummy package. Bloomberg struggled, but they took it and ran. He shouted for help as he went after them and was joined by Frank K. Rooney, 60, special policeman.

POLICE TO LATE

The bandits turned into Park st. where three other men were waiting in a dark blue sedan. The car started and they leaped in.

The burglar alarm sounded in the police station and a large squad dashed across the square, but the machine had disappeared toward Sullivan sq.

Bloomberg deposited his money and went back to his office, a hero among his fellow workers.

He described the punching bandit as 28 to 30, five feet, eight, 146 pounds; stocky, dark; wearing a dark topcoat and soft hat. The other was about 25; five feet six; 140 pounds; dark wearing a light gray topcoat and light soft hat.

GUY DEMANDS FEDERAL PAY FOR STRAWS

Wrecking of Lawrence Trust Laid Bare in Third Big Action

Straw men, worthless loans and the dominant personality of Bank President Daniel C. Mullowney were all pictured together today in a suit for $1,126,000 brought by the defunct Lawrence Trust Co. against the defunct Federal National Bank of Boston.

Mulloney dominated the Federal National and its officers and directors.

The Federal National, under Mulloney, gained control over the Lawrence Trust Company in the summer of 1931.

Six months later the bank commissioner had to seize the Lawrence Trust Company to protect its remaining assets for the depositors.

LOANS TO HIMSELF

In the short time which intervened, Mulloney caused the Lawrence Trust Company to lend $1,126,000 to himself and his subordinates, who were known by him to be financially irresponsible to redeem their borrowings.

The above, in brief, are the allegations contained today in the latest suit to be filed against the Federal National Bank in behalf of its affiliates which were brought down in the $60,000,000 debacle affecting 60,000 depositors in a half-dozen Bay State cities.

GUY FILES SUIT

The suit was filed by Atty. LaRue Brown, in behalf of Bank Commissioner Guy, who now holds the Lawrence Trust Company, in the Supreme Judicial Court of Suffolk County.

HOUSES ARE GUARDED IN BERRY WAR

Threats to Set Fires Bared; Plea to Ely Balks Rioters

Threats to burn the homes of Cape Cod berry pickers who continue to work in the cranberry bogs have been reported to the police.

The arson threat has circulated in conjunction with other intimidation attempts, according to police. Police are prepared to stamp out all efforts to force the resident berry pickers to join the rioters. Troopers and special police have been detailed to guard the homes of the berry pickers.

ADOPT PEACE MANEUVER

While attempts to gain strike recruits by intimidation continue secretly the strikers inaugurated a campaign of "peaceful picketing" today.

The new "peace move" by the strikers is attributed to the plea of Cape Cod cranberry growers to Gov. Ely for the dispatch of troops to the area and the declaration of martial law. It is said that the strikers feared the presence of the National Guard as detrimental to the success of their organization efforts.

A meeting of the strikers was held last night in their headquarters at American House, Jungletown, and plans were made for today's program of peaceful picketing. The strikers were addressed by Daniel J. McIntosh of New Bedford, leader of the attempt to organize a union of berry pickers.

Plans made by the strikers call for the assembling of an auto cavalcade of at least 40 cars which will tour through the cranberry district. The strikers plan to halt at each bog and harangue the workers, hoping to induce them to join the strike.

TROOPERS BAN GUNS

State troopers were on guard at the meeting but were not called on to take any action. However, they bore a warning to strikers that they were to refrain from making trouble on their tour. It was also announced that the cars would be searched for weapons.

Police also plan to assemble radio-equipped cruising cars and trail the strikers on their tour. Each car will carry four or five troopers armed with tear gas bombs and riot guns. In the event the occupants of any one machine are unable to handle possible disturbances they will be able to summon aid quickly.

At the present time there are more than 100 troopers and 150 special deputies in addition to the regular police forces of the various towns on duty in the strike area.

DEATH DIVE IS HALTED TWICE

A man who gave his name as John Randall, 28, of Bowdoin st., West End, was prevented from leaping into the Charles river from Charlestown bridge by Patrolman John Kelley, of the North st. station, early today.

It was his second attempt within a few minutes. He was stopped on the first occasion by Louis Fernelli, of Webster st., East Boston, who was driving across the bridge and saw Randall climbing the guard rail. He leaped from his car and pulled him down and apparently convinced him of the folly of his act.

Fernelli then continued to Charlestown where he notified police. Meanwhile, Patrolman Kelley saw Randall again climbing the rail, and prevented his leap.

HAIR, BLOOD NEW CLUES IN CAHILL SEARCH

Found on Jack and the Back of Seat in His Car, Police Allege

A message from Harry P. Cahill, missing ex-cowboy, and the finding of what are believed to be human hair and bloodstains on a jack and on the back of the front seat in his abandoned auto, were clues today in the week-old mystery of the murder of Peggy McCarthy.

The tangible clue referred to by the police as "definitely connecting" Cahill with the strangling of the 10-year-old Somerville child is a message from him which is now in the possession of the investigators, the Boston Evening American learned.

This message came from Cahill on Monday after he had abandoned his car at Silver Lake, Wilmington, Sunday night.

"By leaving this message, Cahill committed an act which constituted consciousness of guilt," a high official connected with the case told The American today.

This official refused to say whether the message was written, wired or phoned, for whom it was intended or how it came into possession of the investigators.

It is the mysterious "connecting link" referred to by Police Chief Thomas Damery of Somerville in his statement that the missing man, "in my opinion has been definitely connected with the crime itself."

Police further revealed that to the jack found in Cahill's car a bit of hair was found to adhere and a closer examination disclosed a tiny speck of what is believed to be blood.

SUSPECT HE HAD AID

Dist. Atty. Bishop, who is awaiting a report of chemical analysis to be made late today or tomorrow, added that hair and what appeared to be bloodstains were found on the back of the front seat of the car.

The district attorney said the missing man may be arrested on a John Doe-Richard Doe indictment returned by the grand jury and under which two men may be taken into custody. There is some suspicion that Cahill may have had aid in disappearing after abandoning his car.

The disclosures followed posting

FALL OF CUBAN REGIME LOOMS AS CHAOS SWEEPS ISLAND

TROOPS RUSH TO BATTLE REBEL ARMY POST, AMERICANS HELD

Copyright, 1933, by Associated Press.

Havana, Sept. 15—A Havana newspaper today frankly called upon the new government of President Ramon Grau San Martin to recognize the "lack of popular warmth" for it as the regime faced an armed outbreak in a neighboring province and rumors of an impending opposition movement were circulated.

El Mundo declared that "All commercial activity of the country is paralyzed, national credit has suffered extraordinarily, and unless we rectify this situation totally the government will fall through a process of asphyxiation."

As the country operated under a "constitution of independence" which placed common welfare above individual rights, strikes grew throughout the island.

ARMY POST REVOLTS

A former army captain, Fernando Aran, led a group of armed civilians which persuaded an army post at Consolacion Del Sur, Pinar Del Rio province, to join them in a revolt against the government. Troops were dispatched from the capital to quell the uprising after the rebels fled to the hills.

Despite the newspaper's warning, government officials were optimistic regarding the financial situation, saying a decrease in tax collections was to be expected due to the disturbed condition and that they expected to pay employes fully Oct. 30.

The government based its hopes of ending the widespread strikes on the promise of an eight-hour day and a minimum wage scale throughout the country.

The capital itself was threatened with another food shortage as the administration heard rumors of other armed resistance and tightened the lines about 500 former army officers still besieged in the National Hotel.

STRIKE MENACE GROWS

Fighting and bloodshed, mutiny and rebellion were abroad as President Grau San Martin announced a plan calling for "absolute independence and national sovereignty," a perfect adjustment of political and economic interests" and general elections for a constitutional convention.

Warehousemen are on strike in Havana. Already food prices nave soared because of this and a field workers' walkout in adjacent provinces, and authorities foresaw a growing scarcity of food.

Employes of the Havana Electric Railway were at odds over the allotment of work, and officials said the situation was not encouraging. The powerful O. C. R. R. Secret Society instituted a consumers' strike against the electric and telephone rates. The government was asked to intervene. Drug store messengers were on strike.

An inspecter for the stevedores syndicate was killed by unidentified persons in a passing automobile. Street fighting was reported in Matanzas. In Cardenas and Cienguegos (where all stores were closed) racial enmity ran high.

AMERICANS PRISONERS

Talk of another general strike, such as the one that paralyzed almost every sphere of activity and forced the eviction of Machado's administration, went the rounds.

In Cristo, 12 American officials of manganese mines were held virtual prisoners by striking employes.

The American consul from nearby Santiago surveyed the situation today. Other residents of Oriente Province gathered for safety at American colonies near Santiago. At several sugar mills through the island officials were said to be besieged in their homes by strikers.

The situation at the National Hotel, where defiant army officers are housed, was acute.

With shouts and waving red flags, workers in Santiago forced the mayor and governor to resign and the resulting situation was called "disturbed." An army sergeant was said to have taken over the Santiago City Hall.

Posters again attacked "Yankee imperialism."

U. S. Eyes Cuba, Ready to Rush Troops There

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—Increased trouble in Cuba sharpened apprehension today lest outbreaks threaten American life and property in a manner to require American troop protection.

State Department officials received word of violence in various sections coupled with threats of far-spread strikes, but declined to speak publicly of the delicate situation.

Some sources received a report that an army captain, two lieutenants and 80 followers had seized the town of Pinar Del Rio, along with arms and ammunition.

It related that the troops had distributed weapons among the inhabitants and prepared for an anticipated attack.

So far as was known here no Americans were in the town.

Man, Accused by Girl, 13, Is Held

Accused of accosting a 13-year-old Jamaica Plain girl and assaulting her father, George W. Pray, 30, of Moraine st., Belmont, today was held under $300 bond after his case was postponed to Sept. 22 in Roxbury court.

He was charged with annoying Mary Kennedy of 22 Armstrong st., Jamaica Plain, and of assaulting Patrick F. Kennedy while under the influence of liquor.

Pray pleaded not guilty, saying he had meant the girl no harm, although he could not remember just what he had said to her.

FLED FATHER'S BLOWS

He said the father had leaped on the running board of his car and that he drove off in an attempt to escape his blows. He was arrested when his car mounted the sidewalk near Creighton st.

The Kennedy girl said Pray had asked her for the address of a girl she did not know, and had then invited her to get into the car. About that time her father arrived. The altercation attracted a crowd of several hundred.

Two similar cases were reported to police last night, one in the South End and the other in Chelsea.

SCHOOLS GUARDED

The South End complaint was that of Miss Mary L. Anunzito, 27, of East Dedham st., who said a six-foot man with a mustache attempted to hug her at Brookline and Mystic sts., South End.

In Chelsea, a woman who refused to give police her name, said that her seven-year-old daughter was accosted as she left the Carter School. The man was in a green roadster, she said.

The report brought an order from Police Chief Charles M. Finn for a patrolman at each school until further orders.

REICHSTAG FIRE LAID TO NAZI

London, Sept. 15 (AP)—Assertion that German Communist leaders must have been crazy if they planned to burn the Reichstag building was made today by a former Berlin editor before an international legal commission investigating the fire.

Only the National Socialist party (the Nazis) could have received any benefit from such a deed, George Bernhardt, once managing editor of the Vossische, asserted.

The commission is considering evidence in an attempt to fix responsibility for the fire. German authorities have blamed Communists, but Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor member of the British Parliament, suggested the fire was a scheme put forward by the National Socialists themselves.

Bernhardt declared he was opposed to Communism but was sufficiently familiar with Communists to know they "did not go in for individual acts of terror."

ICKES IS SEEN AS COAL 'CZAR' IN NEW CODE

Roosevelt Halts Trip to Sign Agreement for Miners

Washington, Sept. 15—Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said today that "unquestionably" the bituminous coal code would be ready for President Roosevelt's signature tonight. reported that Secretary of Interior Ickes was being considered as a coal "czar," on the same basis that he was placed in charge of the oil code. Relation between the price of fuel oil and bituminous coal has figured prominently in the code negotiations.

President Roosevelt cancelled plans to board the government yacht Sequoia at Fredericksburg, Va., tonight in order to be at hand for the promised conclusion of the coal code.

FIGHT ON THREE POINTS

Mr. Roosevelt is determined that this long pending working agreement be attained today, and he is standing by to see it through.

Johnson said the committee of 18 leading operators resumed work this morning, and that "only about three points were left to be cleared up." The administrator declined to say what those points were.

A report on the Pennsylvania coal situation was placed on President Roosevelt's desk today. The report was made by Department of Justice agents who were sent to Uniontown, Pa., by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday after he conferred with Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

A committee of Appalachian commercial operators also resumed its negotiations with the United Mine Workers of America on labor contracts for most of the mines in that area.

UNIFICATION SUGGESTED

"They have less to clear up even than the contract committee," Johnson said.

Johnson disclosed he had suggested unification of the United Mine Workers of America with the Progressive Miners of America, a miners' union largely confined to Illinois.

Asked what resulted from the suggestion, Johnson said they both were "standing with reluctant weet where brook and river meet."

Picket Shot During New Coal Mine Clash

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 15 (INS)—Bloodshed marked the progress of the western Pennsylvania bituminous mine "holiday" again today, as developments of three rapid-fire events signalized the breaking up of the strike which yesterday resulted in widespread rioting and gunplay throughout Fayette County.

A picket was shot in the leg when he attempted to persuade a strikebreaker at one of the H. C. Frick Coke Co. mines to join the strikers ranks, according to reports to police.

Carload after carload of state police sped up to the mine entrance, just as daylight streaked over the hills. With riot clubs swinging handily at their hips, the police ranged themselves into closely-knit patrols along the highway.

Guns Found in Auto Crash; 3 Held

Three men, injured in an auto crash in Charlestown today, were later taken to City-sq. police station on suspicion because police found two revolvers in a doorway near the scene of the accident.

The three said they were Ernest A. Graffio, 32, single, of Parker ave., Cohasset; Antonio Figueiedo, 28, same address, and Michael De Leo, 22, of Lowell st., Boston.

The car in which they were riding crashed into an Elevated upright on Main st., near Thompson sq.

The windshield was splintered and the front of the machine smashed in. All the occupants were badly cut and bruised.

While they were being treated at Haymarket relief hospital, Sergt. Frank McGeever and other officers looked around and found the two guns in a doorway at 5 School st. One was a .45 army Colt and the other a .32-caliber Spanish weapon.

HEARST SPEECH ON 2 CHAINS

New York, Sept. 15—"Inflation, Deflation and Reflation" will be the topic of a broadcast to be made by Mr. William Randolph Hearst Saturday night over the nationwide networks of the National Broadcasting Co.

Mr. Hearst will speak as the guest of Mr. Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of NBC.

Speaking from Los Angeles, Mr. Hearst will be heard on the coast from 7 to 7:15 p. m. and in the East from 11 to 11:15 p. m., daylight saving time.

Throughout the East and Middle West, Mr. Hearst's message will be heard on both the Red and Blue Networks of the National Broadcasting system, with the mighty stations WEAF and WJZ in New York city handling the address. This is said by radio men to be the first time such an honor has been accorded a private citizen.

Mr. Hearst's address will be heard locally over Station WBZ-WBZA and WEEI—both affiliates of the National Broadasting Co. The time, Saturday evening, from 11 to 11:15 p. m.

PRICE CONTROL IN RETAIL CODE IS STUDIED

Sets a Fair Price at 10 P. C. Above Wholesale Cost to Dealer

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—A final revised draft of the basic retail trade code, believed by officials to afford protection both to the consumer and the small merchant, was to go today to Administrator Johnson for his analysis before submission to President Roosevelt.

Johnson, who has had a tentative version of the code on his desk for several days, said he had not been able to give it his attention in view of the pressing coal problem. He said he believed it would be a week before the agreement could be sent to the White House.

10 P. C. ABOVE COST

The code establishes 10 per cent above wholesale cost as the minimum price at which a retailer may sell goods, and also has a 21 per cent discount limit on trade marked drugs and toilet articles whose retail price is fixed by the manufacturer.

An idea undr consideration today was that a non-governmental board of impartial, prominent citizens be appointed to observe operations of the price control provisions and determine whether the new experiment is in the public interest. As now drawn, however, the code contains no porvisions for limiting operation of price control to a trial.

As seen by some officials, the minimum price limit actually should result in lower average prices to the consumer than the present unregulated system. The price control would eliminate the practice of many chain and cut-rate establishments of advertising "loss leader" items, which are a few selected, well-known articles sold at actual loss to attract customers into the store to purchase other goods sold at a considerable profit.

CAN'T SELL AT LOSS

Under the proposed regulation stores would not be able to sell any article at a loss, and therefore officials figure such establishment would have to keep all prices down to a minimum profit to attract trade.

The master code excludes drug stores, which are to come under an almost identical separate agreement. However, drugs sold by general stores will be specifically regulated in the general compact.

MOTHERS' DRAMATIC PLEA MAKES 2 SPEED BOYS CONFESS

THEY FREE PAL OF HOLDUPS TO JURY

Feeney, Brooks Admit Banditry as Crowd Listens in Court

In one of the most dramatic scenes ever enacted in Suffolk Superior Court, two mothers today made tearful pleas to their sons in open court and induced them to admit their guilt in a series of armed robberies.

The boys are the "speed boy bandits"—Francis Feeney, 18, of Glendale st., and George Brooks, 17, of Sawyer ave., both of Dorchester.

The pleas of their mothers came in the midst of their trial before Judge John J. Burns and a jury and a courtroom filled with spectators, including numerous holdup victims whom the State had called as witnesses.

COYNE IS FREED

While Feeney and Brooks, after listening to their mothers, stood up and pleaded guilty, a third defendant, Gerald Coyne, 18, of Roxbury, was freed on a directed verdict of not guilty.

The dramatic moment came after one of the "speed boy" gang, Alexander Santassuosso, 18, of Mill st., Dorchester, who had pleaded guilty, appeared as a government witness and implicated Brooks and Feeney in holdups. He absolved Coyne.

There was a brief delay while Brooks' lawyer, ex-Sen. William I. Hennessey, talked with Judge Burns.

Then Hennessey left the courtroom. He returned with a woman. It was Brooks' mother.

Drying her eyes with a handkerchief, she went straight to the prisoners' cage and talked with her son, who leaned over to listen.

BOTH BOYS WEAKEN

All eyes, even the judge's, were on them. Brooks shook his head vigorously. She thought her plea had failed, and, sighing deeply, she walked slowly from the room.

And then a stir was heard in a far corner of the room. Another woman stepped forward to the prisoners' cage. Feeney leaned over, gritting his teeth to keep from breaking down as his mother spoke softly.

Feeney nodded. The crowd breathed an audible sigh of relief with the woman standing there. Brooks and Feeney whispered together, and then they stood and pleaded guilty, Feeney to nine robberies and other charges, Brooks to four robberies and other offenses.

Santassuosso told the jury Coyne was not one of the gang.

"Are you afraid of Coyne?" shouted Assistant District Attorney Frank Hickey.

"No, I'm not afraid of him," retorted the boy.

"What did he offer you?"

"He never offered me anything. He asked me to tell the truth."

"You taking the rap for him?"

"I'm taking the rap for nobody except myself."

CHAINED FOR LIFE TO LOVE

Escape Artist Is Captive of Watertown Girl for Life

He may be able to escape from handcuffs, straitjackets, jail cells, leg irons and the like, but Clifford Young, who bills himself as "Young Clifford," will never escape her, it was declared romantically today by Miss Catherine Mahoney, 18, of 82 Forest st., Watertown.

Not that Clifford wants to escape the pretty Catherine, because Clifford, who is a carnival and stage "escape artist," and Catherine, who was graduated from West Junior High School in Watertown last year, were attempting today to get a waiver of the five-day law and be married immediately.

They filed marriage intentions yesterday in Watertown and Catherine's honeymoon will be a trip to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, where she will be chief rooter for her 25-year-old husband when he attempts to prove his claim that he is the world's premier escape artist.

Clifford and Catherine met last July, when he was with a carnival showing in Watertown. It was love at first sight, they said, and he will never be able to escape that.

'I HAVEN'T 75 CENTS,' MOVIE STAR CRIES

'It's a Shame!'—Read; 'Glorious!' Is Wife's View of Verdict

Los Angeles, Sept. 15—Ordered by a superior court jury to pay Mrs. Marian Read $75,000 for alienation of affections of her former husband, Alfred O. Read, Jr., Claire Windsor said today she would marry if necessary to escape paying the judgment.

Attorneys for the blonde actress said a motion for a new trial will be made within the next few days. They said they were ready to carry the case to the state supreme court.

The verdict against Miss Windsor was returned late yesterday by a jury of seven women and five men amid cheers and hand-clapping of courtroom spectators.

"SAD," READ; "GLAD," WIFE.

"I have no money and rather than go to work that Mrs. Read may collect, I will get married again," Miss Windsor said with half a laugh. "I can't understand it all."

"All I can say is that it is a shame," Read said. "I testified it was my fault, and it was. I am awfully sorry for Claire."

"Oh, I am so happy," Mrs. Read told the jurors. "Thank you all so much!"

Read shouldered the blame for Miss Windsor's troubles when he admitted making love to her posing as a single man and then telling her he was separated from his wife and planning a divorce. He denied Miss Windsor pursued him.

"FOOLISH"—CLAIRE

Mrs. Read accused Miss Windsor of enticing her husband to leave her. The jury deliberated three hours.

"My atorneys advise me that in their judgment the verdict is excessive and there is insufficient evidence to support it," said Miss Windsor in a statement.

"I haven't 75 cents, much less $75,000.

"Mr. Read, his mother, several friends and acquaintances testified that Mr. Read had no affection for his wife and that their entire married life was a long series of quarrels. To think that nine persons—and the verdict was 9 to 3—of mature minds could conscientiously vote such an excessive amount as this is too absurd to necessitate further comment."

9000 SHOE MEN BACK MONDAY

Brockton's 9000 shoe strikers will return to work Monday, thanks to the Blue Eagle.

The recovery administration's conciliation board has effected a truce between rival unions, the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen, an independent group, whose counsel is Frank A. Goodwin of Boston, and the Boot and Shoe Workers Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

The strike at 30 factories was called when the validity of contracts between the union and the employers was questioned three weeks ago.

Under the new agreement, all workers will remain in their present status until Washington officials decide the standing of the two unions under the NRA code. Meanwhile 35 cents will be withheld each week from every worker's pay envelope, this sum to be paid to the union as dues when the matter is finally adjusted.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN TOLD AT WELLESLEY

Rubinow and Quinby Address Social Workers

Constructive optimism was the keynote of delegates attending the Massachusetts Conference of Social Work today at Wellesley College.

But their optimism was tempered by a warning that the nation must profit by its past mistakes to prevent future misery. Said Dr. I. M. Rubinow, secretary of B'nai Brith of Cincinnati, one of the country's foremost advocates of unemployment insurance:

"Never again must we depend on emergency relief legislation in times of economic depression. Never in that new society which we are trying so hard to build must we allow our standards of living to break down so disastrously and our wage structure to follow.

"If we want to hold on to our new economic position we must not lose too much time in building the levee against economic floods—compulsory and universal insurance against the losses of unemployment and ill health."

Also on the program of speakers was Dr. Robert S. Quinby federal director of re-employment for Massachusetts. He said it was the desire of the Government to aid in the various public works projects in the state, and pointed out a list of projects on which men had already been put to work.

Other speakers were Hugh D. Butler, secretary of the New England District Recovery Board of the NRA; Roswell D. Phelps, director of statistics, Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industry; Robert J. Watt, secretary-treasurer and legislative agent of the state Federation of Labor, and Talmadge Grady, field secretary of the Massachusetts Division of Savings Bank insurance.

N. E. PAYROLLS UP $1,000,000 IN A MONTH

57,000 More Get Jobs, Pres. Sharpe Tells the Council

Manchester, Vt., Sept. 15 (INS)—With a $1,000,000 increase in the average weekly of industrial plant payrolls and an increase of 57,000 employes during July and August, the New England states have noted a substantial increase in industrial activity, President Henry D. Sharpe of the New England Council reported today at the opening session of the council's thirtieth quarterly meeting.

Research studies by the council, he said, indicate improved employment, reduced calls on welfare rolls, and significant increases in retail sales.

"The New England council's index of business activity which stood at 51.5 in March reached 93.3 in July," he said. "This is the highest level reached by this index since May of 1930. Improvement was noted in cotton and wool consumption, shoe production, carloadings, power production and employment.

SALES INCREASE

"Retail sales showed a particularly significant change from a point well below the corresponding month of 1932 in the early part of the year to a point as high as 25 per cent above 1932 for the month of August in large shopping centers such as Boston and Providence."

Reviewing the reconstruction program in New England, Sharpe pointed out that "the public works section of the National Recovery Act has as yet had little direct effect in the way of increased employment in New England. A considerable number of proposals have been submitted to the State advisory boards for their consideration, some of which have been recommended to Washington for favorable action," he said, "but of these only a limited number have been announced as approved."

Declaring the work of the Home Owners Loan Corp. as "in its initial stages," Sharpe said that the experience of this organization in Connecticut, where to date seven loans have been made, is probably typical. From the Federal Relief Administration the six New England States have received several million dollars, which they have in turn distributed to cities and towns for welfare uses, he pointed out.

FEWER NEEDY PERSONS.

In this connection he noted "a sharp decrease in the number of families receiving relief in the three industrial states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut." The decreases were 1 per cent in Massachusetts and 22 per cent in each of the other two states. The total number of families removed from the welfare rolls in the three states was approximately 21,000, he stated.

BILLION DOLLAR LOANS READY FOR INDUSTRY

Washington, Sept. 15—Credit inflation projects were carried forward today in four directions by federal officials.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation made available a billion dollars for loans to industry through banks and trust and mortgage companies.

The Federal Reserve Board continued increasing bank reserve deposits by purchases of government securities.

At the Treasury, officials coordinated efforts to have every bank, not hopelessly insolvent, on a sound basis by Jan. 1.

The public works administration moved to speed expenditure of its $3,000,000,000 fund to put more money into industrial and trade channels.

In addition, Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee indicated monetary inflation may be undertaken at an early date to help raise commodity prices.

Jesse Jones, chairman, who announced the RFC's new liberalized credit policy, described it as "inflation—in the form of credit." His plan involved emergency 3 per cent loans for up to six-months periods to banks and trust and mortgage companies that agree to relend the money at 5 per cent to industry for meeting material and payroll charges and to "assist merchants especially affected by the NRA."

Jones announced a cut in the RFC's basic interest rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, effective Oct. 1.

Officials estimated that Federal Reserve member banks have on deposit in reserve banks $600,000,000 more than the percentage of time and demand deposits required by law. This money was said to be available for business loans.

Ends Life Facing Trial

Berlin, Sept. 15 (INS)—Friedrich Knoepfke, former business manager of the Berlin Radio Corp., facing trial on charges of graft and corruption, committed suicide today.

Blue Eagle Dance -:- -:- Puts Steps in NRA

Three of the important steps in the NRA dance, known as the Blue Eagle Waltz, are the wing step, the running waltz and the square waltz. Being put together they form the most important parts of the newest terpsichorean gift to New England dancing. It is expected that this dance will be officially approved when the dancing teachers meet in convention this week. The steps are being demonstrated by Helen Whitten, president of the Dancing Teachers' Club of Boston and Warren McMath of Auburndale. Try it—Get NRA steps and swings. (Boston American photos.)

Ship in Distress Off Jersey Coast

Washington, Sept. 15 (US)—Pounded by high seas, forerunner of a hurricane nearing the Atlantic coast, a schooner was in distress one and a half miles off Long Port, N. J., the United States Coast guard announced.

Lifeboats from the Great Egg station were battling their way through the surf to the rescue.

The name of the schooner and how many are aboard was not learned.

Gives Cigarets When Bandits Ask Cash

Walter Klayman, 40, proprietor of a store at 40 North Russell st., was ordered to "hand over the cash and be quick about it" by two gunmen as he was closing shop early today.

Klayman reached into the counter and brought out cigarettes. He coolly ordered the gunmen to "take these and go about your business." They did. Investigation by police failed to find the surprised bandits.

Tame Crow Mourned by School Children

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15—Pat, a tame black crow, endeared himself to the school children of suburban Thornburg. He'd pluck clothes pins from lines and caw in glee as the clothes fell to the ground. He'd follow the children to school and then peek at the window panes after the teacher put him out.

Last week he disappeared and when he returned he went on a hunger strike. Today the children are mourning his death.

Attorney Engaged to Pittsburgh Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Cohn of Marlborough st., Pittsburgh, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Cohn, to Sumner Poorvu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Poorvu of Sewall ave., Brookline.

Miss Cohn is a graduate of Goucher College, Baltimore, Md. Mr. Poorvu is a graduate of Boston University Law School. He is an attorney. Mr. Poorvu is a member of the Dartmouth Club, University Club and the Pine Brook Valley Country Club.

BLUE EAGLE NEW WALTZ STEP

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

The Blue Eagle of the NRA has gone terpsichorean, thanks to the ingenuity of a Waltham dancing teacher.

Helen M. Whitten, president of the Dancing Teachers' Club of Boston, originated the patriotic waltz under the name of the Blue Eagle and next week when the dancing teachers meet in conference at the Pioneer Hotel, Boston, she will introduce it.

Its swinging rhythm is indicative of the eagle's flight. It bids fair to become a popular ballroom step in these days of Blue Eagle consciousness.

Included in the entire dance number are four types of waltz steps: the canter waltz; old-fashioned waltz; hesitation and running waltz. Put these altogether to 16 measures of music and you have what will soon be a by-word in local dance halls, the Blue Eagle waltz.

In explaining her dance creation, Mrs. Whitten said:

"The man starts to the left, taking two canter waltz steps forward, then one wing step to the right and one canter to the right and reverse with his partner. This depicts the spread of the eagle wing.

"This is followed by three running steps on left of the partner and one waltz step, turning half around and finishing back to the line of direction. Then three running steps back and one reverse waltz, turning half to the finish, once more facing line of direction. This depicts the flight of the eagle.

"Then finally to rhythmically place NRA on the square, the couple does the square waltz for eight measures, arching into position ready to start all over again."

A demonstration of the Blue Eagle waltz will be given by Mrs. Whitten and her partner at the four-day convention of Boston dance teachers when it opens Sept. 19.

Roosevelt to Attend Rites for Usher

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt today arranged to attend funeral services for Irwin H. Hoover, chief usher at the White House, who died suddenly last night of a heart attack.

These will be held tomorrow afternoon in the chapel of Glenwood cemetery and will be conducted by the chief of Army chaplains, Julian E. Yates.

Mrs. Roosevelt is returning from her camp in the Adirondacks for the service, and James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, also is coming.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt offered the White House for the service but the family of the deceased decided to hold only a very simple service at the cemetery.

JEWEL ROBBERS SOUGHT IN N. Y.

Worcester, Sept. 15—Boston insurance investigators joined police here today in checking up the daring jewel robbery at Union Station Wednesday night in which Arthur Bower, New York salesman, was relieved at gunpoint of a black bag containing gems valued at $100,000.

After a day of investigation police are convinced now that Bower was the victim of a gang of New York jewel thieves. They believe the gang trailed him for the past 10 days while he was making a trip through New England, finally carrying out the robbery here.

It was first thought the thieves had headed toward Boston to make their escape. Now, however, it is believed they swung over to the new Springfield and New York cut-off and headed for the latter city.

NEW HURRICANE HEADS NORTH

Washington, Sept. 15 (INS)—Hurricane warnings were ordered by the weather bureau today from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and storm warnings north of Hatteras to Boston following reports of a tropical disturbance of great intensity east of Savannah.

Indications were winds of hurricane force will reach the coast late tonight or early Saturday.

Persons living in weaker-constructed houses in all the threatened areas have been ordered to move out before the storm strikes. Families all along the Virginia and Carolina coasts are digging in against the hurricane.

Along the Mexico north coast, fears are felt already for the tug Cernicalco, with two tankers, and the Don Juan and Arturo, already two days overdue and caught in the general storm.

The Keyhole on the News

Cooling System

Col. Frederic Barker, a Pilgrim descendant, is again sojourning at Plymouth after a lengthy visit in China. Among his interesting narraties is one regarding two aged men seated at a great public festival in the open air.

They were proud of the century-old fans they were using and compared them, for in China the particular pride of the aged is that they have been most careful of family possessions in the interest of economy.

"This fan," said one, "has been in our family four centuries, my brother. You see I open but one-eighth of it at a time!"

The other aged man held a huge fan spread before him.

"My exalted family has kept this fan for countless centuries," he explained. "We do not move the fan. We move our bodies back and forth, like this."

Sad Origin

Since he is engaged in the pleading and arguing business Attorney Jack Dunn gets around to any debate or address that might be of interest. He has a collection of "boners" made by speakers and debaters that is both long and funny.

For example during the last presidential campaign he attended a debate at Boston University at which the qualifications of the candidates were fully discussed. One of the debaters referred to the fact that both of Herbert Hoover's parents died before he was 12 years old.

"Most of my opponent's remarks may be regarded as irrelevant," he said. "I fail to see why this discussion is affected by the fact that Herbert Hoover was born an orphan."

GUY GIVES 'TIP' TO BANKS: 'BE SAFE FIRST'

Arthur Guy, state banking commissioner, went into the speakers lineup at the convention of the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts at Swampscott today as a pinch hitter when A. A. Berle, Roosevelt "brain truster" and former Harvard prodigy, failed to arrive to deliver an address.

Speaking extemporaneously, the banking commissioner sought to give the 600 bankers in his audience a bit of advice. He said that he did not blame them for the nation's economic chaos, and ventured the opinion that conditions might be relieved considerably if the R. F. C. took a chance once in a while in extending loans.

He advised bankers to liquify their assets as much as possible and to confine their operations to their own neighborhoods.

Most important, he said, is that they remember that the income on a loan must always be held secondary to the safety of small depositors.

Rutherford Smith president of the Dorchester Savings Bank and chairman of the associations legislative committee, said the day of strict national supervision for all banks is not far distant. But he doubted whether congressional wisdom was equal to the task that this implied.

Most interesting to the layman was the report of Robert B. McGaw, chairman of the committee on bank protection. He was strongly oposed to the issuance of firearms to tellers and other bank employes because he said, most of them were incapable of using them. He also opposed the use of tear gas because the gas does more harm to employes, customers and bystanders than to robbers.

He favored installation of electric push-button alarm systems, connected directly with the nearest police station. He also urged the use of bullet-proof glass in tellers' windows and around telephone operators so that they might give alarm in safety.

Other speakers on the day's program were John H. Fahey of Worcester and Charles F. Cotter of Boston, both representing the Federal Home Loan Board.

Milkmaid Is Given Prize at Fair

Miss Sarah Threfall, 18, of South Hingham, went about her duties on the farm of her father today happy in the realization that she is the champion milkmaid of southeastern Massachusetts.

She won the title yesterday when she was adjudged the winner of the milking contest at the Brockton Fair. Plenty of practice won her the honor as she milks some eight or ten cows twice a day at her father's farm. She won a silver loving cup and a $10 cash prize when she was awarded the championship.

The fair was practically rained out yesterday, but the fair will receive $18,800 in rain insurance and $1500 more because the night stage show and fireworks could not be presented because of the storm.

SOMERVILLE POLICE LINK CAHILL WITH KILLING OF GIRL

ISSUE WARRANT TO HOLD HIM ON SECRET CLUE

of $1000 reward for arrest and conviction of the slayer by the Somerville aldermen at the behest of Mayor Murphy, who praised the Boston Evening American for its $5000 reward offer.

MAY SURRENDER

The widening search for Cahill, who knew Peggy and spent much time in the homes of his three sisters in Somerville near Peggy's home, went forward today without any new clue to his whereabouts although Dist. Atty. Bishop said:

"I would not be surprised if Cahill surrendered at my office or at Somerville police headquarters within the next 24 hours."

Cahill is known to have been in Boston Monday but beyond then has not been traced despite reports placing him in many sections of New England. Bishop said several "leads" were being checked. State detectives conferred at Somerville headquarters.

NEW EVIDENCE

Chief Damery held to his secret in regard to the "connecting link" under a heavy barrage of questioins from reporters, who had learned that some definite "break" had been made in the case, but he told of his convictions in regard to Cahill, and revealed he was ready to arrest him.

"Chief, is there any evidence now in your possession, beyond the fact that Cahill lived near the McCarthy girl, knew her, was seen in her vicinity before she disappeared, and disappeared himself shortly after the slaying, that would lead you to believe that Cahill was implicated in the murder?" reporters asked.

"There is," replied Chief Damery.

"What is it then? Is it a statement? Is it a conversation?"

The chief hesitated for some time and then replied:

BASIS OF WARRANT

"No. It is something definite. It's a tangible object. I can't tell you at this time what it is?

"When was it found?"

"Tuesday."

"It definitely connects Cahill with the case? Does it merely show that he knew the girl or was with her or does it implicate him in the crime?"

"It definitely connects him, in my opinion, with the crime itself."

"Would this definite link stand up in a court of law? Would it be sufficient to obtain a warrant charging Cahill with murder?"

Again the chief hesitated for some moment.

"In my opinion," he continued, "any court would grant me a murder warrant against Cahill on the evidence I now have. But I'm not going to apply for a warrant because there is no reason to do so. Already two John Doe murder indictments have been returned by a grand jury and they can be used for Cahill's arrest. For that matter we could arrest him without a warrant or indictment if we found him."

The find of hair and stains recalled a slight abrasion on the back of the little victim's head from which a slight quantity of blood had oozed, according to Medical Examiner David C. Dow.

FRIEND TALKED TO CAHILL

Detectives said they were convinced Cahill was alive through verification of his appearance in Boston after his car was found abandoned and his reported conversation with a friend who is also a reliable friend of one of the state detectives.

"How are you, Harry," the informant said he saluted Cahill.

"All right, how are you," he said Cahill replied.

He then said the conversation ran:

"What are you doing in town?"

"I'm planning to go to work at the garage (the Irvington st. garage, where Cahill was formerly employed), and I dropped in town to talk things over."

"When are you starting?"

"The first of the month, I expect."

The rest of the conversation was general, the informant said. No report of Cahill's abandoned car had been received at that time in Boston, he added.

The Somerville board of aldermen remained in session until early this morning to vote the offer of $1000 that followed the reward of $5000 posted by this newspaper the day Peggy McCarthy was found slain.

MAYOR MAKES APPEAL

Before the formal vote Mayor Murphy's communication was read to the board:

"One of the chief concerns of this administration has been the children of the city," it opened.

"Everything within reason, in view of conditions, has been done to promote their happiness, to protect and help them and to make their childhood years more enjoyable.

"A sad tragedy has occurred in our midst. One of these little ones, Margaret McCarthy of Marion st, was kidnaped in broad daylight and her lifeless body found a victim of strangulation.

"The brutal criminal who committed this murder must be apprehended and made to pay the extreme penalty.

"I have instructed the police to spare no effort or expense to locate the culprit. The children of Somerville must and shall be protected at any cost.

"All of the newspapers have cooperated splendidly with police officials in this matter as well as the public.

LAUDS BOSTON AMERICAN

"One newspaper, the Boston Evening American, has generously, and with a public spirit, offered a $5000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

"I want to publicly commend the Boston Evening American for this offer and thank that paper, as well as the other newspapers, for their co-operation.

"I respectfully request that your honorable board appropriate the sum of $1000 as a reward for the person or persons who furnish information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person who committed this crime."

At the conclusion of the letter Alderman Frank J. Greeley, in whose district the McCarthy family lives, warmly praised the $5000 offer of this newspaper also.

DESCRIPTION BROADCAST

Circulars for apprehension of Cahill, due to be completed by Monday, not only will be sent through New England but to all the principal cities of the country, Dist. Atty. Bishop announced.

Cahill is not charged with murder on the circulars but is listed as "Wanted for questioning on the murder of Peggy McCarthy of Somerville, 10."

Cahill's elderly parents, his brother and three sisters stoutly maintained their kin's innocence today in spite of the circumstantial net that seemed to be woven about him.

The family thoroughly believe the missing man dead, pointing out that his devotion to his infirm mother would be too great for him to resist event though he was connected with the strange case.

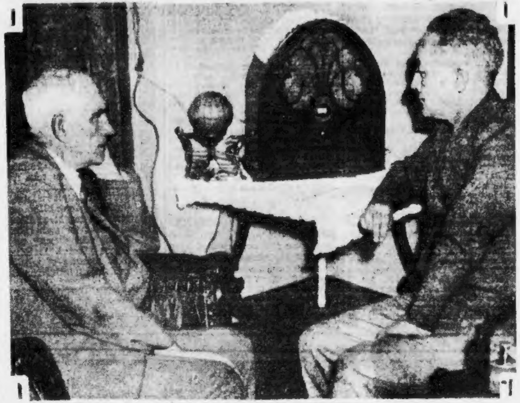
Kinsmen Wait Word -:- Of Missing Cahill



DANIEL W. CAHILL JAMES J. CAHILL

"If we only had news of him—any news!" Daniel W. Cahill, uncle, and James J. Cahill, brother of Harry P. Cahill, sought for questioning in the death of little Margaret McCarthy, anxiously listen in on hourly news bulletins telling the latest developments in the baffling Somerville death case. Both were questioned by Lawrence police as the widespread hunt continued today. (Boston American Photo.)

Description of Sought Man

Here is the description of Harry P. Cahill, to be broadcast on police circulars by Monday if he does not appear by then for questioning on the Peggy McCarthy case:

Age—45 years.

Weight—165 pounds.

Height—5 feet 10 inches.

Complexion—Medium.

Hair—Dark brown.

Eyes—Blue.

Clothing—Blue serge suit, dark felt hat, black tie, black shoes and stockings, nile green shirt.

Identifying marks—Scar on left eye when closed; one tooth missing on the upper left side; sunken cheeks; veins in the nose; wore a silver wrist watch with a leather strap.

The circular, to be sent over the entire country, will say that Cahill is "wanted for questioning."

MURPHY LAUDS AMERICAN

"One newspaper, the Boston Evening American, has generously, and with public spirit, offered a $5000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

"I want to publicly commend the Boston Evening American for this offer and thank that paper, as well as the other newspapers, for their co-operation."

Such is an excerpt from a letter of Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville that was read to the Board of Aldermen in that city before the board voted a $1000 reward for the capture of Peggy McCarthy's slayer.

To Mayor Murphy's words of praise for the offer of this newspaper were added those of Alderman Frank J. Greeley of Ward 2, in whose district the family of Peggy McCarthy resides.

Build Schools Now or Jails Later, Educators Warn

Washington, Sept. 15 (US)—"Build schools today or jails later."

This warning was flung at the Federal Government as educators met here today in emergency session to discuss means of assuring every child an education.

In announcing the program of the two-day session of the National Council of State Superintendents and Commissioners of Education, U. S. Commissioner of Education George F. Zook said one matter to be discussed was education for youths thrown out of employment by the NRA.

Charles A. Lee, superintendent of schools in Missouri and president of the National Council, said this matter was a direct challenge to the government which it must meet. He added:

"While the Federal Governmen has been carrying on a relentless war against crime, it has coincidentally thrown 100,000 youths out of work and onto the streets, where they become the greatest possible recruiting force for the criminal gangs of tomorrow. All are in favor of abolishing child labor, but now the government has gone this far it must take the next step and supply the schools to take these children off the streets.

"There were 2,000,000 children last year who had only part time schooling. It costs $300 a year to keep a criminal. A good educational program can be provided at $50 per year per pupil."

Chaplain Accepts Call to New Haven

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 15—The Rev. A. F. McKinney, Episcopal chaplain of the University of Pennsylvania, has been elected pastor of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church here.

Notified of the call, the Rev. Mr. McKenney accepted it and said he would take over the duties of the pastorate Nov. 15.

Cregg Pushes Probe in Girl Poisoning

Lawrence, Sept. 15—Although the Essex County grand jury now sitting here is expected to conclude its duties today, it is not believed Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg will present any evidence in connection with the poison death of Miss Laura Mailloux, 19, of this city.

Dist. Atty. Cregg declared he was not prepared to present evidence in connection with the case, which is now under investigation

U. S. DECORATES QUINCY HERO

Capt. Giles C. Stedman, of Quincy, master of the S. S. American Banker, today has the Navy Cross to add to the list of his decorations. The award, ordered by President Roosevelt, was made yesterday in New York.

Capt. Stedman was decorated for distinguished service in the rescue of 22 men from the sinking British freighter, Exeter City, in mid-Atlantic last January. He was master of the S. S. American Merchant at the time of the rescue.

NAVY AIR FLIGHT PROVES NEED FOR PLANES

By ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT,
Aviation Editor of Boston Evening American

Copyright, 1933, by Boston Evening American

America's air defense problems are as varied and intricate as its far-flung coast lines and island possessions.

Two unrelated but interesting events of the past few days bring to light not only our national responsibilities in this respect, but our opportunities as well.

One of these is the inspiring formation flight a few days ago of Lieut.-Comdr. Donald M. Carpenter and his crew of officers and men in six consolidated flying boats from Uorfolk (Va.), to Panama—2054 miles of nonstop flying in all sorts of weather.

Longer than any single leg in the flight of Italy's great Balbo to Chicago and return, the Navy's achievement has shown us that Uncle Sam's boys also know how to fly when they have something to fly in.

The other, unnoticed by the world in general, was the return to this country of a foreign journalist whose name need not be mentioned.

Here is the picture he paints:

Japan, with an island population of 70,000,000, is seeking "elbow room." Recent events in Manchuria do not, he declares, take care of Japan's problem in that direction, contrary to popular belief. The Philippine Islands, close to the Empire of the Rising Sun, offer an ideal outlet, commercially and racially, for Japan's teeming millions. Below and beyond the islands lies Australia, wealthy in natural resources.

It's a long jump from Australia to the subjects of our flying boats, one may say, but wait . . .

From a naval standpoint it would be an impossibility to prevent a major power taking the islands unless our entire fleet was based on their shores. Only one weapon remains aircraft.

EASY TRIO IN STAGE TEST

28—Former Boston newsboy whose stage career began with singing on street corners. Nationally favorite vaudeville comedian and ex-star of "Gay Paree."

29—The famous premiere ballerina, only dancer to make a name for herself on the radio. Featured in the Roxy Theater, New York, for several years.

Hires Quincy Hall to Air Grievance

Arthur A. St. John, 40, father of seven children and a Quincy aid recipient, once heard the phrase "Hire a Hall" and decided to do just that to air grievances which he claims he and other welfare recipients have against the city administration.

He paid $5 for the rental of a Quincy hall last night and aired a number of grievances against the administration.

Politician, Bride Honored at Party

Although Michael E. O'Brien, former president of the Medford board of aldermen and at one time a candidate for mayor, was secretly married, he and his bride were tendered a surprise party last night when they returned from their honeymoon. The impromptu reception was held at the home of Alderman and Mrs. Clarence E. Twombly, on Fellsway West, where Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien were dinner guests.

Only two days remain in the RKO Keith-Boston Vaudeville identification contest being held in conjunction with the Boston Evening American. All readers of this paper have an opportunity to share in $100 cash awards and 50 pairs of guest tickets to the Keith-Boston Theater.

Carefully write names of stars on each picture, hold them until the last photo is printed and then mail them to the RKO Vaudeville Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. This procedure must be followed, otherwise you will be disqualified.

The first prize is $25 in cash; $15 goes to the second winner; the third and fourth prize winners get $10 each, 20 $2 bills go to the next successful contestants and 50 pairs of tickets to the Keith-Boston Theater for the last 50 winners.

Newton Girl Glad on Her G.A.R. Job

St. Paul, Sept. 15 (AP)—Being called "honey" and "kitty" by 10,000 "grandpas," "uncles" and "brothers" is fine, Miss Katherine Flood said today.

Small, energetic Miss Flood of Chicago, national executive of the Grand Army of the Republic, is here waiting for approximately 1000 "boys" who will attend the 67th national encampment, which opens Sunday.

"Don't be surprised," said Miss Flood, "if you hear me address three or four of the 'boys' as grandpa. There will be more of my grandpas, uncles and brothers in St. Paul than you can shake a stick at." There are 10,138 veterans in the organization.

"And," she continued, "you'll hear a lot of them call me 'Honey' or 'Kitty.' I'm used to that. There are a lot of Darlings among them too."

Daughter of a Newton, Mass., veteran and a graduate of Radcliffe college, Miss Flood has been secretary of the G. A. R. for 15 years. She is the dynamo which keeps the organization running smoothly. Surviving veterans, said Miss Flood, average 89 years of age, with the youngest 82.

CUNNINGHAM IS NAMED SLAYER

Lawrence, Sept. 15—In a batch of 101 indictments and 15 no-bills returned today by the Essex county grand jury, Clifton W. Cunningham, who beat his 3-year-old daughter to death with a rock in Beverly, was indicted for first degree murder.

Cunningham, who claimed to be a "mercy slayer," has already been committed to the Bridgewater State Hospital for Criminal Insane, and the indictment probably will be nol-prossed.

A no-bill for manslaughter was returned for Marion Hilton of North Andover, as the result of an automobile accident, but she was indicted on charges of operating dangerously and leaving the scene of an accident.

"My daughter is fifteen. When she came to womanhood she was not very well. A friend of ours told us about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she took five bottles. It helped her nerves wonderfully. She is stronger in every way. We think that your Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine for young girls. I am glad to recommend it to other mothers with ailing daughters."—Mrs. Mary Baird, Washington, D. C.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Excellent for girls and women who are nervous and rundown.

When Your Daughter Comes to Womanhood

Most girls in their teens need a tonic and regulator. Give your daughter Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the next few months. Teach her how to guard her health at this critical time. When she is a happy, healthy wife and mother she will thank you.

"I felt weak and tired even though I went to bed early. My complexion was sallow. My face was thin and peaked. My nerves were ragged and I was hardly able to go to work. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and wondered if it would help me. After the first bottle I noticed a change. Others saw it too and remarked about it. Now my nervous headaches are gone, my complexion is lots nicer and I can work every day. It is a splendid medicine for girls." — Delmare Carpenter, 216 Grant St., Iowa Falls, Iowa.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES FOR FRANK BUCK TO "BRING-EM-BACK ALIVE!"

● ABOVE—FRANK BUCK lugged tons of rhinos, cobras, tigers, and gorillas across the Pacific to win his famous title, "Bring-'em-back-alive Buck." He has to keep his nerves healthy to follow his strange occupation of capturing wild animals alive!

● ABOVE—FRANK BUCK HAS SMOKED his way around the globe with Camels. He says, "I am a steady Camel smoker. Camels are milder, and they don't jangle my nerves."

● WHETHER YOU'RE ON A HOLIDAY, or hard at work, Camels are the cigarettes for steady smoking. Costlier tobaccos do make a difference.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

"It takes healthy nerves to bring 'em back alive," says Frank Buck. "It's a job packed with thrills, excitement, and real danger. I never would have been able to populate half the zoos in this country, cross the Pacific 20 times with tons of savage live cargo, and save my own life a half dozen times by quick action, if I didn't have healthy nerves. I am a heavy smoker, as you noticed if you saw my picture, 'Bring 'em Back Alive,' but I can smoke all I want because I smoke Camels. They don't upset my nerves. I prefer their mild, rich flavor, too."

° ° °

Turn to Camels and find out for yourself how true it is that Camel's costlier tobaccos taste better . . . and do not jangle the nerves. Begin today!

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You'll appreciate the mildness ...the flavor...the added pleasure in costlier tobaccos.

HARTER PROBE IN YARMOUTH

Yarmouth, Sept. 15—Members of the board of selectmen, one of whom was listed as an incorporator of the Club Casa Madrid property, called a conference today on the demand of Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner for a report on the status of the Yarmouth Beach Club charter.

The Yarmouth Beach Club, is listed as owner of the Casa Madrid property and Selectman Edward T. Chase is listed as an incorporator of that club.

Baruch Silent on U. S. Affairs

Quebec, Sept. 15—Bernard Baruch retutrned from Europe with the declaration that he is "simply a private citizen, in no way different from anyone else."

As he stepped ashore from the Empress of Britain from a European visit, started last July, he added he had been "just on a vacation trip."

He said he was not going to Washington, and disposed of all mentions of banks, financial matters and the American recovery program, with a smile and a shake of his head.

WIFE DIVORCES VANDERBILT

Carson City, Nev., Sept. 15—Adrienne R. Vanderbilt has obtained a divorce on grounds of desertion here from Joseph B. Vanderbilt, wealthy New Yorker, and member of socially prominent Vanderbilt family.

The terms of a property settlement agreement, which was approved by the court, were not revealed but it was understood among other things to provide that Vanderbilt would maintain a $100,000 life insurance policy with Mrs. Vanderbilt as beneficiary.

Voice of Broadway

By Louis Sobol

When Nights Were Gay!

There's some talk about reviving the famous Sunset Inn at Santa Monica, in California. It must have been a gay spot in its days. When Abe Lyman was directing his orchestra at the Paradise restaurant here, from a seat at a table in a far-off corner, he used to tell me about the place where he got his start. Night-after-night patrons were Wallie Reid, Mabel Normand and Rudolph Valentino. Most popular of the paying guests at the time was Roscoe Arbuckle, who never appeared without from six to a dozen people in his party. He always paid the check, and often picked up the checks of the parties at tables near him, whether he knew them or not. Charlie Chaplin, not quite so gray in those days, usually appeared with Edna Purviance—Mabel Normand with Mack Sennett; Harold Lloyd with his then leading lady, Bebe Daniels; Marshall Neilan with Blanche Sweet, his wife, and Gloria Swanson with Herbert Somborn. There was the night when the wife of a leading Western star spotted her husband at a table with a girl and yanker out a pair of her spouse's six-shooters and got into action.

There was another night when Buster Keaton, Arbuckle, Lloyd and Lew Cody broke up the dance to line up patrons for a game of baseball, with a French roll for a ball and a clarinet for a bat. Dance contests on Wednesday nights were usually won by Roscoe Arbuckle, with Valentino a runner-up. Arbuckle's favorite pastime was to flip butter balls at the ceiling with a fork and try to make them stick. It is at the Sunset Inn, too, I'm given to understand, that first real heavy wager was made between two stars on the since popular fly-and sugar game. That is, a bet on which lump of sugar a fly will land. Damon Runyan has it as one of the incidents in his magnificent flicker, "Lady for a Day." The guests would often join the orchestra—Chaplin playing the violin, Mickey Neilan the piano, Valentino the xylophone, Arbuckle the drums, while Keaton would insist on being the leader. Sunset Inn was finally closed by the reformers. It seems people were having too gay a time.

Last Lines!

Some day someone will have enough energy to unearth the last spoken lines of actors before they pass away. I wish I had the research mind—I'd like to do the job myself and get a column out of it, but I usually take the path of least resistance and let others do the digging. However, Joseph M. Kerrigan, the veteran Irish actor, at least gets me off to a start with John Drew as the subject. "Drew's last line on the stage," according to Kerrigan, was a sotto-voced smart crack he made at the time he knew his end was approaching. We were playing in a revival of 'Trelawney of the Wells' and had opened in Portland, Ore. He was stricken on the opening night, but revived, pulled himself together, and did the play with his old-time vigor without holding the curtain a minute. But on the third night he knew the end was near. He had a line which was my cue to lead the company from the stage. That line was "Conduct me to my box, sir!" As I led him to the wings, he whispered, 'Yes, sir, to my wooden box!' That was his last line on the stage. He collapsed and died shortly after."

Man and a Horse!

Out of a clear sky and with no ulterior motives, Marshall Neilan insists in telling me a story about the late Wilson Mizner and a horse. The horse, it seems, was presented to Mizner by some elderly gen in return for a favor. It wasn't much of a horse. It's ribs stuck out and it was slightly cross-eyed. It also had huge warts. Mizner needed some ready cash, so he decided to sell the horse. He dug up a prospect, who asked to see the nag run before he came to a decision. So Wilson had the posts advanced, as a result of which the horse ran the half-mile in something like two seconds under nothing—if you believed your eyes. The deal was consummated on the spot—Mizner walking off with $500. A few days later the horse was entered in a race by its new owner. Mizner wagered what he had left of the $500 on the favorite, Omega. Omega didn't win. But the skinny, cock-eyed horse which he had sold did—by three lengths.

Brunswick Egyptian Room Opens Tonight

L. C. Prior

The Egyptian Room of the Hotel Brunswick, famed for the past 16 years for its distinctive supper room, formally opens its winter season tonight with music by the Hotel Brunswick orchestra, Raymond Pugh, pianist.

Once more the ultimate in surroundings is provided by L. C. Prior, managing director of the Brunswick and Lenox hotels. The Egyptian Room was only recently done over. It has a new dance floor, new decorations; mirrors have been set into the columns. In its new guise of gold, silver and black the Egyptian Room presents itself as the most beautiful of Boston supper rooms.

A new innovation will be introduced in a moderately priced buffet dinner on Thursday evenings, served from 6 to 9 o'clock, with no cover charge.

DICTATOR SEEN FOR JAPAN

London, Sept. 15 (INS)—Japan is on the verge of a military dictatorship, pledged to a policy of large armaments and aggression abroad, the London Daily Herald stated today.

The newspaper claimed the appointment of Koko Hirota as new Japanese foreign minister was one of the steps being taken by War Minister Sadao Araki to abolish parliamentary government and place the government in the hands of a council responsible only to Emperor Hirohito.

Backed by the Japanese generals, according to the Herald, Araki insists the Japanese Navy shall be free of all treaty restrictions and demands more expenditures on behalf of the army.

Volstead Placed on Rum Board

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 15 (INS)—Andrew J. Volstead, father of the prohibition enforcement law, today is a member of the new state liquor control commission appointed by Gov. Floyd Olson to draft a liquor control plan for submission to the Legislature when repeal becomes a reality.

Dr. Lyons Out for School Committee

Dr. Joseph V. Lyons, Dorchester dentist, today entered the race for membership in the Boston school committee, taking out nomination papers at city hall.

He has served one four-year term on the committee, but failed of reelection two years ago. Last fall he failed to win the Democratic nomination for sheriff of Suffolk county.

ECKENER PLANS ZEPP SEA LINE

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, grizzled skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, paused in New York today en route to Akron, O., long enough to let it be known that clearing financial skies augured well for a future transatlantic airship service.

He will prepare for the Graf's visit to Chicago next month and to discuss with airship and business heads an oceanic Zeppelin line.

Dr. Eckener said he would stay in the United States about ten days before returning to Germany to skipper the Graf back via South America.

"I expect to discuss airship possibilities with Paul Litchfield, president of Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp., at Akron," he said.

"What has held us back in putting on a service between Europe and the United States is the business situation.

"We would need three ships—a little different from the Akron and the Macon—to establish a service on weekly schedule."

TEN FAMILIES FLEE BLAST

Peabody, Sept. 15—Police and fire officials here today were investigating the cause of a mysterious blast in a four-car garage in Tracy st., resulting in fire which drove ten families in nearby houses to the street.

The blast blew the roof off the garage and was followed at once by fire. Flames came dangerously close to three nearby tenement houses, but firemen succeeded in confining the blaze to the garage.

The ten families, however, fled from their homes, believing they would be destroyed by the fire. They were able to return after the fire was extinguished.

Civil Service Test for Navy Yard Job

The U. S. Civil Service Commission today announced an open competitive examination for helper, shipfitter, to fill vacancies in the navy yard service, Boston. The rates of pay are $4.08, $4.48 and $4.88 a day, subject to a deduction of 15 per cent as a measure of economy. Competitors will not be required to report for a written examination, but will be rated on their training, experience and fitness.

Applications must be filed with the labor board, Boston navy yard, on or before September 28.

Everett Mayor Seeks Re-election

Mayor Michael C. O'Neill, of Everett, formally announced his candidacy for re-election today. There are already 11 candidates for mayor in the field, four of whom are former mayors. Mayor O'Neill stated that he would issue a statement in relation to his candidacy within a week or two. It was generally believed the statement would make references to the grand jury indictments found against him.

Rycroft Made Sergeant

Patrolman John W. Rycroft, for six years a member of the Lexington police department, has been appointed a sergeant by the selectmen.

COOK ADMITS 29 MILTON BREAKS

Howard C. Cook, 28-year-old bridegroom-burglar of Glendale rd., Weymouth, was held for the grand jury in a total of $22,700 bail today when arraigned in Quincy court on 29 more counts of breaking and entering and larceny in Milton and Braintree.

The newly-married burglar, who was captured a month after he took a bride is already serving sentences totalling four years and eight months in Dedham jail on 12 previous charges of larceny.

Today he pleaded guilty to all 29 counts, but Judge Kenneth Johnson waived jurisdiction and placed his case before the grand jury.

Dr. Charles L. Beach, College Head, Dies

Storrs, Ct., Sept. 15 (AP)—Dr. Charles Lewis Beach, president of Connecticut State College for 20 years, until his resignation in 1928 because of ill health, died today from a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 77 years old. He was president emeritus since his retirement.

In recent years Dr. Beach devoted considerable time and money to a collection of oil paintings which he gave to the college in memory of his wife. The collection is valued at $40,000.

'Jimmy' Walker Done With Politics, Lauds Roosevelt

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service)

Evian Les Bains, France, Sept. 15—James John "Jimmy" Walker, formerly mayor of New York, is not a candidate for public office now or at any other time, and his future as a citizen, rather than a politician, "depends on circumstances."

Such were his declarations here today in the first extended interview he has given since he resigned as mayor.

It is a fact, however, that Walker has received some alluring offers for business. He admitted that two persons who were dickering to buy the New York Giants offered him the presidency if they succeeded in the purchase. This offer, he said, he would consider "in due course."

Of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the one man perhaps more than any other who was responsible for Walker resigning office while under fire, he said:

"I am not only hopeful, but optimistic that the Roosevelt program is the road to recovery. At least, it is true that his program has no competition, and, like Washington and Lincoln, he is not without his critics, who want him to fail so they may succeed him."

No. Andover Calls Vote on Water Job

North Andover, Sept. 15—A special town meeting will be held here on Sept. 25 to consider two articles whereby the town water works system may be extended, with the hope that the town may carry on this work by receiving a share in the benefits of the federal loan grants under the recovery act. The board of public works has approved the two articles in face of the need for the work. If the federal loan cannot be obtained, the work would not be undertaken, it was pointed out.

Hiccoughers and Baldheads Get Hope

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—Hiccoughs, regardless of how contracted, can be controlled and eliminated by a treatment by a physical therapeutist, Dr. Arthur N. Schanche of Iowa State College, said in an address before the American College of Physical Therapy today.

He said the same thing was true of alopecia areata (baldness in spots) or a general run-down condition, which might lead to nervous disease.

BOSTON TESTED AMERICAN

LIGHT COLORED CHILI SAUCE

12 large ripe tomatoes
2 onions
3 green peppers
2 tbsps. salt
2 cups vinegar
1 tbsp. cinnamon.

Peel the tomatoes and onions and chop, separately, very fine; add the peppers chopped and the other ingredients, except the spice and cook for 1½ hours. Add the cinnamon last. Spice, especially if cooked with the tomatoes, darkens the finished product.

PARFAIT MAZARIN

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
5 egg whites, stiffly beaten
2 sqs. unsweetened chocolate
2 cups cream, whipped
1 tbsp. vanilla

Cook the sugar and water together until a small amount of the syrup forms a soft ball in cold water, or spins a long thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon (238 F.). Pour the syrup in a fine stream over the egg whites, beating constantly. Continue to beat until the mixture is cool. Fold in the chocolate, cream and vanilla. Pour into a mold, filling it to overflowing, cover with a waxed paper, pressing cover tightly down over paper. Pack in equal parts of salt and ice and let stand for three or four hours, or place in automatic refrigerator trays and let stand for three or four hours. Serve in parfait glasses with a garnish of whipped cream. Makes 1¼ quarts of parfait.

APRICOT DAINTIES

Pastry: Sift 1½ cups flour with ½ tsp. salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening. Add cold water to make a stiff dough (5-6 tbsps.). Roll out and cover inverted muffin pans. Prick bottom and sides and bake in hot oven (450 F.) 10-15 minutes.

Filling:
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. corn starch
1 cup scalded milk
2 egg yolks, beaten

Sift the dry ingredients, add the hot milk, stirring constantly. Cook until slightly thickened. Cool. Fill tart shells and top with apricot meringue.

Apricot Meringue

Mash ½ cup drained, cooked apricots. Add 3 tbsps. sugar, ½ tsp. lemon juice. Beat two egg whites stiff, add the apricot mixture. Beat until fluffy.

MRS. M. L. KENNEY

ORANGE ROLL BISCUIT

(Delicious Served with Tea or Coffee)

Mix and sift 2 cups flour, 4 tsps. baking powder and ½ tsp. salt. Cut in two tbsps. shortening and add ¾ cup milk. Pat the dough into an oblong shape, spread lightly with melted butter and sprinkle with finely chopped candied orange peel and granulated sugar. Roll up, cut in slices ½ inch thick and bake in a hot oven until lightly browned. Remove from the oven, cool and spread with a tsp. of orange icing on the top of each.

Icing

Beat one egg yolk with two tbsps. orange juice and a pinch of salt. Stir in 1½ cups confectioner's sugar until the icing is the consistency of heavy whipped cream. (Makes about 20 biscuits.)

MRS. MARION WANAMAKER
81 Oakland ave., Arlington, Mass.

GINGERBREAD CUSTARD

1 cup stale gingerbread, broken in pieces
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 pt. milk

Scald the milk, beat the egg yolks and sugar together. Add the scalded milk to the egg yolks gradually. Pour over gingerbread which had been broken into a buttered baking dish. Place in a pan of warm water and bake at 350 F., for 30 minutes or until set. Cover with a meringue made from the egg whites, beaten until frothy. Add 6 tbsps. granulated sugar and ¼ tsp. vanilla. Brown in a 300 F. oven for about 15 minutes.

CHARLOTTE T. SMART
40 Knox st., Millinocket, Me.

ECONOMY PUT TOGETHER

½ lb. flank steak, or left over roast
4 tbsps. shortening
2 onions
1 green pepper, sliced
1 cup left over cooked vegetables
1 cup diced celery
1 cup tomato soup
1½ tsps. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
8 stuffed olives, sliced

Cut the meat in thin slices. Heat skillet and melt the shortening in it. Fry the meat in it rapidly until brown and crisp. Remove the meat from the pan and add the onion and pepper and cook until soft. Add tomato soup, celery, seasonings. Simmer until onions and celery are tender. Add the left over vegetables (peas, beans or carrots) and olives. Cook until well heated through and serve with steamed rice.

Silk Strikers Get More Than Demands

Willimantic, Ct., Sept. 15 (INS)—More than 1700 workers of the Willimantic silk, kobe and corn spinning mills, on strike here for eight weeks, prepared to return to work today when company officials announced a wage settlement that more than met strikers' demands.

Max Stein, president of the three affiliated companies, at a conference in New York with textile workers and others, agreed to raise the rate for weavers from $1.32 per 100,000 picks to $1.90, or 5 cents more than demanded.

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—A transcontinental night flight trophy race, said to be the first of its kind, was announced today by John S. Reaves, managing director of the National Air Pageant scheduled for Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Oct. 7 and 8.

The race is scheduld to start from Grand Central Airport, Glendale, Cal., Oct. 2 and will be run in two legs over a 2660-mile course to Roosevelt Field, N. Y. The course will follow the Transcontinental Western Air, lighted mid-continental route, with the half-way control point in Wichita, Kan.

'God With Us' Now Hitler's Motto

Berlin, Sept. 15 (INS)—Hailing the death of democratic parliamentarism and the foundation of a National Socialist constitution in Prussia, Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, state premier, delivered a fighting speech today as the Prussian state council was sworn into office.

Goering read a proclamation of allegiance to Hitler and announced that Hitler had officially restored the famous "lightning and sword claws" to the gold Prussian eagles, plus this motto:

"God is with us."

NATIONAL HEADS IN CODE WAR TO MEET HERE

This city will be the scene of a national gathering of retail experts next Monday and Tuesday, with particular interest attached to the gathering, which will feature discussion of the NRA and its relation to distribution and other modern business problems.

The conference, to be held at the University Club, is sponsored by the Boston Retail Trade Board in co-operation with Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. Outstanding speakers will discuss all phases of the NRA.

SCHOOL CODE PLANNED

Meanwhile NRA activities here are brisk with the speakers' and consumers' committees operating at full schedule. Speakers from the former bureau cover 10 or more meetings each night and officials say calls for speakers are increasing daily.

The consumers' committee is planning to contact every local organization in the State to ask co-operation with patriotic employers and to guard against too rapid an advance in prices.

The committee of the State Recovery Board in charge of the Junior NRA has adopted a motion drafted from a suggestion of Supt. of Schools Patrick Campbell regarding the type of co-operation Boston school authorities desire to give and would give to the Junior NRA.

As a result of this a carefully planned educational program will be launched in the near future among the youth of the state, particularly among the school children. No attempt will be made to organize the children in a group or in local groups. The children will be approached as individuals on the same basis as the Junior Red Cross.

FILENE ON RADIO

It is believed this will develop mass enthusiasm and support through the co-operation of each individual child. The campaign will also be carried to youthful members of welfare bodies, and college students.

A Lincoln Filene in a radio address over Station WAAB last night urged the elimination of wasteful competitive practices in industries which add to the ultimate cost to the consumer as an important factor in the success of the NRA.

2 Drops Blood Tell on Too Much 3.2

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP) A new simple finger-prick test for alcoholic intoxication was reported to the American Chemical Society today.

As a purely incidental finding while proving up this test the reporter told of three men and one woman who drank four bottles of 3.2 beer in 15 minutes, on empty stomachs. The alcohol in their blood coming from the beer proved to be less than half the volume which causes intoxication. It was just about enough to cause a sensation of warmth for a person in a warm room.

The usual blood test takes enough blood to be painful to most persons. The finger-prick test [illegible] requires only two drops.

It was described by Dr. [illegible] Friedmann, W. G. Motel and Henrich Necheles of the University of Chicago.

Dr. M. X. Sullivan of Georgetown University reported that persons suffering from arthritis have less than the normal amount of sulphur in their finger nails. Using the finger nail sulphur test to diagnose, sulphur was given twice a week until the nails showed a normal amount.

These results, said Dr. Sullivan, suggest that in arthritis there are poisonous substances in the body which use up too much of the normal sulphur supply. This, he added, may explain the finding that rheumatic persons should be given sulphur.

MULLONEY BANK SUED BY GUY

... to obtain in excess of $[illegible] alleged to have been [illegible] depositors by the [illegible] part of the Federal National.

[illegible] dent Mulloney [illegible] which enabled him to [illegible] own officers [illegible] but were all [illegible] and will.

Cornelius J. Corcoran prevailed upon the Lawrence Trust Co. to issue 18,000 new shares of stock, of which 17,700 shares were later transferred to Mulloney and gave him control over the Lawrence institution, according to the allegations.

LISTS "BAD" LOANS

Loans totaling $1,126,000 were thereafter made from the Lawrence Trust Co. to financially irresponsible parties, the allegations say, "and loans were made upon unsound, inadequate and grossly overvalued securities."

The loans mentioned were made upon the notes of the following persons, according to the [illegible]:

Theodore M. Logan, vice president of the Federal National, $200,000.

Federal National Company, a subordinate of the Federal National—$300,000.

J. M. Emerson, a director of the Federal National—$100,000.

Joseph H. O'Neil, chairman of the board of the Federal National—$100,000.

F. F. Deery, brother of Banker John A. Deery, now in jail, who was a director of the Federal National—$100,000.

L. B. Fenderson, treasurer and director of the closed Inman Trust Company, an affiliate of the Federal National—$100,000.

Daniel J. Mulloney, his brother, J. F. Mulloney, and A. J. Brady, a joint note—$126,000.

DEMANDS SECURITIES

The latest suit does not [illegible] to say who [illegible] the borrowers made of the [illegible] large borrowings. It does allege that the Federal National promptly reached out to other affiliated banks, including the Brockton Trust Company and the Middlesex National [illegible] and brought in mortgages and other securities to the amount of the borrowings made from the credit of the Lawrence Trust Company.

The closed trust company has the notes of the borrowers. It wants from the Federal National the mortgages and securities which the Federal National held in exchange for these notes.

Officers of the Federal National claimed in the suit to have been subject to the [illegible] of Mulloney were named in the suit as follows:

Theodore M. Logan, vice president; J. T. Morrissey, vice president and cashier; A. W. Chisholm, assistant vice-president; Joseph T. O'Neil, chairman of the board; J. L. Fallon, auditor; P. J. Baird, H. M. Burton, J. A. Deery, J. M. Emerson, Theodore M. Logan, T. J. Falvey, W. H. Mahoney and Joseph H. O'Neil.

Shortly after acquiring control of the Lawrence Trust Co. the Federal National named J. T. Morrissey, Frank A. Farrell and Charles A. McCarron as among its directors, according to the allegations. The name of McCarron has appeared as a borrower in suits brought by other banks against the Federal National.

Milk Agreement Policy Changed

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP) A new policy on milk agreements that includes a 30-day trial period during which only farm prices and maximum retail prices will be fixed has been announced by the farm adjustment administration.

During the 30-day [illegible] period the farm administration will get evidence from the [illegible] distributors on which to [illegible] retail milk prices. If [illegible] no satisfactory retail [illegible] can be worked out the final agreement will set only maximum [illegible] for the protection of the consumer.

DELICIOUS CEREAL OVERCOMES COMMON CONSTIPATION

ALL-BRAN Provides "Bulk," Vitamin B and Iron

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN meets a basic need of the American diet. It supplies "bulk" so helpful in correcting common constipation. In eleven years ALL-BRAN has won millions of [illegible] friends.

New tests show added reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory experiments prove that in addition to "bulk" it provides vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from constipation can be overcome by this pleasant cereal. How much better than using pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN is mild. Its "bulk" is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Another benefit of ALL-BRAN is that it has twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MRS. FRANKLIN W. HOBBS HAS RETURNED from her lovely summer estate in Marion in time to have charge of receiving [illegible] benefit performances of Eva Le Gallienne's famous creation, "Alice in Wonderland, which the [illegible] ment committee of the Free Hospital for Women [illegible] fortunate enough to obtain for two performances on Friday, [illegible] ber 20 . . . the proceeds will be [illegible] the splendid work of the hospital.

MRS. B. H. BRISTOW DRAPER

Having the matinee [illegible] additional opportunity for friends of the hospital to share with the younger members of the family this [illegible] ing and unique entertainment [illegible] is a rare treat for all ages . . . if you have a sense of humor.

Mrs. Gelston King, chairman of the committee, and her [illegible] Mrs. Ralph Bradley, Miss Elisabeth C. Barr, Mrs. Theodore E. Brown, Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper, Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott, Mrs. G. Richmond Fearing, Mrs. George R. Fearing, 3d, Mrs. William B. Frothingham, Mrs. [illegible] W. Greenough, Mrs. Bartlett Hayward, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. [illegible] Saltonstall, Miss Elizabeth Stackpole, Mrs. Edward A. Taft, Mrs. Chandler Wells, Mrs. Ross Whistler, and Mrs. Moses Williams, chairman of the ladies board, are to be congratulated on their success in helping to persuade Eva Le Gallienne to leave New York where during the entire 1932-33 season, "Alice in Wonderland" played to sold out houses . . . We have heard many Bostonians register disappointment in being unable to procure seats for the play on their visits to New York . . .

The plays sponsored by this energetic committee have always been outstanding social and artistic successes . . . The patroness list for this occasion includes many very distinguished names, Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, Miss Martha Alford, Mrs. Hobart Ames, Miss Sarah Andrews, Miss F. St. J. Badwin, Mrs. Elbra L. Barker, Mrs. Frank B. Bemis, Mrs. Thomas Brooks, Mrs. Josiah H. Child, Mrs. John S. Codman, Mrs. Frederick S. Converse, Mrs. Howard Coonley, Mrs. John P. Cotton, Mrs. Louis Curtis Jr., Mrs. Arthur E. Davis, Mrs. Leavitt L. Edgar, Mrs. Henry Endicott, Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner and Mrs. R. Cushing Hamlen.

Others on Patroness List

OTHER PROMINENT NAMES ON THE patroness list include Miss Alison Haughton, Mrs. Marland C. Hobbs, Mrs. James M. Hunnewell, Miss Hyams, Mrs. Theodore Jones, Mrs. Henry P. King, Mrs. Louis Kirstein, Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr., Mrs. Arthur D. Little, Mrs. Arthur T. Lyman, Mrs. F. William Marlow, Jr., Mrs. John W. Myers, Mrs. Richard C. Paine, Mrs. James A. Parker, Mrs. Samuel E. Peabody, Mrs. Frank A. Pemberton, Mrs. John B. Pierce, Mrs. Harold A. Pitman, Mrs. John Rock, Miss Mary O. Porter, Miss Margery Richardson, Miss Alice Sargent, Mrs. Charles P. Searle, Mrs. Edward B. Sheehan, Mrs. Clifford Smith, Mrs. George Van S. Smith, Mrs. Henry P. Smith, Miss Faith Stanwood, Mrs. Alexander S[illegible], Mrs. Richard G. Wadsworth, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. George E. Warren, Mrs. William Whitman, Mrs. William Lawrence Wood and Mrs. Joseph F. Woods.

Miss Le Gallienne worked two years devising this production, which consists of 23 scenes flashing in and out in the manner of a dream. Alice herself never leaves the stage . .

The actress realized at the beginning that all the action is seen through Alice's eyes so she must be on the stage to give the correct interpretation . . . she also realized that Alice could not go into Wonderland without a Tenniel background, as it was thus that she appeared in the illustrations when the book was first published in 1865.

The play, therefore, remains faithful to Lewis Carroll and also to Sir John Tenniel . . . the costumes and sets have recaptured the humor and satire of the book and the musical accompaniment has just enough humor and fantasy to catch the spirit of Alice and the characters she meets in Wonderland.

Phelan Girls to Visit Fair

THE THREE ATTRACTIVE PHELAN GIRLS, Virginia, Priscilla and Patricia, are leaving next Monday to accompany their genial father, Mr. James J. Phelan, on a trip to Chicago to take in the Century of Progress . . .

Patricia Phelan

En route they will make a brief visit with James J. Phelan, Jr., and his family in Detroit.

The Phelans are all happy to have Mrs. Phelan back from the hospital after her recent serious illness; she is, of course, not able to accompany her brood on their interesting trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Milton Lyons and young son, James Phelan Lyons, have deserted the Gordon Abbott cottage at West Manchester, which they occupied for the summer [illegible] they have returned to their winter [illegible] New York. Mrs. Lyons is a daughter of the James J. Phelans.

Millwood Hunt Opens Season

MEMBERS OF THE MILLWOOD HUNT CLUB have started their early morning invasions of the surrounding countryside . . . the fall hunting season has been inaugurated with runs every Tuesday and Thursday mornings and Saturday afternoons. The afternoon runs end up at the most enjoyable teas . . . members entertain at their homes.

Prominent among members of Millwood are the Reggie Birds, Miss Patricia Bird, Mrs. William Clark, Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, Mrs. Charles Macomber, Mrs. William Long.

Mr. George Lamson owns the foxes and much of the hunting equipment. A visit to his farm in Framingham Center is a rare treat.

Mrs. Saltonstall Heads Sponsors

Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall is chairman of the patroness committee for the opening this evening of "Damaged Lives" at the Majestic Theater. This photoplay which was produced in Hollywood, will be shown under the auspices of the American Social Hygiene Association and the Massachusetts Society for Social Hygiene.

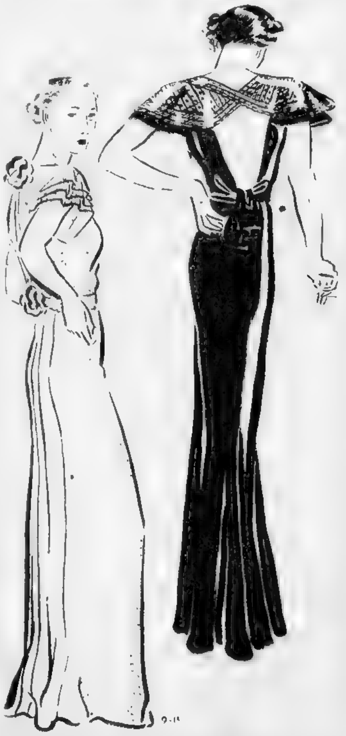
Evening Clothes for College



Swathed Mermaid Silhouette replaces summer frills, as told in the accompanying article describing the latest details.

A CHANGING calendar brought in a new evening silhouette for young college girls, a swathed mermaid shape, curve and slim. These new fashions are full of charm and need never be too sophisticated [illegible] don't [illegible] [illegible] outfalines. Many of the [illegible] gowns [illegible] gay and perky bodice tops.

If you share most girls' love for [illegible] for evening, look twice at the tricky black [illegible] dress with metal cloth top on the girl of college age in the illustration. The [illegible] an ideal arrangement for softening the appearance of an otherwise slinky dress.

Some fragile young things, torn between the new silhouette and memories of their own charming feminine picture in dainty ruffles this summer, have a happy compromise in the other type of junior evening gown in the sketch. Where once were flaring ruffles now there are soft little frills modified and simple. To be sure the skirt is slim and smooth, but the flattering effect of ruffles on the shoulders has hardly been changed. A color combination like this one, melon domino-crepe trimmed in rich woody brown, is delightful.

There is some talk of the use of fine wool in the evening, severely plain in treatment, perhaps so much so as to be only appropriate for more sophisticated seniors, and not so good for their younger schoolmates.

Taffetas grow increasingly important. In black, purplish blues, new berry colors, rich reds and woody browns, they're quaint and suggestive of a bygone carriage age.

Satins share equal honors with velvet in the popularity line-up. Such devices as demure necklines, touches of white fur about the shoulders, slightly puffed sleeves, petticoat ruffles at the hems and bows in back give an effect that manages to be young and charming.

Before you shop, we have a recommendation. Look for the adorable little quilted taffeta evening jackets that have amusingly tiny muffs to match, as well as the odd-looking Chinese mandarin jackets of exquisitely embroidered satin, made to accompany plain little satin dresses.

3 Boston Doctors Honored by Academy

Chicago, Sept. 15—William L. Clark of Philadelphia was elected president of the Academy of Physical Medicine.

Mrs. Crosby to Attend Bridal in Japan

Mrs. Stephen Van R. Crosby and her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Crosby Coonale of White Commons, Topsfield, are leaving the North Shore next week and are going to the West Coast to sail from there the 23rd of September for the Orient.

They are going to attend the marriage in Tokyo of their cousin, Miss Elizabeth Grew, daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew, and Cecil Lyon of New York.

Mrs. Crosby and her daughter will spend some time in China and other sections of Asia before returning to this country early in the year.

New Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE NEWS OF THE DAY IS that the migratory birds of fashion are fluttering cityward by twos and by threes just at present. Soon it will be flocks and all about the shopping district you will see them in smart early fall feathers looking for the latest in this and that.

One smartly garbed migratory bird seen doing the shops the other day was Mrs. Ronald Cordingly, who has summered at Cohasset. She was as brown as the proverbial berry, and looking as though tennis, bathing and the occasional golf game she told us of had thoroughly agreed with her.

She looked as trig and tailored as ever in a navy frock and matching sailor hat trimmed with white, her polo coat, the latest cut, and one more touch for the completion of the picture. Her arms were full of bundles.

Another home-coming migrant is Mrs. Frederic Pratt of Pine rd., Brookline. Her charming home is open for the fall and winter season, and her sturdy youngsters are back at school. Mrs. Pratt herself is looking particularly chic and gay this fall. The becoming little brown and green wool ensemble that she is wearing is particularly trig. Being a golden brown type the afore mentioned shades are most attractive. Her wee brown felt hat with a gay green feather at just the right angle makes her look a little like Peter Pan. Mrs. Pratt's home is a lovely background for her personality. Her living room is panelled in natural wood and decorated with golden-brown shades, very warm and homey.

Mr. and Mrs. Marland Hobbs, also of Pine rd., Chestnut Hill, has just returned from visiting the Roy Litties in Long Island. Mrs. Hobbs has a hobby that is quite unique and interesting; she and her husband raise tropical fish and have great luck with them.

Wedding Will Take Place in Spring

From Portland, Maine, comes announcement of the engagement of Miss Harriett Holman Heywood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blair Heywood of Portland, to William Stanwood Wellington, eldest son of Mrs. Stanwood G. Wellington of Chestnut Hill and the late Mr. Wellington. Mr. Wellington is a grandson of William H. Wellington of Wellington Sears Company of Boston.

Miss Heywood attended the Waynflete school in Portland and Miss Wheelock's school in Boston, where she was graduated in 1932.

Mr. Wellington prepared at Milton Academy for Harvard, where he is now a member of the senior class. His clubs include the Phoenix, S. K., Iroquois, the Hasty Pudding and Institute of 1770.

Mrs. Wellington, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, Jr. (Ruth Baker Wellington), are all in Portland for the announcement of the engagement. The Shaws were married in June.

The marriage of Miss Heywood to Mr. Wellington will take place next June after his graduation from college.

Flower Exhibit in Hingham

Members of the Hingham Garden Club and the Hingham Agricultural and Horticultural Society have been stirring up South Shore interest in the fall exhibition to be presented Saturday and Sunday at Agricultural Hall in Hingham.

Mr. William L. Howard is head of the society, and Miss Mary P. Barnes is president of the Garden Club, and assisting them with arrangements for the exhibit are Mrs. Oliver Hall, Mrs. Francis Hastings, Mrs. Robert Prouty, Mr. Francis Lincoln, Mr. Bertram L. Blanchard, Mr. Timothy L. Murphy, Mrs. Carley Paulsen, Mrs. Clarence H. Porter, Mrs. Marshall Corthell, Mrs. Edward W. Swan, Miss Carol Clark, Mrs. Arthur K. Paddock, and Mrs. Francis Warren Mitchell.

Among the judges for the decorative displays will be Mrs. E. Lawrence Oliver of Cohasset, Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge of North Andover, and Mrs. H. H. Richards of Groton.

Society Notes

EARLY FALL DAYS are luring people to New York on shopping and theater tours. Among the recent arrivals in that city are Mrs. William Amory, who is a guest at the Weylin, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Campbell of Brookline at the St. Regis Hotel, Mr. Henry G. Bradlee of Brookline, at the Roosevelt, and Mr. and Mrs. Stedman Buttrick of Concord, and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Snelling of Wayland who have been at the Barcla.

CALL IN GENTLE ART AND SWEET SCIENCE--THEY CAN DO WONDERS FOR YOU

The Marry-Go-Round; Is It Fear?

By HELEN ROWLAND

ARE AMERICAN men women afraid of each other?

* * *

They are, says Miss Sheilah Graham, young writer from England.

Helen Rowland

* * *

American husbands take first prize as faithful and devoted spouses. That, says Miss Graham, is because they are afraid of alimony and the alimoniacs.

* * *

Collecting alimony has been America's most popular national industry for the last few years.

* * *

No chivalrous man dares to marry a trusting little woman these days unless he has sufficient money to pay her the alimony to which she is looking forward.

* * *

The greatest shock of many a sweet young girl's life is to discover that the man who promised at the altar to "love and cherish" her forever is a week late or a hundred dollars short with the alimony.

* * *

It is heartbreaking disappointment to marry a man for his money and then find that the only way you can GET it is to take it from him in the form of alimony. Every economist agrees that "a woman should receive a man's wages"—but it takes a divorce lawyer to tell her how to separate him from them.

* * *

Now and then you find a famous prima donna, a wealthy debutante or a hard-working business woman who scorns to ask for alimony. Not because she is too proud or too noble, but because she knows that by the time they had finished arguing about it she would probably be lending him the carfare to get back home, and paying him a bonus to stay there.

* * *

On the other hand, a wife who demands two-thirds of a man's income, after two months of married life, may be prompted entirely by sentiment. NO woman wants to be forgotten! And the surest way to make a man remember you forever is not to touch his heart, but to touch his pocketbook.

* * *

But if the fear of alimony is helping to keep the Great American Husband in the straight and narrow path, then perhaps I should not feel such hearty sympathy for the prayers of alimony as I sometimes do.

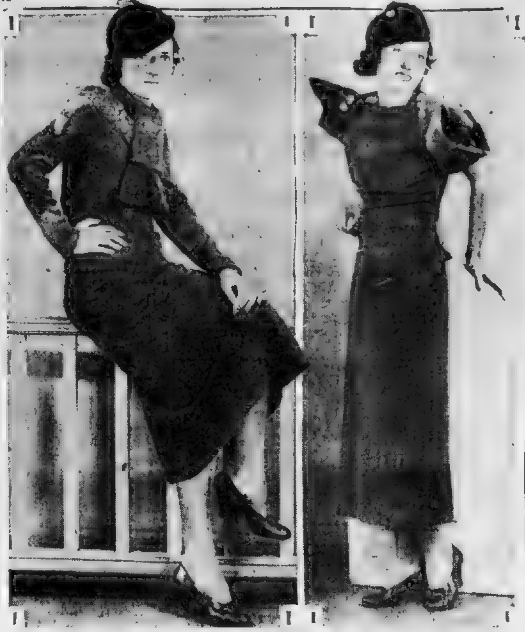
HELEN LIVES EVERY DAY EAGERLY



After vacationing on the Cape, Miss Walpole found herself in Boston without the clothes she needed. A street suit, an afternoon frock and an evening gown were the important things she had to have and we show you what she did about this in an hour, or between rehearsals. The suit she selected is a soft grey of rabbit's ear wool and a grey satin blouse makes it formal enough to wear all day. A lip-stick red beret with a dashing little feather is extremely merry over Miss Walpole's laughing eyes. For afternoon (illustrated on the right) Miss Walpole chose a faille in mauve with youthful fullness in the short sleeves. Almost perky, one would call them, and they are fashioned from kid, the fur being treated like fabric. Again the popular beret—in a more formal version, tops this ensemble. It matches the color of the dress in the accepted monotone fashion. Both of these outfits were purchased in Boston. If you are a Junior Miss size or have difficulty in being fitted, we would be glad to recommend this shop to you. Will you send your inquiries to Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American.

Boy Fears He May Have Rival

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have gone with a girl of excellent standing a few times, and on these occasions she seemed to enjoy herself very much. When she went on her summer vacation she gave me her address and told me I could write. A week later I wrote a friendly letter and asked her to write me. As yet I have heard nothing, and I am sure she received my letter.

I care for this girl very much and do not wish to lose her friendship. Should I write and ask her why the delay in writing me, or shall I wait until she returns to her home and then call on her and see if she still cares for me? Please answer soon.

WORRIED.

Dear Worried: Better wait until she gets back to town, as so much time has elapsed. Scarce as men are at summer resorts, I don't believe you've anything to fear in the way of a rival. Very probably she just felt lazy about writing, as so many do when they're away on vacations. If you want a quick answer another time, please send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, as it is not possible to answer immediately through this column.

'She's Hard to Fit,' and Yet Miss Walpole Found Clothes in Boston in Hour

By Charline Davenport

SO SLIGHT and young does this young lady seem, one wonders how she has established herself so firmly on those first few difficult rounds of a theatrical career.

A "there is a Santa Claus" attitude must have helped. Is there anything quite as refreshing in these days of boredom?

Miss Walpole was summoned to rehearsal in "Spring in Autumn," which Blanch Yurka is presenting to Boston next week, and she had been vacationing on the Cape in slacks.

What to do about clothes? Miss Walpole wears junior miss size. Where, oh, where is that chorus of lament one hears from the four corners of the Hub, that one just can't be the last word in the fashion plate if one is a Junior Miss?

You who have days to shop will probably doubt our story, but nevertheless, from the time we picked Miss Walpole up at the theater, rushed her to the shop where we thought she could get everything she needed, succeeded in doing so—took her to the studio so we could give you photographic proof of this shopping tour—and got her back to rehearsals, it was exactly 1 hour and 35 minutes.

So the next time we hear the minor strain from the Junior Miss to the tune that one just can't find the little suit, the afternoon frock AND the evening gown that doesn't look pathetically high school freshman, we will put on our knowing look and say, "Well, well, that is just too bad."

Of course there must be a certain amount of youth, just a dash of it, in the clothes that the 20 or 25-year-old must wear if she still has a 12-year-old slenderness. That is part of our pet slogan, "dress your type"—but there are plenty of these young people who also want high fashion and quality in material and workmanship.

All three of these, with a few of the other requisites that make one "perfect"—CAN be had. We proved it.

Etiquette for Announcing Wedding

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I am enclosing herewith a wedding announcement which I would like to have folded correctly and returned to me.

There have been several discussions as to the correct way of folding the announcement, and even the different printers here have different ideas.

Will you be so kind as to settle our discussion?

B.

The wedding announcement that you sent me (6 inches long by 4¾ inches wide) is not to be folded at all. It is designed to be sent in an envelope of a size into which it conveniently fits without folding. This size of wedding invitation and announcement was brought out several years ago by a famous paper manufacturer, and the idea was and is that it shall not be folded. Folding this announcement means that it loses its style, its charm. Your engraver should have in his stock the envelopes that are part of this "set."

Harvest Cake With Moon Frosting

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

"THE MEAT LOAF and apricot dessert was just grand," writes the earnest budgeter from Brighton. "But like Oliver Twist, please ma'am, I want some more"—That's what we are here for, Elizabeth—and mighty glad of the chance to be of practical service.

Here's a yummy cake that only calls for two eggs, frosting and all.

Harvest Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 tsps baking powder
¼ tsp salt
1-3 cup butter or other shortening
⅔ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 egg yolks, unbeaten
2-3 cup milk
1 tsp vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan 8 by 8 by 2 inches in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 45 minutes or until done. Spread Harvest Moon Frosting on top and sides of cake.

Harvest Moon Frosting

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
Dash of salt.
⅓ cup water.
1 tsp. vanilla

Put egg whites, sugar, salt and water in upper part of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg-beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater, and cook 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add vanilla, and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover top and sides of 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake.

Daintiness Is One of Important Requisites for the Perfect Grooming

By Therese Deschamps

WE'VE DONE a lot in the way of helping put on or keep hair already on the noggin (Damon Runyon's gorgeous substitute for the word "head," appeals to us at this moment for no good reason). But hair where we don't want it is a nuisance. With an admirable spurt of energy in your behalf, dear beauty fans, we scoured the town and found two things that you, and assuredly, no addict to personal daintiness should ever be without.

Though we travel in the deepest wilds of Russia, or spend a week in the White mountains, or stay at the mother-in-law's domicile, or leave home for college, or do one of a hundred thousand other things where we pack a bag and depart from our usual haunts, these two essential things should be with us.

Mitten Idea

The first is inspired, no doubt, by Thurston or Houdini. It's an innocent looking object, something on the mitten idea, with a strap along the back so that the hand may be slipped through.

We run gently along the leg, or under the arm in circle motion first one way, then another, just exactly the way we were warned by our mother, not to stir a cake, because we'd be stirring it backwards and it might easily turn right back into eggs, and milk, and flour, and sugar!

Smooth Skin Out

That's all there is to it! Where the mitten had gently rubbed the hair-covered skin, is an expanse of clear and smooth skin.

With the other gadget dedicated to hair removal you need never again maneuver to save the plucking of shaggy-inclined eyebrows for some rainy afternoon when you won't have to appear in public with red blotches on irritated skin and a pained expression in the eyes.

This is an automatic device whose speed [illegible] things work so smoothly that all tooth-pulling effects and deluge of tears may be avoided. Tweeze away, and five minutes later breeze out on an engagement with a brow smooth and white as Carrara marble.

We'll tell you where the miraculous mitten depilatory and the automatic tweezer may be purchased if you'll but send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Therese Deschamps, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Beauty Problems and Answers

Cream for Skin

Question: Can you give me the name of a good cream for my skin. I don't seem to be able to do anything with it. My nose looks as though it fell in an oil barrel with powder cakes all over it, and my cheeks and chin are scaly. I have tried numerous creams with the same result, and I'm so discouraged.—Miss A. G., Gloucester.

Answer: Yes, indeed we can help you—but there's no reason for you to get discouraged about it. There are new two purpose creams on the market that [illegible] to skin of this kind. Your nose is oily and your cheeks are dry. Decide to which type the other sections of your face belong and apply the dry skin cream to the dry skin and the oily skin cream to the oily.

With White Hair

Question: I have white hair. Will you give me some color combinations that will be becoming to me?

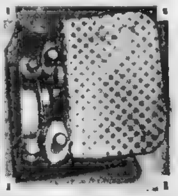
Mrs. G. A., Dorchester.

Answer: Black and dark tend to make the hair whiter, but also may tend to make the skin too pale. [illegible] with color near the face [illegible] dark red, especially wine [illegible] of your skin [illegible] florid. Soft rose tea or [illegible] in the peach range is often becoming. [illegible] soft blue, sometimes dark green, bluish [illegible] and the [illegible] colors in medium tints. Violet and lavender [illegible] becoming if there is a little yellow in the skin and hair [illegible] and browns. Dead white [illegible] unbecoming because it makes the hair look dark and soiled. Off whites, those that are slightly bluish, green [illegible] or rosy are much more easily worn. Warm whites with other colors [illegible] effective.

Here It Is—Beauty Kit Complete

ACCORDING to popular theory up-to-date machinery is running the working man out of a job. That may be so. But if the manufacturers of beauty aids keep [illegible] at their present pace, we [illegible] see more and better beauty on every corner. These remarks are prompted by the discovery of a novel compact little "gadget" that enables milady to travel her beauty salon in her dainty little handbag.

At week end time, travelling by train, auto, or plane, here is a little beauty accessory you slip in your overnight case and positively insure that immaculate grooming and turn-out the following morning.



The kit measures about eight inches by three and is complete in every possible detail. It contains five creams, toning lotion, preparation for enlarged pores, hand lotion, powder, lipstick, rouge, eyelash grower and darkener. Cleansing tissue and what have you. Moreover the contents [illegible] can be varied according to your individual skin requirements.

The outfit is finished in a new fabric, either red or black with a red and white check lining that gives the daintiest effect when the case is opened.

If you are one of those poor [illegible] persons who have to [illegible], or otherwise, from one engagement to another, tuck this little aid to beauty under your arm and a few moments [illegible] in a quiet corner will completely [illegible] that ultra-smart [illegible] with which you faced the morning.

BRITAIN MOVES TO HALT NAVY PLAN OF U.S.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc

London, Sept. 15—The American naval building program has been unexpectedly and suddenly injected into disarmament conversations, it is learned. The program, formulated by Secretary of the Navy Swanson supported by President Roosevelt, looms as one of the most important topics of the disarmament discussion during the next few weeks.

Britain, it is learned on reliable authority, will suggest as diplomatically as possible the advisability of the United States postponing the "Swanson naval program" until after some definite decision is reached on disarmament at Geneva.

It will be delicately pointed out that, although the United States is entitled to go ahead on the present program under the naval treaties, it is feared naval competition with Japan will develop, forcing Britain to follow suit, and thus hindering efforts at Geneva to bring about a disarmament agreement.

Britain, it is understood, is concerned about the possibility of a new cruiser race. Although both the new programs of the United States and Japan are strictly within treaty rights, they are regarded likely to give impetus to a new naval armament race, especially when the treaties expire in 1935.

A new three-power naval conference would be regarded with sympathy here.

There is no doubt here that Japan is embarking on a fresh naval race and the position of the United States is sympathetically appreciated.

High British circles would be the first to disclaim any pro-Japanese sentiment. On the naval question Britain is looking out for herself first.

It will probably be hinted to the United States that her independent position in pleading the disarmament case at Geneva will be compromised by embarking at this time on the "Swanson program."

But what is overlooked here is not only the important fact that the "Swanson program" is part of the recovery program of the United States, but that the United States is doing nothing more than repairing serious neglect of her naval treaty rights.

New Bedford Leads Nation in Safety

Fall River, Sept. 15—New Bedford leads the country, and this city ranks fifth in safety records for the present year, according to figures received here today from the National Safety Council. Only four auto fatalities occurred here in the first seven months of the year.

New Bedford was announced as the leading city, with Wilmington, Del., second; Grand Rapids, Mich., third and Syracuse, N. Y., fourth.

Somerville Puts "Ears" in Cells

Guilty persons who are prone to talking in police cells will do well to steer clear of Somerville in the near future if they hope to squirm out of charges against them.

In that city the first move in New England for mechanical detectives in cells was under way today toward the installation of special microphones that might well be classed "detectaphones."

For years talkative prisoners have been trapped by real detectives who have cramped, sometimes for hours and days, into close quarters so they could overhear conversations. But many times such testimony was thrown out in court.

By the new device the operation will be mechanical and the testimony in court will not be distorted by faulty memories.

"Sure, we'll go to the Movies!

THAT'S ONE WAY TO SPEND"

This is the sixth illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.

How the People of this Country can HELP THE PRESIDENT Speed Up Recovery

THIS IS A PICTURE OF TWO GOOD AMERICANS. Not rich — but comfortably fixed, with a good job, money in the bank, a neat little home. Something has happened to them in the past few weeks. Something has made them better citizens.

They have come to understand how sensible spending helps speed Recovery.

Look at them now. Planning an evening of fun together. A few months ago, after the dishes had been dried, they would have retired to the living-room. A book, a magazine, a little talk—and then to bed.

Because they couldn't afford the movies? No! And that's just the point.

Like too many others, they have looked on the normal expenditures as extravagance. They have acquired a lopsided attitude that put scrimping ahead of spending.

And that's wrong.

The theatre ushers—the ticket takers behind the windows—the operators in the booths—the camera men, carpenters and wardrobe people in the studios—all have jobs only when people go to the movies in a normal way. And the movies are but one example. The less you use your car—the less demand there is for men to work in filling stations and refineries and the oil fields.

In the same way, when fewer people use our thousands of golf courses, caddies and club-makers and ball manufacturers pay the penalty in fewer jobs, lower earnings.

It is a vicious circle—for every man out of work—movie usher, gas station attendant, golf course caddy—is one more consumer out of circulation.

And only when the whole nation is consuming can the whole nation have jobs—regular incomes—growing savings accounts. What can be done about it?

Just this. Recently manufacturers and retailers have added men, shortened hours, increased wages, in an effort to help the President's Recovery Program.

All that means higher costs and less profits to them. Eventually, it could mean failure. IF the people fail them. But it can't mean failure if people start buying normally again. If they go to the movies as they used to do. If they run their car as they used to do. If they play golf as frequently as they once did.

That's the whole idea back of the Recovery Program . . . to get back to normal in your living and spending.

Buy and use what you can afford. If you merely start by purchasing a magazine, or treating yourself to an occasional ice cream soda that you have been denying yourself—it's all part of the program and you are doing your share!

So let's all "do things together." Buy what you need in a normal way. Nobody wants you to be extravagant. But buy. Buy sensibly.

That's the way to help forward the Recovery Program. That's the way to help yourself by helping others. Everyone must do his part. Buy in September . . . and keep our people at work.

OPERATOR 13 :: By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Girl Spy, Aghast, Hears Gailliard Pour Out His Love for Her

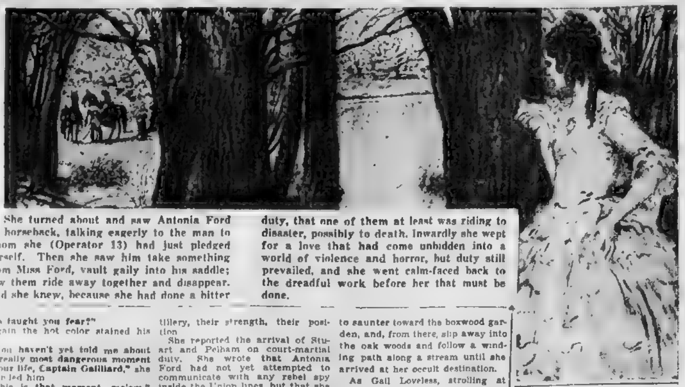
READ THIS FIRST

The Union cavalry generals, Stoneham, Averell and Buford complained bitterly that they could not surprise their brave and alert enemies, Jeb Stuart and Fitzhugh Lee. Col. Sharpe, head of the Federal secret service, told them it was because of the activities of a girl Confederate spy, Antonia Ford, whose ancestral home was at Culpeper.

Clever, bold and resourceful, Miss Ford was a vital link in Gen. Stuart's chain of spies. So Col. Sharpe sent beautiful Gail Loveless, Operator 13 in the Federal secret service, to Culpeper. Operator 13, an accomplished actress and a daring and successful spy, went to Culpeper and actually became the house guest of Antonia Ford. Her instructions were to checkmate the other girl's efforts and, if opportunity presented, to surrender her to the Union army for punishment—which was quite likely to be death by hanging.

Gail Loveless, for her part was certain to be hanged if the Confederates discovered her identity. Yet she played croquet with Antonia Ford under the trees of the beautiful state as coolly and as if no danger impended. Following a cavalry review, a party of Confederate officers came to the house for a midday dinner. One of them was Capt. Jack Gailliard. Gail Loveless, all but swooning with fear when he looked into her eyes, regained her composure when it appeared he had not recognized, in this lovely girl, the quadroon laundress who once had tricked him and turned out to be a Union spy. In a spirit of mischief, she began to tease him about his past adventures and reputed conquests.

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)



She turned about and saw Antonia Ford on horseback, talking eagerly to the man to whom she (Operator 13) had just pledged herself. Then she saw him take something from Miss Ford, vault gaily into his saddle; saw them ride away together and disappear. And she knew, because she had done a bitter duty, that one of them at least was riding to disaster, possibly to death. Inwardly she wept for a love that had come unbidden into a world of violence and horror, but duty still prevailed, and she went calm-faced back to the dreadful work before her that must be done.

"No. Why shouldn't a Negro girl be beautiful? Everybody has heard about Gen. Jeb Stuart's pretty Negro laundress who turned everybody's head and proved to be a common Yankee girl with a dyed skin. Did you see her?"

Antonia Ford leaned over toward her. "You little wretch," she called across the table, "what are you tormenting Jack Gailliard about?"

"I want him to tell me a story and he won't," said Gail, pouting.

"I'll tell you one," said the badgered young man in sudden desperation. "I once met a girl in Culpeper and fell in love with her the moment I looked into her eyes! Do you like that story, ma'am?"

"G-goodness," faltered Miss Loveless, "was she as beautiful as that? And what happened then, sir?"

"The longer I looked at her the more madly I loved her."

"And——"

"That's the story, ma'am."

"But how did it end?"

"It hasn't ended."

"You mean that you are still in—in love with her?"

"I am."

"Wh-what are you going to do about it?"

"Continue to love her, ma'am."

"Does she know?" cried Miss Loveless.

"Not yet."

"Are you going to tell her?"

"Yes, I am."

"Wh-when?"

He deliberately pulled out his watch, consulted it. "In about three minutes."

"You can't! You couldn't be rude enough to abandon me and go and propose to that girl . . . Anyway, it is rude of you, who are my cavalier, to tell me how you fell in love with some other girl."

"It isn't some other girl."

At that a swift color flooded her face. There was a tremulous little laugh. How gallant and daring you are, Captain Gailliard! Suppose I should take your declaration seriously—how could you flounder out of it?"

"I am deadly earnest, ma'am." She affected to laugh merrily.

"I'm in deadly earnest, too," she said gaily, "when I command you to tell me about the most exciting adventure in your military career."

"This is."

"How silly! Please, please, Captain Gailliard, tell me about the most dangerous moment in your whole life."

"This very moment is the most dangerous," he repeated boldly.

She pretended consternation. "Are we really in danger here in Culpepper?"

"I am, Miss Loveless."

At that she laughed. "You are determined to pay your compliments recklessly, Captain Gailliard. Of which of my weapons are you particularly afraid?"

"Of your eyes, ma'am."

"Are you a burnt child, sir?"

"Ma'am?"

"Have other eyes resembling mine taught you fear?"

Again the hot color stained his face.

"You haven't yet told me about the really most dangerous moment of your life, Captain Gailliard," she reminded him.

"This is that moment, ma'am," he insisted. "No armed Yankee could scare me as your beauty does. You are bristling with deadly weapons—your eyes, your lips, your hair, ma'am—and the terrifying loveliness of your——"

FRIGHTENED NOW

"Please, Captain Gailliard," she protested. She had not bargained for this. And now, striving to laugh at him, she saw that the boy was terribly in earnest.

"In these days," he said, "we live a whole lifetime in an hour. I—I hope I am not offending you when I say——"

"Don't say it," she whispered.

Major Blythe was on his feet, now, amid cheering and the flutter of beating hands—the first sentiment with brimming glasses. "Our Country — the Confederate States of America!"

When the fierce, gay din had subsided a little, "The Ladies!" followed; then "The President"; then General Robert E. Lee!" Amid the cheering the doors of the great room were flung open, and Jeb Stuart and John Pelham came in, red sashed, gold laced and clanking.

Then the tumult grew to a whirlwind of cheering; men and women sprang to their feet, with lifted glasses.

When her turn came Operator 13 made her curtsy to General J. E. B. Stuart and had her slender hand kissed by the blue-eyed, golden-bearded god. And then, threading the happy confusion, she made her way to the stairway, and to her chamber. And dropped upon a chair to rest and try to think.

TERRIBLE SHADOW

From the window shade, partly lowered, the looped cord dangled; and the sun shadowed it upon the carpet, turning it to a perfect hangman's noose, swaying as the breeze stirred the shade.

One of those terrible moments of fear which all spies know had suddenly chilled her. Perhaps it had been Jeb Stuart's blue eyes that had awakened her to her perpetual peril. Perhaps it was the aftermath of her reckless flirtation with Gailliard—and with Death.

God, what rashness had been here—to tempt the boy to remember her. The craze for posturing, for acting a part, for creating the dramatic moment—these would some day destroy her unless she could learn self-control.

She watched the shadow of the window cord with its hangman's loop sway across the carpet. She thought of the intense blue of Jeb Stuart's eyes, and shivered to realize that she had braved them. She thought of Jack Gailliard's eyes afire with sudden passion, and trembled at having provoked it.

For a little yet, the cold fright of her perilous situation chilled her. Then, as always, her young blood suddenly flowed warmly once more. And once more the very charm of her danger gripped and held her in its all-embracing fascination.

She rose lightly, lowered the window shade. Then she bolted her door, pulled up her billowy skirts, drew from its belt around her waist a long thin knife and unscrewed the handle, which was hollow. Here was a crowquill pen as thin as a hairpin, and a tiny phial full of colorless liquid and a few sheets of jeweler's tissue.

No writing appeared as her pen flew, tracing invisible characters almost microscopic dimensions. She detailed the events of the day, the numbers and conditions of Fitz Lee's regiments and horse artillery, their strength, their position.

She reported the arrival of Stuart and Pelham on court-martial duty. She wrote that Antonia Ford had not yet attempted to communicate with any rebel spy inside the Union lines, but that she might try to do so now, because Capt. Gailliard had arrived in Culpeper.

No more cavalry had come, she reported, and only Fitz Lee's brigade occupied Culpeper; and she assured Col. Sharpe that her news was reliable.

When she finished she replaced pen, phial and tissue in her dagger's hilt and slipped the blade into its velvet sheath once more. The sheet of tissue she rolled into a tiny cylinder, took a tortoise shell side comb from her curly hair, unscrewed one tine, which was hollow, placed the cylinder in it, and replaced the comb before the mirror.

A faint aromatic, citrus odor remained in the room. She let the window shade slide up, and the sunny breeze dissipated it. Now she was ready to go downstairs and mingle with the others who had scattered about the grounds to enjoy the pale sunshine of earliest spring.

There still remained patches of soft snow on the northern slopes of roads and woodlands. On the veranda steps, in the sun, a picturesque group of young girls gossiped and laughed. She could see cavalry horses picketed along the low stone wall west of the stables and troops of the escort lounging there.

EARNEST CONVERSATION

In the summer house Joe Sweeney picked dreamily on his banjo in sentimental accompaniment to the inevitable "Lorena," sung in a low voice by a girl from Charleston. On a wrought-iron settee Antonia Ford sat with Jeb Stuart in low-voiced conversation. She held a cluster of pale yellow crocuses in her hand.

Gail Loveless lingered a little while to listen to and join with the gossipers on the veranda steps. She did not see Jack Gailliard there. Nor was John Pelham visible. Miss Shackleford, also, was missing. The Charleston girl and Joe Sweeney had taken up "Ashby":

"Dream, oh dream of laurels won
On Virginia's battlefields,
Of the work forever done,
Of the sacred truth revealed!
Still we stand here proud and free—
Slaves and bondmen but for thee!
Ashby's men shall ever be
Our defense and shield!"

But Turner Ashby and his white battle horse were dead, and now the blue-eyed, golden-bearded Stuart led Ashby's men. There he sat over yonder whispering secrets into a little ivory ear. And Operator 13 could only look at him across the croquet grounds and wonder what he was whispering to Antonia Ford.

And wonder, unquietly, where Capt. Gailliard had gone and what he might be doing. And wonder, also, how soon she might venture to saunter toward the boxwood garden, and, from there, slip away into the oak woods and follow a winding path along a stream until she arrived at her occult destination.

As Gail Loveless, strolling at hazard, skirted the ancient hedge of box she caught a glimpse of two in the deserted garden. And she saw John Pelham, his boy's face shining like a young and golden angel's, kissing Elizabeth Shackleford's white hands.

"Thank God," she thought to herself, "John Pelham won't be here when Averell comes a-galloping."

She stole onward, walking on the grass to avoid the dry leaves on the path lest their crackling disturb this gentle child and her young god in the springtime of the year and of first love. Beyond the garden there was a grassy pond fed by a stream which ran through the oak wood, and which she had meant to follow to the end of her intended quest.

But here, along the pond's edge, paced Captain John Gailliard, booted and spurred in his faded gray, while his saddled nag, straying at will, munched the tender grass. It was too late to draw back; he had seen her. Here was a situation ripe for dramatic development. As she sauntered on, faintly smiling as he uncovered and came toward her, she had no slightest doubt that he was here to relay to spies inside the Union lines whatever Jeb Stuart was whispering into the ear of Antonia Ford. But she intended to see that her own business should be transacted first.

IMPETUOUS WORDS

"What a solitary young gentleman," she said amiably, as he came striding across the meadow to confront her with a bow. "I thought, perhaps, you might be waiting for me on the veranda."

"I shall wait for you all my life, ma'am," he burst out impetuously.

But the girl merely raised her eyebrows and reminded him that he had not waited.

"If I had not been on duty, Miss Gail," he said hotly, "the whole Yankee army could not have driven me from your feet!" The boy was alarmingly in earnest, and he flopped down on his knees, rushing into a stammering and fiery declaration. "Miss Loveless, ma'am, no human being could help loving you at first sight, and I couldn't help it, either. So when you looked at me in the dining room I fell in love with you."

"Please, Capt. Gailliard!"

Once more Operator 13, with Capt. Jack Gaillards kisses warm upon her lips, looks after him with an ache in her heart as he rides away. What happiness can come to these two, drawn irresistibly by their love, yet inexorably divided by their separate loyalties to their warring countries? Each must do his duty, and each, in doing it, may destroy the other.

Prompt Attention to Prevent Styes Is Necessary

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

"WHAT A PITY you have a stye. It is sure to return regularly for at least seven years."

Such was part of a conversation I overheard in a trolley car the other day. The victim's eyelid was swollen and on it was a discharging sore. There was no doubt the trouble was a stye, but there was great doubt in my mind as to the necessity for recurrence if the proper treatment should be administered.

The disturbance is often attributed to some disorder of the blood. In reality it is an infection of one of the glands in the margin of the eyelid.

The victim first notices a redness of the eyelid. The lid begins to swell and from day to day the inflammation increases in severity. The swelling grows greater and a yellowish spot appears on the margin of the lid.

After a few days the small abscess ruptures by itself and the pus escapes. The swelling then subsides, the pain disappears, and within a few days the patient has no discomfort.

Hot boric acid solution should be applied to the afflicted eye. The solution is repeatedly applied with bits of sterilized cotton, keeping the temperature of the liquid as hot as possible.

One of the favorite prescriptions for local application is 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment. This is applied to the lid margin. Do this before retiring at night and cleanse in the morning with warm boric acid solution.

Unfortunately the patient is so relieved when the pain disappears that he is careless and pays no further attention to his eyes. As a result, the infection reappears and he is again the victim of this unpleasant ailment. The second infection may be more stubborn and this time it may be necessary to have the abscess incised.

Lack of cleanliness and rubbing the eye with dirty fingers leads to this annoying infection.

If the eyes itch and bother you, bathe them in a cool solution of boric acid. If you read a great deal and suffer from eyestrain, it is best that you consult an expert. It may be you require glasses or, if you have glasses, you should make sure to wear them whenever necessary. Bear in mind that properly prescribed glasses insure normal vision and prevent any unnecessary strain on the eyes. They help to preserve eye health.

7 HURT IN CHARLESTOWN BRIDGE TROLLEY CRASH

This Is Life

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

Nearly 40 years ago the ingenious and prophetic H. G. Wells, who is nowadays less happy about the future than he used to be, wrote a fantastic romance, called "When the Sleeper Wakes." It dealt with life in the year 2000, which was farther away in 1890 than it seems today, and was all about an amazing city staffed by armies of blue-coated "labor serfs"—working people, who had got into debt to the International Trust, which owned the world, and so sunk to the status of slaves.

These serf armies were kept very carefully in hand. There were no newspapers for them to read. (Indeed, theaters and novels had now become entirely mechanical, toys for the private home.) Instead, the slave army was kept informed, inspired, and instructed by what Wells called "Babble Machines"—huge loudspeakers, set up on every street corner.

* * *

All through the day these brassy, mechanical shouters poured out a constant stream of "babble," such news as the trust thought the workers ought to hear, colored to suit the trust's purposes, warnings, admonitions, instructions and advertisements. Everywhere one went one heard these monsters bellowing, "Hurrumph, hurrumph!—listen, pay attention—babble-babble-babble." If Mr. Wells had ever heard of the expression "blah," he undoubtedly would have used it.

Like everything in Mr. Wells' prophecies, this was part fantasy, part satire, and part sober suggestion, based on Wells' theory that the way to prophesy is to look around you for existing institutions or mechanisms and then to project them into the future with due allowance for acceleration and magnification. He obviously considered the "babble machines" perfectly dreadful examples of the culture of a slave industrial civilization, but equally obviously he saw them—or something like them—coming in the future.

The current issue of "The Nation's Business" carries a little paragraph on a page devoted to interesting inventions and novelties, which are doing so much to mechanize our world. It reads:

"The thousands of bathers at one of the popular Long Island beaches lend their ears—perforce—to the 'largest public address system in the world.' News flashes, music, health exercises, swimming lessons intersperse the advertising messages which flood the mile-and-a-quarter beach from 12 huge loud speakers."

* * *

You will note that the item is non-committal, except for that one irrepressible word "perforce." But what a horror that word calls up to anyone with a lively imagination. A mile and a quarter of yapping, howling, booming, stentorian noises, shrill, raucous, deafening, impossible to get away from and—if you happen to be sitting equidistant from two of these monsters—paralyzing in their constant torrent of vulgar and meaningless sound. It just doesn't bear thinking about!

Another magazine this week prints a photograph of a monster parking space at one of those beaches. There are visible one section and part of another. If the two are of equal size, I estimate that they may contain about 5000 cars, which may mean 20,000 people. I do not know how many other parking spaces of that size there are, but these two will do.

There are, say, 20,000 people who have tried for one little day to get away from the monstrous noise of the city, to spend it on the sand by the ocean, in the hope of getting a little recreation and rest. And all day long their ears are assaulted by this obscene and monstrous racket, to what end? That a number of privileged advertisers may get one more chance at them for their commodities.

The Sunday newspapers they take with them to the beach will contain all the advertising a normal being can assimilate, but that is not enough. The bureaucracy that runs the park must needs rake in a few more dollars, either as a private graft or a public tax, no matter what outrage they do to the ears and nerves of the people for whom the park was built and who are paying for it.

Why do not those 20,000 picnickers smash the damned things?

Our New York friends are always telling us about the grandeur and glory of the public beaches along Long Island Sound, their size, their equipment, their convenience, their throngs, their comforts. They come down to our little Revere and Nantasket and are very polite about them—the way one is polite about someone who is a little feeble minded. They don't sneer at our poverty and uninventiveness. Instead, they lift the hymn of praise to Jones Beach, that foretaste of Paradise on earth.

Well, now I have my answer. Revere and Nantasket are far from perfect, but at least they do not insult the intelligence of their crowds nor brutalize their senses with an incessant yawp of advertising on loud speakers.

I suppose that New Yorkers do not even know the things are noisy. Otherwise I can't account for their enduring it.

CHARTER SHIFT HEARING TURNS TO OFFICIALS

Discussion on Power of Mayor to Appoint Also to Be Heard

Persons interested in the method of appointing city department heads will be heard at today's session of the special commission of the Legislature to consider revision of the Boston city charter.

Discussion on the appointive power of the mayor or the governor in the Boston city government will be permitted.

The session of the special commission yesterday was devoted to protests against the lack of home rule in Boston. Urgent pleas were made that greater home rule be allowed the city and that the administration be allowed to work out its problems without undue interference from the Legislature.

STATE HOUSE CALLED 'CURSE'

The location of the State House in this city is a "curse to Boston," according to former Senator David B. Shaw. He declared the domination of the city by the Legislature had produced excessive tinkering with the charter and saddled unnecessary expenditures on Boston.

He declared the city had been dominated for the past 20 years by those who knew nothing about its affairs. He pointed out that the people of Boston wanted nothing but fair and honest treatment and not party dictation.

DUAL CONTROL ADVOCATED

He urged the commission to recommend a return to the dual chamber form of government, with a council representative of the wards of the city and a second body chosen at large by district to act as a check on the first group in legislative matters.

He said he did not want a return to the plan of allowing the council to override the veto of a mayor, however.

This, he said, would "open the door to more chicanery and log rolling." He argued the mayor was the responsible official of the government and his veto should be absolute. He also ridiculed the idea that a mayor should not be re-elected.

SEEK BOMBERS IN CHELSEA

Search has been extended into Everett and Chelsea for the racketeers who tried to slay Israel Blumsack, of Franklin st., Malden, by exploding a bomb in the cab of his truck.

While the search for the bombers was being carried on, police were trying to discover the motive for the attempt. Blumsack, who told police he was a junk dealer, declared he knew of no reason why gangsters should attempt to kill him.

Police for a time considered the theory the bombing may have been done by North End racketeers because Blumsack refused to pay "protection" money while in business there. This theory was later discarded.

EL REVENUE UP IN AUGUST

Improvements in both net revenues from railway operations and in the final results for the month of August of this year, compared with August, 1932, was shown in the operation of the Boston Elevated Railway, according to a statement of Edward Dana, executive vice-president and general manager.

For August of this year the net revenue from railway operations before taxes and other deductions amounted to $329,636.75, compared to $225,425.07 for August, 1932, an increase of $104,211.68.

Receipts in August of this year failed by $137,707.01 to meet the full cost of service, which includes all charges and taxes, whereas, in August, 1932, cost of service exceeded receipts by $565,328.48, an improvement of $127,621.17 this year.

Malden to Destroy Water Tower

Mayor John D. Devir, of Malden, has signed the bill for razing Waitts Mount water tower. The work will start at once, he said. The tower, once part of the high pressure water service for Malden, Everett and sections of Boston, had not been used for several years.

Many suggestions have been made to the city of Malden for use of the tank, but when a resolution was presented to have tank filled with beer so it could be drawn from the faucets in Malden, Mayor Devir decided it was time to remove such temptation from the citizens, and the order for its demolition followed.

FOLEY TRACES HIS FEALTY

Pointing himself out as the only Democrat in the Boston mayoralty contest who served as a delegate to a Democratic national convention, Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley addressed two large audiences last night.

More than 500 listened to the Suffolk County prosecutor at the Aperian Plaza, Intervale st., Dorchester, and as many more greeted him at the Edison Social Club, Maverick st., East Boston.

"When the Democrats had work to do the other candidates, who now appeal for Democratic votes, were never seen on the political horizon," Foley said.

'Hambone' and Axe Hold 200 at Bay

Joseph Keeley, 36, better known in South Boston social circles as "Hambone Kelley," one time gladiator of the boxing ring, awoke in a South Boston police cell early today to learn that he had dared a crowd of 200 to "come on" last night.

Police, led by Sergt. William H. Long, responded to a riot call at that time to find "Hambone" waving an axe as an invitation that the crowd had better not "come on."

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

JOHN HARVARD WILL HAVE HIS BOYS OUT TODAY

Harvard Squad Moves Into the Stadium Today ↕ Casey Confesses He Has New Shift Up His Sleeve

By AUSTEN LAKE

Harvard, called the poor little rich boy in the intercollegiate football family because of its luxury of property fixings that are counted sufficient to make any football team successful, but sometimes lacking a bit of emotional bounce, took the field this morning with the usual Harvard punctuality. Led by a tawny-haired lad with a fresh, tooth paste grin (Capt. Johnny Dean of Cohasset), the entire ensemble, in oxblood jerseys, poured through a cleft in the east side of the Stadium, while news photographers fired a random volley.

One of the picture men had fired a dud, owing to a blank magazine, and wanted the herd to go back offstage and make a repeat entrance, but Dean allowed as how the tinfoil had been properly broken on the season and that another entrance would be a shoddy counterfeit.

The slight figure, lean as the flank of a steer, standing limbe legged with his hands folded in the hem of his T-shirt, is Eddie Casey, head coach, who is part of Harvard's football folk lore. In his day he, more than any back that I have known, save only Albie Booth of Yale, possessed the instinctive art of phantom footwork, so that I have never seen a tackler get a full armful of him in his hey day at Exeter or Harvard and either clutched the empty wind of his passage or at best the pin feathers of his shirt. An eddy, if I know my definitions, means a little swirl of air, and that was exactly what Casey resembled when he carried the ball.

Now like hotel hackmen soliciting fares at a country station the coaches yelp, "Ends this way" or "Backs over here." Swede Nelson leads his little flock of ball carriers away, his naked poll glistening like a huge egg. Enough "H" men he has, veterans from the last Yale game, to make a baseball team. There is little Carl Pescosolido, Pesky in newsprint, who nabbed a Dartmouth kickoff last fall and raced up the sideline with scarcely a curl in his course to score a touchdown which finally won the game, one of the few deeds of the Harvard season that deserved to be circled in red.

Plenty of Backs but No Spearhead

There are three quarterbacks, Danny Wells, who started the 1932 Yale game and was relieved in turn by Stanton Whitney and John Healy, which is more veteran quarterback surplus than any other college in the East can boast. Arthur Barrett, John Dean, Charley Neven, Dick Waters, Pesky and Alex Sherman form the rest of the backfield, a wealth of numbers but with none of the usual outstanding figures that Harvard backfields in recent years have been able to uncover. No Jack Crickard is in sight at the moment to form the cutting edge of the attack, and this year Casey, Fesler and Nelson, joint committee on backfield tactics, must stretch their inventive genius to make up in timing and deception what the offense may lack in personality.

Contrary to usual Harvard habit, Casey is dividing his squad into separate herds this afternoon, naming 35 men on the A, or potential varsity group, and 23 on the B, or leftovers which will be under temporary charge of the freshmen coaches. Harvard squads have usually remained intact during the seasoning period, but Casey is impatient to give his varsity shape as speedily as possible this fall, an acid test as far as he is concerned.

Wesley Fesler's chief duty during the early part of the training period will be to instruct the kickers, a specialty that previously has been under the hand, or rather over the instep, of Vic Kennard. You have never heard football theory until you have listened to two kicking experts expound their favorite theories, with gestures. You might not think that a little thing like a half-step would amount to much until you hear an advocate of the single-step-and-swing argue the merits of his system against the half-step-and-swing.

Unlike baseball where batters are, for the most part, permitted to grow their own particular style of position, stepping and bat swinging, kicking styles in football follow definite grooves. The art of drop kicking, at which Fesler is a specialist, for example, is an exhaustive science that starts with the position of the kicker's feet before receiving the ball and the alignment of the posts between the spot where he will drop the ball and the uprights that he hopes to sharpshoot.

Casey to Break Out a New Set of Frills

For example, I have known several expert drop kickers who habitually carried a white poker chip in specially made pockets in their football breeches, which they would lay on the ground (not the breeches, but the chip), to mark the spot where the end of the ball must land. Having placed it at the proper spot, they would align the center of the posts carefully in a long measured glance, fixing the line of flight on the screen of their minds, then to look up no more. From the moment they received the ball from center, their eyes would be glued to the poker chip as a golfer's are fastened on his ball, and their rule of never lifting the head until the ball was kicked and the arc of the leg had followed through to its limit, was just as rigid as the golfer's is during the duration of his swing.

But the art of drop kicking has suffered with the removal of the goal posts to the rear of the end zone, just as in baseball the art of bunting has suffered since the coming of the lively ball. For these days the temptation among quarterbacks is to gamble for the larger stakes of touchdowns, being 10 yards nearer the goal line than the goal posts. And where leading kickers used to score 10 or a dozen field goals a year, now they seldom score more than five and one of the prettiest and most skillful plays of the game has faded away.

Eddie Casey tells me that he plans to use a new close order shift later in the year, though he refuses to describe the shift for fear that it may send his major opponents into a quiver of preparation. Also he will adhere to the huddle, despite the tendency elsewhere to discard it, because he wants to use it as a screen for quick formations. On the whole the outlook is for more frills and fancy work than the usually circumspect Crimson has displayed these many years.

HOLY CROSS COACH SET TO DRIVE

By WALTER KILEY

Worcester, Sept. 15.—New England has finally succumbed to Notre Dame football. One of the last strongholds against the use of the famous Knute Rockne shift has fallen into the countryside [illegible]

Holy Cross today [illegible] of South Bend [illegible] warfare and all because Dr. Edward N. Anderson, new head coach at Holy Cross College, is an ardent student and a coaching devotee of the Notre Dame system with its balanced line, its backfield shift, its speed, its timing, its blocking and all the ramifications [illegible] the post war period.

Naturally it takes time to [illegible] the system already underway at Holy Cross can in no way be likened to the Warner double wing back of the past Capt. McEwan regime.

[illegible] for the basic fundamentals. The real test will come in the heat of actual conflict, when the going becomes labored, and the normal tendency will be for McEwan coached regulars to revert to the system with which they have been longer accustomed.

Coach Anderson is living proof that the success of the Notre Dame system depends on speed, on drive, on courage and on instinctive reaction to the emergencies of the moment.

COACH IS DRIVER

Dr. Anderson is a driver. He works hard and is making his squad work hard. Time to him is valuable. He came to Worcester in early spring and for five solid weeks pushed his spring training candidates to the limit until at the end, they were down to fighting shape, each and every man ready to step in and give a good account of himself had there been a rugged opponent to face.

Anderson exudes force. He radiates personality. He is a relentless taskmaker with a goal in sight, allowing no obstacle to bar his path.

He knows his football, both as a player and as a student. His squad realizes his talents as do his assistants, Joe Shekeetski, backfield coach, one of the [illegible] on the 1932 Notre Dame team, and Joe Locke, line coach, guard on the 1929 South Bend eleven.

He had to have the goods when he led that 1921 squad, for seldom has there been a greater aggregation of players in the history of the game.

With few exceptions, every regular on that team, is today or has been coaching with success.

Take a peek at that 1921 lineup. Hunk Anderson, present Notre Dame coach, was playing right guard and Slip Maddigan, coach at St. Mary's of California was at left guard. Harry Mehre, now head coach at University of Georgia was the pivot man.

The tackles were Charlie Garvey of Holyoke, who later went in for professional boxing and wrestling and coached at St. Mary's of Brooklyn; and "Bull" Shaw, who coached at Nevada University for years.

Roger Kiley, now a Chicago alderman and Dr. Anderson were the ends.

ON GIPP'S TEAM

Joe Brandy was quarterback with Dr. Johnny Mohart and George Gipp as halfbacks. Gipp, who died that year was regarded by Rockne as the greatest player of his colorful career.

Chet Wynne played fullback, a big fellow, who later coached at Creighton University and last year led Auburn to the Southern championship.

Anderson, himself, has coached at Columbia College of Dubuque, Iowa, and at DePaul University of Chicago.

He was frankly dismayed at the opening fall training session.

Long accustomed to the tremendous squads of middle western colleges, his 35 or 40 Holy Cross turnout, came as a tremendous shock. Inured to large numbers of shock troop candidates which could be flung into active scrimmage fray, he is frankly skeptical at continuing his contact sessions, for with only a limited number of first class prospects in sight, a few injuries at this time would wreak havoc with the Purple's ambitions.

Frisch Denies 'Laying Down' When Street Was Pilot

St. Louis, Sept. 15 (AP).—A statement by Gabby Street, recently removed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, that Frankie Frisch did not "put forth his best efforts" for him, today brought a sharp denial from the present manager, who said he "just can't understand why 'the old Sarge' would say those things about me."

Declaring "I am getting tired of being made the goat for the poor showing of the Cardinals in 1932 and the slump this year," Street said at Joplin that he sought to assess a fine of $5000 on Frisch and suspend him last year.

"I felt," Street said, "that Frisch was not putting forth his best efforts. Breadon (Sam Breadon, Cardinal president) vetoed the plan, saying Frisch might quit the Cardinals like he quit McGraw."

"Let him quit," Street said he replied, "but he refused to back me up. It was just a case of Frisch having me where he wanted me and could do as he pleased. When the Cardinal management refused to back me up on my fine on Frisch, I refused from that time on to fine any of the lesser players on the theory of, 'What's the use?'"

Street also said Frisch and Pepper Martin, Cardinal [illegible] man, had an argument [illegible]burgh this spring after Martin made the accusation Frisch was not hustling."

Alley, according to Manager Nate Podoloff, has leased the Arena [illegible] season.

West Point, N. Y., Sept. [illegible] [illegible] ing linemen as the Cadets finish their second week of practice today.

Capt. Jablonsky, crack guard, and Pete Kopesak, star end, are the only regulars of last fall to return. There are enough '32 reserves to form a strong frontier. Capable substitutes for the first-stringers is Davidson's chief worry.

There isn't an abundance of experienced backs around, either. [illegible]

LOU LITTLE LOOKS FOR LINEMEN

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—The frankenstein of victory that Lou Little has built in three successful football campaigns at Columbia is beginning to pursue him.

Twice in succession now, the rejuvenated Lions have ploughed through a season marred by only one defeat, Cornell by a touchdown in 1931, Brown by a single [illegible]. The next logical [illegible] undefeated eleven [illegible] no matter [illegible] the Co[illegible] [illegible]

"We'll have a pretty good team," he says, "but, as a matter of fact, we're not as strong as we were last season. I'm looking high and low in this squad for men to replace two great linemen of last year, Steve Grenda and George Sherwood. I've got to find them if we're going anywhere."

BARABASA STAR

The departure of Grenda, a grand running guard, and Sherwood, a burly tackle, along with Manuel Rivero, his best blocking back, are Little's only important losses from the 1932 eleven. The rest of his team, with Capt. Cliff Montgomery, a brilliant running, kicking and passing quarter, heading a list of capable backs, is intact. He has a sensational end in red-headed Tony Matal, and one of the east's outstanding centers in Newell Wilder. Steve Zamba is a splendid guard, [illegible]

"The only outstanding sophomore joining us this fall is Al Barabas, a back, but he is a dandy," said the outspoken leader. "He weighs around 190, the biggest back I've had since Tony Plansky at Georgetown. He's a smart, attentive, powerful runner and plunger. But to offset that, Frank Cippendale, my best fullback, is sick and won't be out until next month.

"It's going to be a tough season because the opposition is stronger, with the possible exception of Cornell, all along the line. Princeton will be one of the best in the East, and Navy may top them all. They're about due down there. Syracuse had a sophomore team last fall, and another year will have about made them.

"We'll do more kicking than ever this fall if Montgomery isn't hurt. In fact, I think many of the teams this year will play a safety game. It's gotten so now that you've got to save your regulars every minute you can. Replacements to keep an attack running through four quarters just aren't available any more."

Joe Jacobs Will Pilot Kingfish After Chicago Bout

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 15.—The heavyweight battle between Jack Sharkey and King Levinsky, scheduled for tonight at Comiskey Park, has been postponed until next Monday evening because of cold and threatening weather.

By JACK CONWAY

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Jack Sharkey and King Levinsky will try to furnish Chicago with the greatest boxing thrill it has received since Jack Dempsey battled Gene Tunney here six years ago when they trade punches [illegible] Comiskey Park Monday, under [illegible]

It is the most important heavyweight contest that has been arranged for Chicago since the Dempsey-Tunney affair.

Sharkey continues to rule a 3 to 1 favorite in the betting. There is very little Levinsky money in sight.

George Getz, veteran member of the Illinois Athletic Commission revealed today that Levinsky is going under the management of Joe Jacobs, pilot of Max Schmeling.

"I met Jacobs in New York at the Ross-Canzoneri bout," Getz told me. "He said he would be at the ringside to see Sharkey and Levinsky battle, and that he is all set to step in as manager of the Kingfish."

Doc Casey, who used to train Jack Delaney for Jacobs, has put Levinsky into condition for his tussle with Sharkey.

[illegible] the Sharkey-Levinsky [illegible]

"We didn't name a Jewish official for the Barney Ross-Tony Canzoneri title bout in Chicago," said Packey McFarland, "and Ross ended up with a well won decision. I believe a Jewish official is more inclined to bend backwards in his desire to not favor Jewish boxers."

KINGFISH GAMBLES

"We are anxious that the boxer who displays the most ability leave the ring with the decision. It would be a black eye to boxing in Chicago if the officials did anything improper."

The advance sale up to this morning was $30,000. It was expected that with a fair break in the weather the show would do between $50,000 and $60,000.

Sharkey [illegible] the receipts until after the show has drawn $11,000. He will then receive 60 per cent of what comes in at the box office. A gate of $40,000 would give Levinsky $6,000.

MUNGER AND MARSTON ALL SQUARE AT 12TH IN AMATEUR

LITTLE RALLIES TO TIE DUNLAP AT THE NINTH

Kenwood Country Club, Cincinnati, Sept. 15 (AP)—Max R. Marston, of Philadelphia, former titleholder, and 18-year-old Jack Munger of Dallas, Texas, were all square after nine holes of their 36-hole semi-final duel in the United States amateur golf championship today.

W. Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco, made a great comeback to finish the first nine holes all square with George T. Dunlap, Jr., his New York rival. Little dropped the first three holes before he pulled his game together and levelled the match by winning the sixth, seventh and eighth in a row.
. hbmhdr-obsstreetmfpuledoemfeb

Munger took the lead twice on the outgoing nine but lost it on each of the long par-five holes. Marston missed a chance to go in front by three-putting the ninth where the youngster was trapped. A drizzling rain fell most of the way and both had trouble playing off the soggy ground.

The galleries were the smallest of the week due to the weather and downfall of the big favorites. Scarcely 200 spectators followed each semi-final.

Munger win the 10th to become one up. Marston hooked into the rough from the tee and failed to recover successfully from a bad lie. His third hit the side of the cup on the bounce but caromed eight feet away and he missed the putt. Munger was hole high with his second and two putted for a winning four.

Marston won th 11th with a birdie three sinking a 10-foot putt to square the match again.

3 TWIN BILLS IN ROW FOR SOX

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—A revised schedule of doubleheaders and play-offs was announced by President Will Harridge of the American League today as follows:

Sept. 16—St. Louis at Philadelphia, doubleheader. (Second game of doubleheader scheduled for Sept. 14 moved down.) Chicago at Boston, doubleheader. (Game of Sept. 15 rained out.)

Sept. 17—Chicago at Boston, doubleheader. (Game of Sept. 14 moved down.)

Sept. 18—Chicago at New York, doubleheader.

Sept. 18—Cleveland at Boston, single game. (Moved up from Sept. 20.)

Sept. 19—Chicago at New York, doubleheader. (Air game of Aug. 1 transferred from Chicago.)

Sept. 21—Cleveland at Boston, no game. (Played May 28.)

Sept. 24—St. Louis at Detroit, doubleheader. (Tie game of Sept. 3 transferred from St. Louis.)

Sept. 27—New York at Philadelphia, doubleheader.

NATIONAL POLO OFF AGAIN

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—The start of the open polo championships, scheduled for tomorrow at International field, Meadow Brook, today was indefinitely postponed because of the continuous rains, which have made the field unfit for play.

In announcing the postponement, F. S. O'Reilly, secretary of the U. S. P. A., said it might be possible to start play Sunday if the rain should cease, but that it was unlikely play could begin before next week.

The National Polo Pony Show, which was to have been held today at Meadow Brook, was postponed until next Friday, September 22.

Eastern Outboard Regatta Deferred

Philadelphia, Sept. 15 (AP)—The two-day [illegible] outboard and motorboat championship regatta, scheduled to begin today on the Schuylkill River, was postponed because of rain.

The regatta will start tomorrow, and the Fairmount Park Commission will decide whether the river course may be used Sunday. If this is ruled out, the regatta will conclude Monday. The race for the Sir Thomas Lipton trophy will be held on the second day of the regatta.

Arthur Kobel, Lynn Y. M. C. A. runner, is shown breasting the tape at the finish of the 110-yard handicap run, feature performance of the track meet held at the Brockton Fair. Kobel nosed out Ed Lutynski, Worcester, and Edward Walsh, Cambridge. Kobel came from behind in the last few yards to win, after starting from scratch.

N. E. DRIVERS IN FAIR RACE

Fourteen New England race drivers will compete against an equal number of Pacific Coast, Midwest and national auto racing stars in the Brockton Fair A. A. A. automobile races tomorrow afternoon, in which Fred Frame, 1932 Indianapolis speedway winner and 1933 Elgin road race victor, will be the outstanding star.

Chet Gardner, Frankie Brisko and Paul Bost of Indianapolis exploits will add speedway flavor with Vern Orenduff, Lloyd Vieaux, Ken Fowler, Otto Burdick, Hawkeye Gerber, Click Clark, Bill Patterson, Doc Dunton and Bill Drake, providing invading dirt track talent.

New England drivers are:

Heuser Slices Easily, Butcher Lou'll Find

By DAVID F. EGAN

The resignation which the old Colonel wrote to the American yesterday, on the grounds that they needed a doctor and not a sports writer to cover the Red Sox, has been rescinded.

While Jack Conway is in Chicago covering the doings at the shindig between Squire Sharkey and King Levinsky, your correspondent will hasten to write an opus about the noble art of boxing.

In baseball, it seems, players are injured. But boxing is just a simple sport, where nobody hurts anybody or anything except the feelings of the pew-holders. So your correspondent would like to discuss the bout between Adolph Heuser and Lou Brouillard, a debate which will be held on the Garden rostrum a week from tonight.

The dirty finger of Fate which has pointed at your envoy will probably continue to point, for the finger is on me. The Harvard crew which I covered lost by some sixteen lengths of open water, and when an outboard motor was suggested, the works were in. I wasn't a crew writer any more.

So I covered a cricket match one cold, brilliant Sunday afternoon with George Collins. I thought it was fromagenous, which means cheesy. I said it was lousy, which it was, so there were no more spirited stories about cricket from the facile pen of Col. Egan from then on. The subject was taboo.

RASSLERS BARRED COLONEL

Rassling? Yes, the old Colonel has caught them right in his lap, and with a slight sneer curling on his upper lip, has disdainfully thrown them back again, to earn their money. I wiped my hands of them. It took pumice-stone, but I did it, so now the Old Colonel is writing genteel sports, like boxing.

I am afraid that the cold clammy hand of Fate is still on my right shoulder. The Finger is still pointing. Blood will be spilt, I'm afeard, and Dr. Egan, now a full-fledged graduate, will be there to report all the horrid details.

Herr Heuser slices easily, even when he's not in there with a butcher. But Mister Brouillard is the butcher-boy. We all underrated him around New England, when he first came out, thus proving ourselves experts.

Brouillard was a s[illegible]y, charging welterweight in the days when Mello was a faded memory, and Shevlin and Siegal were chromoes. The boys who rode through the ages in the press row pronounced Brouillard a dud.

MELLO FOLDED

He beat Mello because the Mello legs crumbled late in the battle.

He beat Young Jack Thompson for the welterweight championship of the world and they said that Thompson was all in.

He beat Jimmy McLarnin, and they said that McLarnin could not fight a southpaw.

He knocked out Ben Jeby for the light-heavy, a good fighter. It did not take the Jeby fight to convice them. It took all the fights he has had since he fought Mello to tell them.

So I am afraid that when Brouillard and Heuser come to blows, the referee may have to call a doctor, in which event I resign again.

School Slants

By BILL CONNELL

A good indication of Salem's real power can be found tomorrow when the Witches open their season against Lynn General Electric Apprentices at Bertram Field, Salem. Bill Broderick's Salem group has the marks of greatness but the Lynn team, heavy, may prove a tougher hurdle than the home team expects.

Maynard is carded to play at Gardner, and Quincy at Haverhill in other games tomorrow. Malden and Wakefield do not play until a week from tomorrow, though many folks have the impression that the latter schools go tomorrow. Malden vs. Wakefield on the 23rd is the bill.

A very fine prep school lineman this fall will be Andy Brady, former Brighton high boy, who captains St. John's Prep. Andy stands 6-2 and weighs a bit over 200 pounds. He can perform well at either tackle or guard, and is fast, so makes an A-1 leader for Tom McNamara's eleven, which plays most of its games at the new St. John's stadium in Danvers this year.

Lack of equipment has hindered Swampscott High School, but Coach Jack McLaughlin hopes to have the candidates fitted out next week when the schedule opens. Some of the boys have worked out in makeshift grid attire, yet appear to enjoy the sessions as much as if they had the finest kind of football gear.

A nephew of Coach Tom Whelan of Lynn English, is understudying Quarterback Benny Collier of Lynn Classical. He is Bart Whelan, who thinks it would be the best of all triumphs to mastermind his team to victory over English in the annual Thanksgiving Day war.

Amherst Ballplayers Aid Gridmen in Drill

Amherst, Sept. 15—Appealing to baseball stars on hand in an effort to bolster the Sabrina aerial attack, Coach Lloyd Jordan sent the Amherst varsity football team through a double workout on Pratt field.

With four infielders out for football, Coach Jordan put Walt Murphy and Phil Clark, shortstops; Russ Whitmeyer, third baseman, and Capt. Hal Warner, first sacker, through a long passing drill.

Port Chester Grind to Be Held Oct. 12

Entry blanks are out for the ninth annual Port Chester marathon to be held on Columbus Day, Thursday, Oct. 12, starting at a point in New York City and finishing at Port Chester, N. Y. Trophies will be given the first 10 to finish and souvenir medals to the next 40.

Passas Is Twelve Times as Good!

Steve Passas is as determined as ever to again become the light heavyweight wrestling champion in the eyes of Promoter Charlie Gordon.

The former title-holder will meet Mephisto, Gordon's current king, in a return bout at Machanics Building on Tuesday evening next.

"I'm 12 times as good as Mephisto," claims Passas. "I held the title for eight years. He's had it only eight months. And his reign is about to end."

One "Knockout" Conley of Texas, faces a certain Paddy Mack in the semifinals. There will be prelims, of course.

Middlebury Squad Holds Skull Practice

Middlebury, Vt., Sept. 15—Practice was called off at the Middlebury College football training camp because of rain and instead the squad devoted its attention to blackboard sessions by Coach Beck. Defensive and offensive tactics in grid systems were stressed along with plays and formations.

Camden Racing Ends With Trophes

Camden, Me., Sept. 15—The third and last series of races with the Finnish sailboats class has ended with award of cups and prizes for individual races here.

Already more boats have been ordered, so it is expected that fully 25 will be out on the races next summer.

Sheriff Relents, Horse Runs, Old Homestead Is Saved

Cincinnati, Sept. 15 (AP)—Abe Furst is a horse whose races have been many, but slow. To aging O. G. Brown, Abe was a last hope.

City Sheriff James Burgess appeared at Brown's home.

"Mr. Brown," said Burgess, "we have an attachment on Abe, and we are serving it on you. we must take the horse."

The debt was $10^.

Brown looked despairingly at the sky, which was gray with rain.

"Won't you let him run today?" he entreated. "I'm sure he'll win."

The third, a claiming race, at Coney Island, offered a purse of $600. The sheriff relented. Abe Furst ran.

ACE RIDER UP ON FIRST WINNER

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Sept. 15—Those race fans who followed the fortunes of Jockey Jackie Westrope, champion apprentice rider of the year were looking forward here today to the appearance of their favorite on the first winner he ever rode, O. L. Foster's Lerack, in the third race.

They were destined for disappointment, however, when Lerack was scratched. Westrope's mount would be announced at post time.

Westrope caused hardly a ripple among the players when he booted Lerack home first at Oriental Park, Havana, on January 25 of this year, but now he is a tidal wave. Sentimental followers of racing expressed the feeling that the little 90-pound dynamo will try to repeat with Lerack now that he is a champion.

The race was to be one of seven, all of the claiming variety, on the program and all, with the exception of the fifth, for purses of $700. The fifth event was planned as the feature of the day. It offered a purse of $800 and carried the title "Lawrence Telegram Purse."

RUNNING PLAY LIKED

The Lawrence Telegram Purse, a journey of a mile and a 16th, had a possible field of eight starters, among them Little Stokes, the half-mile track champion of Maryland. Westrope was to be in the saddle on Vested Power while Earl Porter, who is showing the Montana lad the way here, had the pre-race favorite Kneehigh.

Last time out Kneehigh indicated his readiness to go and a distinct liking for the track. Kneehigh was held a morning line favorite to win at odds of 3 to 1. The race, to the so-called wise ones, was to be between Kneehigh and Vested Power. But Little Stokes had his followers. Yowell, who had three winners, yesterday, was to ride the 15 to 1 shot, Modern Ace, and Robertson, on Banderlog, was given a chance to cop.

Another route event, also a mile and 16th, was to close the program. Robertson had accepted the mount on Boundless Deep in this race and the word was around that both were a winning combine today. Garlic, however, in at even weights with Boundless Deep 111 pounds, looked like the horse to beat, with Yowell or Axenby given a good chance to surprise.

KNEEHIGH READY

Running Play, long looked for to head a chart here, was made the pre-race favorite in the mile sixth. Robertson also had this one. Robertson has been riding disappointingly on the C. V. Whitney horses of late, but he undeniably has marked ability as a rider and his friends expected him to wake up today.

Running Play, although rated highly, was to hook up with a tough racehorse in Bun D. The clever Yowell was to pilot Bun D. and the consensus was that the pair would cause a lot of trouble before the race was over. Earl Porter on Fairly Wild and Westrope on Redivivus were the other threats in the field.

The morning liners had listed only four 20 to 1 shots in the entire program and those who liked long chances couldn't see why Gonspray, in the third, with O'Malley up, or Hot Cake, in the sixth, should be so rated. Another well liked one, Beau Cavalier, to be ridden by Yowell in the fourth, appeared good at 10 to 1.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Chicago, Sept. 15—It took the news about lower prices at football games, with the various stadiums scaled in price range, 11 months to catch up with this column. I made the definite announcement last October that even Jawn Harvard would adjust his price scale to meet the reduced bank roll of Mister Average Citizen.

I always considered it silly to ask the same price for seats on the end of stadiums as one gets for pasteboards on the 40-yard line. Football followers apparently held a similar idea. They refused to buy the end seats. Last year most of these seats remained vacant.

Mr. Boston

College spirit is a very fine thing, but graduates and students should not be obliged to kick in top money to get a seat from where they are lucky if they can hear the cheering.

The general public has gone in for college football during the past few years. It is necessary to offer seats at reasonable prices to keep these customers.

Professional football promoters have been smart enough to realize that the price of tickets is an important item to the average person attending games. One of the reasons for the success of the Redskins last fall was the fact the price of tickets was kept within easy reach of all.

College football has been conducted by young men who have had very little business experience. They even argued that the depression would not injure the attendance figures at their games. They required empty stands at so-called crucial contests to convince them they were wrong.

* * *

Low Prices Necessary

I have taken some personal satisfaction in the tremendous success of the various boxing and wrestling shows conducted for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American during the past four years. Each promotion has been a financial success.

There were two reasons for this. First class attractions and reasonable prices for tickets. The Christmas Fund committee was the first organization to recognize the economic situation in its relations to sports.

Attendance figures were held up, and substantial amounts of money were raised for a most worthy charity.

Even if it did take four years to drive home the argument for lower prices with some of our youthful college intellectuals, the final result is a good one. More people will attend college football.

* * *

Schoolboy Concessions

College authorities also acted wisely in making special concessions in prices to schoolboys. After all, they are the future supporters of sports, and should receive every possible consideration.

FINASTS BID FOR TITLE

Arlington Pals makes its debut in the Suburban Twilight league play-off series when it entertains First National Stores in the first game of a three out of five-game series in the semifinal round, at the Spy Pond Field, Arlington, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The second game of the series will be played at Richard Trum field, Somerville, on Sunday, at 3 o'clock. First National Stores gave a convincing demonstration of its class by coming through its series with Stoneham Cubs undefeated in five games. Two of the games resulted in ties, and the other three were taken by the hard-hitting Fi-na-st boys.

Either Euson "Chippy" Gaw, leading pitcher in the Suburban Twi league last year, or Jimmy Powers of Boston College will toe the mound for the Pals in Saturday's game, while Lefty Zampell, who defeated Stoneham twice in three days, will work for First National. The winner of this series will enter the final round of the championship series with either Hall's All Stars or the winner of Sunday's game between Cambridge Red Sox and North Cambridge K. of C.

Saturday will be a red letter day for the Pals, for in addition to marking the Arlington team's first play-off experience the team will be presented with a loving cup by the Arlington Veterans of Foreign Wars in recognition of its fine showing in winning a playoff berth.

A pitchers' battle is expected to develop when the Somerset Pals and the Ingalls A. C. clash in a doubleheader at Lincoln Park, Somervill, on Sunday afternoon.

JOHNNY PATERNO, TERRIER BACK, LOST TO B. U. FOR SEASON

OLD INJURY IS JINX TO STAR PUNTER

The outside world may treat Boston University lightly as far as football is concerned, but the Terrier gridmen take their game seriously and as a result are now [illegible] this morning.

Dr. Welman B. Christie, the team's physician, was the bearer of the news. After a complete examination he announced today that Johnny Alabam Paterno, Boston University's crashing fullback, is out for the season.

As the outlook appeared prior to today, Boston University was expected to have a strong line but a weak backfield with the exception of Paterno. He was the only regular back from last year scheduled to play and plans were to build the offensive around him.

The torn cartilage he received last year when he was injured in the Providence game signed his football farewell, although it was not known at the time.

KICK REVEALS HURT

Alabam reported Monday after resting all summer and baking his knee in the sun. He worked out easily Monday and everything looked fine. Tuesday, however, he started running and kicking and his knee puffed up immediately.

He rested Wednesday and yesterday. Dr. Christie gave him an examination and another this morning. After looking Alabam over this morning he announced definitely that the risk of permanent injury was too great and that meant the finish of a great fighting football player.

Johnny entered Boston University two years ago after having played tackle for the freshman team at [illegible] of Alabama. He was ineligible but worked out [illegible] to keep in shape and strengthen the [illegible].

Last year he came out and had [illegible] difficulty winning a berth [illegible] shifted him to fullback. In his new position he proved to be the best ground gaining back on the squad and one of the best defensive fullbacks the Terriers have ever had.

BACKFIELD BROKEN UP

Everything was fine until the Providence game. As a second [illegible] the two teams were [illegible] through Johnny's defensive work. Immediately after he was carried from the field a column of [illegible] Providence [illegible] and chalked up a 13 to 6 win.

Paterno's loss means the backfield [illegible] Rube [illegible] 178 pound [illegible] backfield yesterday and Ed [illegible] Reads [illegible] today.

[illegible] has been an end for two years but has been much too light to see much action. He weighs 145 pounds now and if he shows anything [illegible] Coach Dave Morey may work him into the starting quartet.

SCHOOL STARS ON MURPHY 11

The Murphy Club eleven of Dorchester is preparing for a strenuous season. The team is composed of ex-high school players. It completed a fine record last year, defeating some of the best amateur teams in the state. Included on the roster are Sullivan and Gillen from English High, Kelleck, Marceron and McDonald from Mechanic Arts High and Reeds, Martin and McKenna from the High School of Commerce. The team still has a few open dates. Communicate with Frank McLaughlin, 19 Thomas st., Dorchester.

West End House Nine in Windup

The West End House will close the season playing St. Lazarus of East Boston in a two-game series. The first game will take place tomorrow on the Boston Common and the second game at Noyes Playground, East Boston, Sunday.

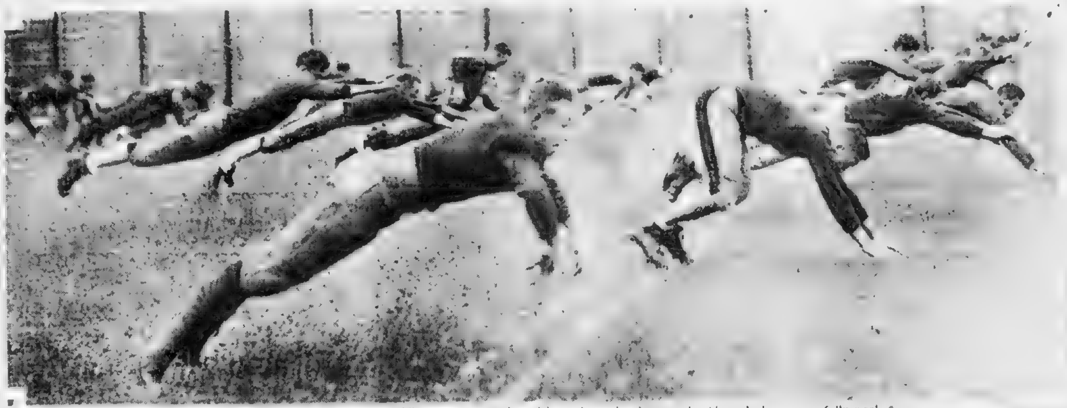
Harvard Finds -:- Gridders Descend -:- From Kangaroos



Evolutionists would have crowed with delight if they stepped to Soldiers Field this morning for Harvard's opening grass drill of the football drive. For it seems in the above scene that the Crimson gridsters must have evolved from kangaroos. This brand new type of workout was under the direction of Director of Physical Education Fraad of Harvard. He claims the exercise will strengthen abdominal muscles, knees and ankles, which were woefully weak points of Harvard gridmen last fall. So maybe the kangaroo workout will give the Crimson a new kick when the wars start. Fraad's grass drill sends the men through an entirely new course. The exercise is tough but it is expected to insure the squad against many a painful fart.

Harvard Squad Slashed From 100-Odd to 58

The 1933 Harvard football season was scarcely two hours old, when Head Coach Eddie Casey let fall the axe in the first preliminary cut of the season. In one fell swoop the Crimson roster was reduced from 100-odd members to exactly 58 players.

Casey departed from tradition in one respect when he created for the first time in Harvard football history a Varsity A and Varsity B squad in addition to the regular junior varsity corps.

Varsity A, composed of those who have already proved themselves [illegible] either varsity, junior varsity or freshman football during previous seasons, consists of some 35 players with 23 promising or doubtful athletes relegated to the B squad. This gives Casey a varsity group of approximately 60 men. As many more at the close of the morning's session were ordered to report to Jimmy Knox, junior varsity mentor.

According to Casey's present plan, the Varsity B squad will work out on the varsity field along with the A group under the command of freshman coach Cliff Gallagher and his assistants until the yearling candidates report on Monday, September 25.

CASEY RULES ROOST

This will keep the entire varsity squad within the general scope of Casey's attention, yet will allow him to spend more time and effort with the more experienced players upon whom he must depend most. This afternoon the B squad will discard the varsity raiment and will don freshman uniforms, thus distinguishing them from the regulars.

On Sept. 25 Casey will dissolve varsity B, selecting a dozen of the more promising to become members of the varsity and dispatch the remainder to the junior varsity.

The initial cut left Casey with a fairly representative group of athletes, prominent among whom were 18 winners of major letters, [illegible] wearers of minor football awards and eight of last year's fine freshman outfit, of whom four are backs.

Casey retained 11 backs, five ends, six tackles and guards, three centers and three quarterbacks, for a total of 33 men. On the varsity B squad there are seven backs, four ends, as many tackles and guards and a pair of centers.

For backfield strength Casey has Capt. Johnny Dean, Arthur Barrett, Charlie Nevin, Carl De Consolide, Allan Sherman, Richard Waterman, major lettermen; Tommy Locke, minor letterman; Freeman Gibbs, Cedric Janien, Francis [illegible] and Frederick Moseley, sophomores; Stanton Whitney, Harry Wells and Derb Peter, lettermen, and John Haley, star of the freshman club a couple of years ago, are the signal barkers.

NAZRO END VET

Tommy Nazro is the only end boasting a major award, although Bob Lowe has a minor letter. Frederick Crocker, 1932 [illegible], Shaun Kelly, captain of last year's freshmen, and [illegible] White, another former yearling, comprise the wing squad.

Dave Kopans, eligible after a year's absence, Leon Francis and Eddy Rogers are three lettermen at tackle who with Morris Kopans, a comer who was kept out of the lineup as a sophomore last year, and the giant freshman tackles Wilson, Burton and Malcolm Millard, make the Crimson fairly strong at that position.

Herman Gundlach, Jack Healey, lettermen; Frank Schuman, Frank Casale, minor lettermen; Bob Brooking, former freshman captain, and the sophomore George Guilan, former Newton all-scholastic, are the varsity guards. Frank Crane, letterman, John Lockwood and Warren Casey, both of whom received minor awards, comprise the trio of pivot men.

The Varsity B roster lists as backs John Adzigian, Ben Reale, Nat Tenney, Ellis French, Bob Hurlbut, George Lavallee and Frank Littlefield.

Ends: David Cheever, Janis Porter, Chester Lutman and Stanley Howson.

Tackle: Graham Spring, Dan Drinkwater, John Cullen and Joseph Choate.

Guards: Nathaniel Hatchford, Edmund W. Walsh, Dickson Smith, William Locke.

REDSKINS OFF FOR GREEN BAY

Boston, Sept. 15—Boston Redskins leave here today for Green Bay, Wis., where they will open the professional season on Sunday against the famous Green Bay Packers.

The new Boston mentor stated that [illegible] were primed for the opening battle. He was unable to find a sore spot among the squad.

Twenty-four hours ago, the Boston mentor felt certain of his starting lineup, but he was quite indefinite about [illegible] after today's workout. [illegible] that Dick Smith, former Ohio State center, looked so good that Dietz [illegible] considering giving him [illegible] when [illegible] Sunday.

Linesmen's Night on Revere Mat

Football stars from West and East [illegible] in the main bout of Alex Maclean's wrestling show next Tuesday at Rollaway, Revere. George Linneman, former St. Mary's lineman, will grapple with Harry Lundin, another lineman from Cornell.

Linneman has been defeated only by Karl Zbyszko at Revere this summer and is a great favorite with the fans. It will be Lundin's first appearance at the beach. He is a big, powerful youngster and employs the tackle with [illegible] effect [illegible] other big time wrestlers [illegible] spent much time on the mat when in college.

There will be four other bouts on the card.

FORGET THAT MILLIONS GLADLY PAID 10 CENTS

Forget that Bayuk "Phillies"—for years—was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Forget that Bayuk "Phillies" today—at 5c—is guaranteed to be the same identical 10-cent cigar.

Forget even the good things your dealer and friends may be telling you about the value of this fine cigar.

What we ask is that you try a Bayuk "Phillies" and judge it yourself. Is it the cigar—of all cigars—you'll enjoy most to smoke? We can't guarantee this—of course. But we can tell you that more men enjoy Bayuk "Phillies"—and smoke it regularly—than any other cigar in America. It must be the cigar that most smokers like best.

If you are not entirely satisfied with your present cigar . . . if you have the slightest doubt about the value you get for your money—try at least one Bayuk "Phillies". There's a fresh box on your dealer's counter.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Handmade") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

McKechnie's a Dour Boss

Frisch Has Nothing on Braves Pilot as Stern Disciplinarian

Rules With Iron Hand in Not-So-Velvet Glove at Tepee

By JOE CASHMAN

That Frisch [illegible] must be a hard-boiled manager.

The [illegible] is the opinion of veteran members of the St. Louis Cardinals that baseball was a lark under Bill McKechnie and Gabby Street.

Father McKechnie has subsisted on a diet of rusty nails since leaving the Mound City to come to Boston or the Fordham Flash is the strictest task master to appear on the big league scene since his old boss, John McGraw, stepped off the [illegible] bench.

For as [illegible] member of the Braves [illegible], McKechnie ranks with the sternest disciplinarians in the game. As long as the athletes live up to the rules and hustle they have nothing to fear. And his rules are not difficult to obey. But let him find one of his charges stepping out of bound and patient, calm Wilkinsburg Will becomes fury personified.

It isn't often that Bill has to exercise his authority. The boys shiver merely thinking of what would happen to them if they broke any of the commandments. Law and order is the rule in the Tribal household.

One of Bill's pet hates is horse play on the bench or even in the clubhouse. Baseball is serious business to [illegible] and he insists that his charges at least give the impression of feeling the same way about it by leaving levity outside when they enter the park.

A few of the lads were fooling in the clubhouse one day. During their capers, a bucket of water was knocked over. Bill walked in on the flood. In an instant the air was blue with his profanity.

"If I could find out who did that," he bellowed, "I guarantee he'd never do it again."

Occasionally, after a hard-earned victory, the Warriors get a little playful if the boss isn't around, but they always keep a sentry on the door to signal his approach.

We ran in on them one day while they were dropping cracked ice down each other's necks. One shot missed the mark and a handful of the frozen cubes scattered over the floor. Everybody turned janitor immediately to clean up before Pilot Bill entered. That's the sort of [illegible] it is under McKechnie.

Mind you the Warriors don't rate their chief as a tough guy to work for. He isn't, either. He detests finding fault or scolding. He doesn't crab over defeats that couldn't be avoided. He doesn't second guess his players or coaches. He gives his charges more liberty outside the ball park than probably any other pilot in the business.

Still, it's hard to contemplate a manager so hard-boiled that playing under Wilkinsburgh Will would be considered a lark.

The Cardinals, they tell you, aren't openly complaining about Frisch's rule of iron but they don't like it. The Giants didn't always take kindly to McGraw and he was the most successful of pilots. So Frisch probably isn't worrying about what the Cards think of him.

It must be remembered though that McGraw was one of the very few [illegible] and thunder bosses who gained fame. And most of his managerial career was during a time when players expected to be and most of them had to be handled with a mailed fist.

Your average athlete has changed greatly since the heyday of the Little Napoleon. He has an entirely different attitude toward life, sport and [illegible]. He realizes that he stands to lose more than his employer if he doesn't stay in shape and tend to business. So he sticks pretty closely to his knitting. In return, he expects his bosses to recognize this fact and treat him as a human being rather than an automaton.

Furthermore, he can be led but he won't be driven. He resents lashing, and laughs at pep talks.

The smartest baseball managers, football coaches and leaders in other branches of sports are aware of this change and have altered their methods accordingly.

Another handicap that Frisch faces in putting over his autocratic system is his position as second baseman as well as pilot of his club. An elderly bench manager can be aloof but a young pilot who is out there in the thick of the battle every day can't go high hat on his mates as Frankie is alleged to be doing without causing plenty of dissension in the ranks.

The Fordham Flash may prove a great manager, but he has 400 major league players rooting against him. They don't like that type of boss and success for Frankie might mean more slave drivers, you know.

LENORE ULRIC TO MAKE FILM

Sidney Blackmer Also Invited to Play Opposite Wife in Picture for Radio

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 15.—Lenore Ulric's intention of divorce, filed in Mexico and answered by her husband, Sidney Blackmer, has never gone further than the original papers. Maybe Lenore has changed her mind. She will tell us when she reaches Hollywood, for Lenore is coming here to make a picture for Radio.

Louella Parsons

Here's the punch of the story: Sidney Blackmer [illegible] how he would [illegible] to play opposite Miss Ulric in her first [illegible] picture. He says [illegible] having made his most outstanding stage success as her leading man. [illegible] signed [illegible] for one picture with options for more, says the former [illegible] has lost 15 pounds and looks great.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Dining tete a tete with Spencer Tracy, going to the movies with him, and forgetting all her other admirers has made Hollywood wonder about Loretta Young. The reason for this Tracy interest is given as a plan Miss Young and Mr. Tracy have to star in a stage play together this coming season. Mrs. Tracy insists that Spencer's interest in Loretta has nothing to do with her separation from the [illegible] actor. She and Spencer agreed to part long before he became interested in Loretta.

The laugh is on me. A well meaning friend told me that Lady Lucie, daughter of the Duke of Kent, was [illegible] [illegible] to Hollywood to have a test made and would make her first social appearance at the Donald Ogden Stewart party. A telephone conversation with a maid at the Earle home seemingly corroborated the story. I printed it. Then came telegrams, letters and telephone calls. The last Duke of Kent was the father of [illegible] Queen Victoria, [illegible] been mouldering in his [illegible] many years. Even [illegible] legitimate daughter would be [illegible] for the old lady. [illegible] The next time I print anything about royalty I'll study Burke's peerage and get my facts straight. Come on and laugh.

Yesterday — a radiantly happy young married couple—glowing with health—buoyant in spirits—deeply in love.
Today — miserable — desperate — facing illness — tortured by fear of the cruel consequences of a dreaded infection.
Tomorrow — medical science, courage, and their faith in one another assure that these young people will come through their time of trial to a new day of hope and happiness.

Learn how they escape the shadow of this sinister and menacing disease, which, when uncurbed, leaves in its trail an appalling wreckage of human lives.

You'll like this boy and girl. They're real. You'll laugh with them and weep with them, and rejoice that they find a way out. And you'll NEVER forget their story.

It might have happened to anyone. It might happen to you.

Inflation Talk Is Less Effective As Price Stimulant

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The alternate wails and screeches by southern gentlemen for inflation seem to be losing potency as price raising factors. Action appears to be needed if various markets are to respond with bullish demonstrations. Even then there are skeptics who claim that prices of equities and commodities have already discounted inflationary measures to a great extent. Witness senatorial inflationary barrage during market hours without price raising effect.

While price raising is so earnestly desired by one section other important political divisions are starting to make plaintive protests about too high prices. These emanate largely from northern manufacturing centers. It is not a pretty picture and stock market affairs are portraying it accurately by rather jerky movements. We must be prepared for sudden orders to abandon positions along the bull battle front.

Stock Exchange Seen as Unlikely to Move

New York, Sept. 15 (INS). Move the stock exchange to Jersey? The question is just inconceivable to the New Yorker. Like the moving of Mt. Rainier would seem to Tacoma and Spokane or as towing the bay down to Los Angeles would be considered in San Francisco.

It couldn't be done, says the New Yorker. And it would seem that he is right for once.

Taxes or no taxes the stock exchange cannot move. It is a machine which would take years to duplicate, even if its governors were willing to make the tremendous investment of building another. Here are a few statistics.

Within the marble walls of the great temple at Broad and Wall Streets are strung 20,000 miles of telephone wire.

More than 1000 telephones [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] excited about moving. There have been no inquiries either at Newark or Jersey City for docking privileges for commuting yachts.

The joker to Wall Street in the city's new tax law of four cents a share on transfers is the provision that it should apply only to transactions for residents of New York City.

Wall Street feels that the speculator will be just a clever about establishing residence outside the city for trading purposes as [illegible] in the suburbs [illegible] maintaining [illegible] residences for voting.

At any rate Wall Street [illegible] hope of having a friend at City Hall even if there is a change in administration.

LOSSES RULE IN STOCKS, VOLUME DRIES UP

New York, Sept. 15—Indecision seized financial markets today as news and nations bobbed about on contrary currents.

Stocks, after emulating their early spurt of yesterday, dropped back and generally cancelled inaugural gains of 1 to 2 or more points.

The mining shares, however, once more displayed resistance, as did a few of the farm shares and various specialties. The utilities continued heavy, most of the leaders in this group losing 1 to 2 or more points.

Grains steadied following early uncertainties and cotton moved up as the dollar declined in foreign exchange dealings. Stocks seemingly paid little attention to the dollar's weakness. Bonds were rather easy.

Homestake mining shares advanced some 11 points to another new year's high.

Brokers who usually handle most of the wire orders report there is little public participation in stocks at the moment, and that the principal turnover in equities is being accounted for by professional floor traders.

In the first hour gold mining and liquor shares again moved higher at the opening, where gains of a fraction to a point were common. The utility shares, however, continued to display actue weakness with Consolidated down to the low on the current move.

Strength in the gold mining shares, which lifted Homestake to a new record high, was due to the drop of the dollar to a new low. Alaska Juneau and Dome Mines also active and slightly higher.

The close of the period saw moderate setbacks largely in excess of net gains. Shares off over a point included U. S. Steel pfd., Southern Pacific, Public Service of New Jersey and Johns-Manville. American Woolen pfd., was down over 2 points.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 770,000 shares.

Stocks idled during the second hour and changes were negligible. Homestake extended its advance to 12 points net, while other gold shares continued firm. Western Union and National Distillers lost about a point apiece.

Sales to noon approximated 1,200,000 shares.

In the third hour price changes continued mixed. Homestake held up 12½ points. Shares up 2 or better included American Can, J. I. Case, Bristol-Myers and Cerro de Pasco.

Federal Mining & Smelting leaped 18 points. Drug was up more than 3 points. Delaware & Hudson, International Harvester, National Biscuit and American Smelting were up a point or more.

U. S. Smelting lifted a major fraction. American Telephone, Vanadium and United Gas Improvement were off a point or more. U. S. Steel was fractionally lower.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 1,460,000 shares.

Earlier gains of 1 to 2 or more points were wiped out in the fourth hour of trading with volume drying up on the appearance of fresh selling. Some of the metal shares held their gains. Losses at the end of the period ranged from fractions to 3 or more points.

Federal Mining & Smelting common advanced 18 points and the preferred was 13 higher. Homestake Mining showed a gain of 8 points. U. S. Smelting lowered more than 2 points.

American Commercial Alcohol dropped more than 2 points and American Teliephone was down a similar amount. Delaware & Hudson sagged 3 points. Chesapeake & Ohio lowered a point.

Losses of a point or more were recorded for such issues as du Pont, Delaware Lackawanna, Allied Chemical, American Byers, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, U. S. Steel and Auburn. Drug, Inc., moved against the general trend, advancing more than 2 points.

Sales to 2 p. m. approximated 1,900,000 shares.

Wheat Hovers Near Yesterday's Close

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—Much of the time today wheat hovered around yesterday's closing level and rallied promptly from small setbacks. Bulls asserted that inflation rumors had obscured supply and demand developments which were strengthening the fundamental market situation. It was pointed out that domestic receipts of wheat were falling off, and that cash wheat was leading the futures.

Cotton Higher in New York Trading

New York, Sept. 15 (INS)—Cotton futures maintained half of their early gains of $1 a bale in late tradng today, after withstanding a fair amount of profit-taking attracted by the sharp advance of the past three days. Late prices were up 10 to 14 points. October was up 10 at 9.47; December up 11 at 9.69; January up 10 at 9.79; March up 10 at 9.96; May up at 10.12, and July up 14 at 10.27.

Dividends

Central Aguirre Associates declared a regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents payable Oct. 2 to stock of record Sept. 25.

$45,000,000 Stock Suit Filed

New York, Sept. 15 (INS)—Damages of $45,000,000 were asked from the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, more than 700 members of the two trading organizations, and the Better Business Bureau in a suit on file today in Federal court.

Gene McCann of G. McCann & Co., charged that the exchanges engaged into a conspiracy against him and tried to induce banks, brokers and others not to deal with him in connection with the Foremost Industries Trustee Shares, which he formed several years ago.

FRISCO INQUIRY ON R. F. C. LOAN REPORTED

St. Louis, Sept. 15 (AP) The Post-Dispatch says an investigation is under way to determine if a $418,623 fund set aside by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway to further a re-organization plan included money borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Re-organization, as proposed by the former management which set aside the fund, is opposed by the R. F. C. now a creditor of more than $5,000,000 to the railroad which is operating under the new bankruptcy law.

A plea of the Reconstruction Corporation for appointment of "impartial" trustees to prepare a new and different plan for re-organization of the "Frisco" is scheduled to be heard here Monday before Federal Judge Charles B. Faris.

Judge Faris has appointed James M. Kurn, former president of the railway, and John G. Lonsdale, banker, trustees for the road under the bankruptcy law.

The application by the R. F. C. asserted the railroad's plan of re-organization would leave its capital structure little changed. No adequate proof can be offered, it was asserted, that the earnings will permanently support the structure.

An initial loan made by the R. F. C. to the railroad carried the provision that the Frisco would reduce fixed charges.

A plan more nearly meeting the wishes of the R. F. C. and other stockholders might include a proposal for the consolidation of the Frisco and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, according to the Post-Dispatch.

WOOL MARKET TONE IS FIRM

Following a brief resting spell, activity is again increasing in the Summer st. wool market. Manufacturers are looking for wool, reflecting increased volume of business in the goods market. Activity in the raw wool end is not, however, as great as it was last week, and especially two weeks ago, when sales were very large.

Dealers are looking for higher prices, and are far from anxious to sell. The result is firmer quotations throughout the list. Fleeces or eastern and southern wools are showing good advances, particularly in the medium grades. Half-bloods and quarter-bloods are two to three cents a pound higher than a week ago and three-eighths bloods are up one to two cents, scoured basis. Territory or western wools are firm, but unchanged in price, except in the case of quarter-bloods, where there has been a slight advance.

The fine grades of pulled wool are also very strong. Choice AA and average AA grades are up two to three cents in the past week, and and A super is up one to two cents. In tops, or semi-finished yarns, moderate advances have occurred.

Commodity Prices Holding Unchanged

Wholesale commodity prices between the week of Sept. 9 and Sept. 2 were unchanged. Bureau of Labor Statistics index was 69.7 Sept. 9, against 69.7 Sept. 2. Index numbers by groups were:

LOSSES RULE IN BOSTON STOCK DEALINGS

Losses ruled in late trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today, although most changes were of a fractional nature. Utilities were again under pressure, but intermittant rallies reduced losses in this group. American Telephone was down around 3 points. General Electric recovered an early loss of fractional proportion.

New England Telephone was down a point in the forenoon, but rallied to sell unchanged in the late trading. Boston Elevated was firm, advancing a fraction. Edison Electric was steady throughout the session.

Atchison was moderately higher in the carrier group, while New Haven held steady around its previous closing level. Stone & Webster and Anaconda Copper showed losses of a point or more. Sullivan Machine showed strength, advancing a point. United Shoe and Warren Brothers were fractionally improved.

Fractional recessions were recorded by First National Stores, Gillette, Bigelow Sanford and Swift & Co.

A. & P. Five Weeks' Sales $76,004,958

Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. reports sales for the five weeks' period ending Sept. 2 of $76,004,958, a 4.18 per cent decrease from same period in 1932. Estimated sales in tons were 6.5 per cent lower at 458,606.

Sales for 27 weeks ending Sept. 2 were $416,514,628, a decrease of 11.3 per cent from same period a year ago, while estimated sales in tons declined 5.2 per cent, or from 2,799,534 to 2,647,068 tons.

Competition in Toy Trade Hits German Makers

Washington, Sept. 15—The German toy industry is feeling the effects of intensified foreign competition, according to advices from Vice Consul Paul J. Reveley, Leipzig, made public by the Commerce Department. Increased competition from Italian and English producers is especially evident, the report states.

Although ordinarily German toy factories begin to increase their activities in June, this year production did not begin to show improvement until the middle of July and then almost wholly as a result of domestic orders. Foreign business usually large at this season, up-to-date has been noticeably small.

The factories claim, according to the report, that the present situation is due to foreign exchange and import restrictions of countries which are the best customers for German toys.

More than 135,000 persons have visited the toy exhibition at Sonnegerg which opened in May of this year. The German toy industry will undoubtedly be well represented at the Leipzig Fall Trade Fair which is usually visited by many toy importers from foreign countries.

Detroit Edison Co. Nets $4.90 a Share

The Detroit Edison Co. and subsidiary utility companies report for 12 months ended August 31, 1933, consolidated net profit of $6,239,589 after interest, amortization, depreciation, taxes, etc., equal to $4.90 a share on 1,272,260 shares.

This compares with $8,109,184, or $6.37 a share on the same number of shares for the preceding 12 months.

The regular quarterly dividend paid for the past two quarters, of $1 a share was declared payable October 16 to holders of record September 30.

Textile Fraud Probe Assured of Funds

Continuation of the textile fraud fund, which is devoted to investigation of commercial frauds in the textile industry, has been assured by subscriptions from industrial concerns, it was announced today. The fund, which has been in existence ten years, will be administered by the fraud prevention department of the National Association of Credit Men.

$350,000 Issue by Pressed Steel Car

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15—Permission to issue $350,000 certificates of indebtedness was granted receivers of Pressed Steel Car Co. by Judge Gibson in United States District Court. Court reserved to itself the right, after notice to creditors, to authorize receivers to issue additional certificates up to but not over $650,000.

Gossip About People You Know

HURLEY HONORED

Rep. John E. Hurley of Dorchester, in being chosen vice-chairman of the special commission studying election reforms, received an unusual honor for so young a man. Hurley, a Democrat, is not quite 27 years old, although he is serving his second two-year term in the legislature.

O'CONNELL WORKERS MEET

Mattapan supporters of former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, candidate for mayor, will meet at 66 Astoria st., that district, tomorrow evening.

CITY MANAGER NOW

Although there has been nothing said publicly about it, there is sentiment growing among members of the special commission studying Boston's charter in favor of recommending a city manager for the Hub. About everything else, one member pointed out, has been tried and found unsatisfactory.

$1,000,000 FOR PARKERS

Mayor Andrew Casassa of Revere is trying to get the metropolitan district commission to spend about $1,000,000 for a proper parking space at Revere Beach. The money would come from the federal government as a loan under the NRA. The mayor says the development could be either on the beach side or in the rear of the reservation.

HURLEY HAD NO CHOICE

Senator Frank Hurley of Holyoke, when criticized for sitting on the special commission on charter changes for Boston in view of the fact he is not a Boston resident, said he was appointed by President Erland F. Fish of the Senate and had no choice in the matter. As far as can be learned, this is the first time that a legislator got an appointment he was not looking for.

RADIO DRAMA PRESENTATION

Thrills Aplenty on Air Here Tonight

By N. F. T.

Spirited and impressive drama has the headline attraction call in sound sanctum program plans tonight. We find three major stations broadcasting another American Weekly Magazine studio show called "The Poison Pen" as adapted from existing crime records of the French police. Hub stations offering the quarter hour are WBZ-WBZA at 7:30, WAAB at 8:30 and WNAC at 10:30 p. m.

* * *

It is one of those strange mystery stories from real life that affords exceptional radio theme material. Gripping from start to finish, the dramatization has authentic background and is carefully cast to insure accurate character portrayal and atmosphere. Listeners who like loudspeaker thrills and air acting above par, should certainly reserve a dial place tonight for this one.

PRESIDENTIAL PLANS

Official word from Washington and New York tells of forthcoming broadcasts by President Roosevelt. Two talks are scheduled during the first week of October. Monday, the 4th, finds the chief executive addressing the Conference of Catholic Charities. On the Saturday following the President speaks at the dedication of a memorial to Samuel Gompers, late Federation of Labor head. Exact hours are to be announced.

William Randolph Hearst, celebrated newspaper publisher, has an important radio message for the coast-to-coast air audience tuned in tomorrow night. Mr. Hearst has in mind to discuss "Inflation, Deflation and Reflation," and his voice carries through NBC network facilities. Both the "Red" and "Blue" chain outlets will be hooked up from Maine to California. New England is to hear the timely Hearst address across WBZ and WEEI channels, beginning at 11 o'clock.

New Wonders of Science

Revolutionary Discoveries Made

Keeping up with the Joneses is easier than keeping up with science, even in these trying times.

New and revolutionary discoveries are announced with bewildering rapidity from the sessions of the American Chemical Society at Chicago.

Scientific nutrition, we learn from Professor Sherman of Columbia University, is bringing the day near when Plato's ideal—a regimented republic governed by an intellectual aristocracy—will prevail.

Moreover, the same dietary principles are about to add ten per cent to the span of human life and prolong mental and physical vigor far beyond middle age.

And two Oregon researchers have found the cause of growth—a fluid called pantothenic acid, present in all living things and so potent that a droplet the size of a pinhead speeds the growth of yeast in 250 gallons of liquid.

These are cheerful tidings to a harassed generation. But there is an obverse, it seems.

Over in England Sir Arthur Eddington asserts that our astronomical evidence as to an "expanding universe" and the longevity of stars may not be reliable, after all; and Lord Rutherford, a Nobel Prize winner, scoffs at the atom-splitting business.

Just a little while ago we were taught that enough "energy" might be released from a fractured atom to blow up the world. On the contrary, Lord Rutherford now says, atomic energy available to mankind's present skill and knowledge is about as powerful as moonshine—and he doesn't mean Prohibition moonshine, either. He means mere moonlight.

Meanwhile, applied science has its turn. At Lynn three companies of firemen tried to destroy an army of crickets with water, fire, oil and chemicals.

In the final attack eleven firemen were overcome, the others quitted the battle, the crickets continued to chirp—and multitudes of rats and cockroaches appeared on the scene to reinforce the merry chirrupers.

The one word for it all appears to be "baffled!"

The Middle-Aged Worker

Employers Should Remember Him

With the NRA in full swing and the nation resolved to buy now, to make jobs, and to restore prosperity, it is to be hoped that employers will consider the claims of the middle-aged worker when they add to their forces.

The prejudice against the woman over thirty and the man over forty, particularly in so-called white-collar jobs, is hard to explain.

Without disparaging youth, there is no question that the experienced worker is a greater asset to an employer in most positions than the novice.

He, or she, is likely to be steadier, more careful and less disposed to quit for trivial reasons.

For routine work, especially, the average middle-aged person is more valuable than the average youngster, no matter how ambitious and aggressive the latter may be.

Then too, the middle-aged employe is frequently the head of a family and his pay is usually spent in providing for a number of dependents.

When he is out of a job it means that several beside himself are thrown on charity or on the city and State for relief.

Thus the non-employment of the middle-aged worker places a heavier burden on private or public aid than would otherwise be the case.

School is the place for young people, if it is humanly possible to send them there.

The office, the store, or even the factory is the place for able-bodied, experienced workers notwithstanding the fact that they may have passed the forty mark.

In hiring more "help," employers would do well to keep this in mind. By so doing they will not only benefit themselves but their communities.

Weather to Brag About

Words From an Expert

George A. Loveland has been a meteorologist for fifty-one years.

He has recorded weather conditions for the national government in every section of this country.

Now, at the age of 70, on the verge of retirement and in the light of his long experience, he wants "to go on record as saying that the New England climate is about as good as can be found anywhere."

"The trouble is that New England folks don't brag about their weather."

Of course, Mr. Loveland is right about our New England weather. The records of the government show it.

On the average, we have as much constant fine weather as any other section of the country. We have, moreover, the East wind which tempers the heat of Summer when other sections of the country are groaning and suffering under the interminable heat waves.

Let us take Mr. Loveland's sayso for it and tell the rest of the world about New England weather. Mark Twain's joke that "New England has weather, but not climate," has stood too long without resistance.

Who Makes Sweatshops?

No Bargains in Shoddy Goods

Mr. Frank Dorr of Raymond's asks the question, "Who is responsible for the damnable sweatshop conditions?"

He answers the question himself—merchants and consumers who buy sweatshop products, looking for bargains that do not exist.

You can't find a real bargain in shoddy goods. Poor material or poor workmanship, at any price, is expensive.

Sweatshop products, at any price, are expensive. Women and girls at low wages cannot become prosperous consumers and thereby help the country over the road to economic recovery.

They must go to the public dole for a living income and thus become a burden to taxes, which all people pay.

Buy Now.

Spend in September.

Buy American.

Concentrate upon the products of the fine American employers who pay living wages and maintain high labor standards.

New York Day by Day

Odds and Ends

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Thoughts while strolling: Never see Elihu Root I don't think of Mr. Dooley's line when Root was presidential timber. "Sure," he says, "an' they'll soon be a singin' 'For he's a jolly good intellectual, no one can deny!'" Nothing so forlorn as a dog shop after dusk.

Verne Porter, an Abilene, Texas boy, who made good in the city. They are reviving the Chester A. Arthur-shaped derbies. Joe Laurie Jr's. flashy clothes suggest a cozy corner in a medium's parlor. Whatever became of watermelon seed spitters? Down and out biographies getting a play.

One word description of Constance Bennett—iciclish. Amusing the way St. John Ervine reviewed a London play, "The Terrible Event," with two words: "Quite so." A grand appetizer someone sent. A thin slice of American cheese in French dressing until saturated. And O, boy!

Over in Brooklyn they say Wiley Post and Floyd Gibbons are "one-eyeded." Mrs. Frank Mason and Alice Hughes look alike. Nothing makes me want to go back to the country like looking at Corot's "The Ferryman," in the Metropolitan. George Lemaze, one of the town's best known chefs.

No actress expresses tragic expectancy like Jane Cowl. One of my favorite people—Billy De Beck. Somehow I always expect book publishers to have whiskers. And no athlete has the glamorous dash of the polo player. That's what I'd like to be. An 8 goal man!

Frank Case tells of a hotelier friend who met a lady coming out of the dining room complaining the waiter annoyed her by fumbling the dishes and dropping silver. "Stage fright!" he told her. "The poor fellow has been rehearsing for months. You are the first customer. It's an opening night for him!"

Then there is Sam Harris' story of the Broadway shop-keeper who waited on a man who came in for change for a dollar. The shopkeeper opened the thing he used to call a cash drawer and there were six of the cunningest little mice and a mama mouse. They were chewing on something, which he naturally took away from them and devoured himself. He looks much better now, has a good color and a bright eye.

Speaking of bright eyes, our chauffeur, John De Carlo, was driving past a mid-town clothing store. Suddenly he drew up short, hopped out and rushed to one of the windows. "I thought so," he jeered. "See them buttons on the right side of that double-breasted coat? They are one eight of an inch too high." And I'll be dogged if they weren't. John and I have more fun.

Elmer A. Bushnell, a Cincinnati cartoonist, is another with marvelous vision. I was walking with him along the water front one day during an Ohio flood. "They ought to try to save that dog," he suddenly exclaimed, pointing up-stream. We waited at least 20 minutes before a group of us saw a frightened hound bobbing along on a hen house. The dog was saved.

There are few notable records of worthwhile short stories and novels getting by the all-seeing editorial eye. But there are several exceptions. For instance, Richard Harding Davis's "Gallegher," now a model for short story technicians, was turned down by the Century, and "David Harum," a novel attaining a million sale, was rejected by Walter Hines Page. Another publishing firm, in one morning, decided Kipling's "Jungle Books," "Plain Tales From the Hills" and "Soldiers Three," would have little sale, and spurned them.

At my best at teas among strangers I'm a dud. Although I try to give an impression of being one of those straight-living chaps whose idea of hilarity is to sing the Eton Boating Song, something always happens. Yesterday I sat primly on the edge of a divan holding a cup when suddenly I slipped to the floor, the cup flying. As I reassembled myself I heard a lady murmur: "They come to these teas to wallow in gin."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Servants and 'New Deal'

HOW ABOUT housemaids, nursemaids, cooks—all domestic servants—

SHOULD THEY SHARE THE NEW DEAL?

Should they have a guarantee under the NRA of shorter hours, or at least regular hours? Real "living wages"? Decent living quarters?

Elsie Robinson

Recently Alma Jacobsen put those questions up to a periodical which passed her letter on to the world. That letter packed a sturdy wallop at the treatment we give our home helpers in this land of "freedom and equality." It also carried a lashing indictment of the American housewife, in her treatment of her working partner.

"Since the NRA eagle," said Alma, "has spread its protective wings over U. S. workers, household servants excepted, many thousands of us shall continue to work from 6:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m., or later when guests are entertained, often on 24-hour duty when there are children or others who cannot be left alone, with one weekly day off—after the work is done and dinner prepared—for "wages" which rang from $15 per week to "exchange for room and board," the former any place from a damp basement up to a musty attic, badly heated, ventilated and lighted. There seldom is a place where friends may be received. All one's personal affairs are pried into and discussed. Meals are usually good but must be eaten on a kitchen board, sometimes cold, always in a hurry.

"So why," concluded Alma, "shouldn't something be done about US?'

That was the tenor of 99 out of 100 letters. But there were a few like the following:

My dear Miss Robinson:

I am a reasonably intelligent, capable girl who was forced to take housework instead of a secretarial position, and it certainly hasn't hurt me. I'm not treated like a doormat by any means

I take the same attitude towards domestic work that I would to any other job, doing it efficiently and quietly. For two years now, I have been cooking and cleaning house for another woman, and I have yet to form an inferiority complex!

I eat in the dining room and entertain my friends in the living room. I haven't lost my taste for good music or books. On the contrary, I have more time for things like that because I stay in nights. I am taking a correspondence course in German, a thing which I never would have found time to do before.

And finally, this: Just because my occupation is "domestic" gives me no excuse to keep my mind on a level with the dishpan!

..I am signing my name—having a horror of anonymous letters. If you publish this letter, please do include my name. Thank you.

WILMA CHRISTL,
New Haven, Conn.

A nice letter; yes. Remembering the friendly homes, the happy helpers you've known, you're comforted by that letter. And yet—

CAN YOU TRULY SAY IT'S TYPICAL?

In how many homes of your acquaintance does the maid "eat in the dining room and entertain her friends in the living room?" In how many homes has she as good a bed as any of the workers in the family—a pretty, restful room, where she can entertain her callers—assured hours, and days off which are not constantly infringed upon?

In short, DO YOU THINK THE DOMESTIC SERVANTS OF AMERICA ARE GETTING A SQUARE DEAL?

Would you like to take such work, or have your daughter take it?

And if you don't, and you wouldn't, what would you suggest doing about it?

SHOULD HOUSEHOLD SERVANTS UNIONIZE?

OR SHOULD THE NRA ISSUE A FEW SNAPPY PRONOUNCEMENTS CONCERNING "WHITE SLAVERY" IN AMERICAN KITCHENS?

Just Folks

The New Day

Not the old days but the new.
   Not the past, but what's before.
Not what's done, but what's to do.
   Yesterday will come no more!
All that was is as dead as stone.
   Here's a fresh, uncharted day
And its news will not be known
   Till its last hour slips away.

There's adventure for us all.
   There is change to pioneer.
Nevermore can we recall
   Triumphs of some by-gone year.
Here at daybreak we begin
   Building life and things anew.
We have distant goals to win.
   We have splendid tasks to do.

Ever from the known we turn
   To the unknown and the strange.
Always there's new truth to learn.
   Always thought and custom change.
Brooding o'er the past is vain.
   Yesterday is dead and done.
There are new joys to attain.
   New achievements to be won.

Roosevelt History in Cuba Repeats Itself

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Twenty-seven years ago this month Theodore Roosevelt faced as President much the same challenge to American authority and American responsibility in Cuba that Franklin D. Roosevelt faces as President today.

Theodore Roosevelt had been President nearly five years when an insurrection broke out in Cuba, which the Cuban government, headed by President Palma, was unable to put down. How promptly he met the challenge is set forth in these words from his annual message to Congress in December following:

"Thanks to the preparedness of our navy, I was able immediately to send enough ships to Cuba to prevent the situation from becoming hopeless."

PALMA RESIGNED

A few weeks later Mr. Roosevelt sent to Cuba as high commissioners, his Secretary of War, Mr. Taft, and his acting Secretary of State, Mr. Bacon. His Secretary of State, Mr. Root, was then on his way up the west coast of South America returning from the Pan-American Conference, which held its third session in Rio De Janeiro that year.

When these commissioners found themselves unable to mediate the differences between the Cuban government and the leaders of the revolution, President Palma resigned and constitutional government in Cuba collapsed.

President Roosevelt having exhausted every effort to avert intervention, did not hesitate to intervene when the necessity arose. Acting under the Platt amendment, he proclaimed a provisional government, appointed Mr. Taft to act as provisional governor until Mr. Magoon could get to Havana from Panama, where he was serving as United States Minister to Panama.

To support the new government President Roosevelt dispatched an expeditionary force of the regular army to take over the protection of life and property, which in the preceding weeks had been the task of the navy.

This intervention involved neither fighting nor bloodshed. The revolutionary leaders had accomplished their purpose when they overthrew the Palma government. So they laid down their arms and their forces were disbanded.

T. R.'S STAND

In a letter to Senator Lodge, September 27, 1906, the President fully explained the course he took in Cuba. This letter, which appears in Mr. Bishop's entertaining book, "Theodore Roosevelt and His Time," reads in part:

"I have, I need hardly say, a horror of putting what is in effect a premium upon insurrectionists receiving benefit from their action; but Palma's utter weakness—or, to speak with literal exactness, his impotence—to do anything effective toward quelling the revolt . . . made it absolutely imperative that I should take some step unless I wished to see chaos come in the island.

"Of course, if I had announced, as Mr. Bryan advised, that under no circumstances would I use armed force; or if, as Foraker desired, I had stated I could take no action until Congress decided what to do — just imagine my following the Buchanan-like course of summoning Congress for a six-weeks debate by Bacon, John Sharp Williams and Tillman as to whether I ought to land marines to protect American life and property—the fighting would have gone on without a break, the whole island would now be a welter of blood . . .

"I hope that we shall not have to intervene in any permanent form at present, and that we can simply make temporary arrangements to keep order until an election can be held and a new government or modified government started."

A Roosevelt in the White House 27 years ago this month met the challenge of Cuba in much the same way that the Roosevelt in the White House today appears to be meeting it, let the criticisms fall where they may.

Human Side of the News

Unsolved Mysteries of the U. S. S. Cyclops and the Mary Celeste, Strangest in Ocean Annals

By Edwin C. Hill

It has been just five years since the Navy Department struck from the navy list the name of the collier Cyclops, putting a period, in so far as it could, to one of the greatest mysteries of the sea. The Cyclops, a well-found vessel of 19,000 tons displacement, with 300 souls aboard and a cargo of manganese, departed from Barbados for an Atlantic port on March the fourth, 1918. From the moment her top rigging fell below the horizon until this hour not a shred of evidence has ever been produced to solve the riddle of her utter disappearance.

That a ship so large could vanish from the sight and report of men, with all her boats, life preservers, the baggage of her crew and the numerous company aboard her seems incredible in this age of crowded sea lanes and especially of radio, but that all this occurred is a matter of official record. In the history of disaster in the United States Navy the case of Cyclops must always have a place unique.

But there is a tale even stranger in the annals of the American merchant marine, one that baffles any likely theory or conjecture. On November 1, 1872, according to the Marine Register, the brigantine Mary Celeste, with a cargo of 1700 barrels of alcohol, sailed from the harbor of New York for the port of Genoa. Her master was Captain Benjamin S. Briggs of Marion, Massachusetts, with luxurious whiskers, a ruddy complexion, and just the proper hint of sternness in his manner, he was a sailing master of the old school, about forty-five years old and a member of an old New England seafaring family. Captain Briggs was a man who had successfully commanded many ships on long voyages. He was a teetotaler, and saw to it that no one around him drank liquor. He was a good church member, and made a practice of reading aloud one chapter from the Bible every day while at sea, weather permitting. His wife, the woman aboard, still a young woman in her early thirties, took with her their two-year-old baby girl, her sewing machine and a small melodeon. In addition there were a mate, a second mate, a cook and four seamen aboard this tidy brigantine of 282 tons register and of Nova Scotia build.

Of those 10 human beings who set sail from New York for Genoa in the Mediteranean on November 7, 1872, not one was ever seen again alive or dead, nor has any authentic message ever turned up from any one of them.

But the Mary Celeste was found prancing erratically over the waves, a ghost ship, with everything on board in apple pie order—and yet not a soul on board. On December the 4th, almost a month after the Mary Celeste had cleared Sandy Hook, she was sighted by the British bark, Dei Gratia, plowing along before a fair wind about 300 miles west of Gibraltar. Capt. Boyce of the Dei Gratia flew some signals, to which the Mary Celeste made no response and the strange course which the silent vessel was taking finally caused the master of the Dei Gratia to send a boat's crew to investigate. And this is what Mate Devon found when he set foot on deck.

Under full sail and in perfect condition, the Mary Celeste had been abandoned. An abandoned ship at sea is nothing strange, but an abandoned ship in perfect condition, with sails set, and giving no evidence of having encountered storm or any danger, is another thing. No wonder that Mate Devon signalled for Captain Boyce to join him aboard the mystery ship. Together they started a careful investigation.

The two boats of the Mary Celeste were missing—the yawl and the longboat. In Captain Briggs' stateroom a pillow plainly showed the imprint of his little daughter's head. Above the pillow, hanging from a bracket, was Captain Briggs' watch. In the next cabin was found the beginning of a letter from the mate to "Fanny, my dear Wife —"

Continuing their search, the men from the Dei Gratia found Captain Briggs' money in his cabin. Plainly there had been no robbery. The captain's navigating instruments, his sextant and chronometer were missing. Yet the ship's log, which is never voluntarily abandoned, was there in plain sight, with an entry reading: "Weather fine, wind light."

All of the berths were made up, showing that the crew had abandoned the brigantine in the daytime. Nor were there any indications of violence, such as a drop or two, even, of blood. In the ship's storeroom her provisions were intact, except that a case of canned goods had been ransacked and left open. The galley was clean and shipshape. There was not one mute reminder of mutiny, murder, storm or robbery.

Captain Boyce and his mate came to the deliberate conclusion, however, that the people of the Mary Celeste had left her in a great hurry, plainly terror-stricken. But by what? No man could say then, and none can say now. It is the mystery that has gripped the imagination of seafaring men for more than seventy years.

A hundred surmises have been made, none quite meeting the case. The wildest of all was that a great sea serpent had attacked the little brigantine. Captain Boyce, who found and investigated the derelict, belived most likely that the Mary Celeste had drifted in a calm, near to the rocky and dangerous coast of St. Mary's Island, that the captain took fright and decided to abandon the brigantine long enough to see whether or not she was going ashore. But why should he have feared the effects of his ship drifting against even rocks in a calm?

No; mystery it was in the long ago, and mystery it remains today, as vivid as ever—one of those utterly inexplicable mysteries of the sea.
